BOND PROGRAM OF $100,000,000 WITHOUT RISE IN TAXES STUDIED

Mayor Says Such a Plan for Public Improvement May Be Possible Under Present City Financing Setup.

It may be possible to finance a $100,000,000 bond issue program of public improvements in St. Louis without increasing the city tax rate, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker indicated yesterday.

Discussing city plans on the "Operation Progress" program broadcast by Station KWK, he said a study will be made to determine whether bonds for expressways, new docks and other urgently needed improvements can be floated without higher taxes.

Mayor Tucker emphasized that he was making no promises and did not wish to raise any "false hopes," but he indicated that a bond issue of $100,000,000 might be feasible under the present municipal financing setup.

St. Louis, permitted by state law to issue bonds up to $165,000,000, currently has a bond debt of less than $53,000,000.

More Revenue Anticipated.

City officials anticipate more revenue from the municipal earnings tax, now that the city charter has been amended to give St. Louis home rule with regard to this levy.

The tax has been bringing in about $8,000,000 a year when levied on the temporary basis authorized by the State Legislature. With the Board of Aldermen authorized to tax earnings as long as necessary, it will be feasible to set up a long-term collection procedure to plug loopholes and see to it that evasion of the tax is prevented.

In the past, St. Louis has lost large amounts of revenue while waiting for the Legislature to renew the city's authority to tax earnings. Elimination of such losses under home rule, plus improved collection, may step up earnings tax revenue between 5 and 12 per cent a year, Mayor Tucker estimated.

"A citizens' committee will be organized soon to select public works to be included in a bond issue program," he continued. "If the bond issue is approved, a supervisory committee will oversee expenditures and guarantee that the money is used as intended."

Need for New Businesses.

Former Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann, who was one of the leaders in the charter amendment campaign, emphasized the need for industrial redevelopment and other measures designed to attract new business.

"A city that has an ambitious program of development attracts new industry," he said. "As industry expands, more jobs are provided. That goes hand in hand with civic progress."

Construction of an international trade mart here may become a reality, now that the city's finances have been stabilized and it is possible to plan long-range improvements, he added.

With city finances stabilized by assured income from the earnings tax, it should be easier to market municipal bonds, Ethan A. H. Shepley, chancellor of Washington University, told the St. Louis Traffic Club at Hotel Jefferson today.

Slum clearance, new housing and improvement of parking facilities in the heart of the city will bolster property values and help check the exodus to the suburbs, he added.

Flight of East Germans.

BONN, Oct. 4 (UP)—More than 143,000 East Germans fled to West Germany in the first nine months of this year, the government announced today.

JOE DiMAGGIO and MARILYN MONROE

Blonde Star Blames 'Incompatibility' for Break-Up After Less Than 10 Months.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4 (UP)—Film star Marilyn Monroe and Joe DiMaggio, whose marriage had been considered one of Hollywood's top matings, have separated, her studio announced today.

The blonde star blamed "incompatibility" resulting from the "conflicting demands" of her career with that of the former baseball star for break-up of their less than 10-month-old marriage.

They were married in San Francisco on Jan. 14, 1954, to climax a long romance.

The actress said she is consulting her attorney and will file for divorce on grounds of mental cruelty against DiMaggio, former New York Yankee star outfielder, in California.

The actress informed Twentieth Century-Fox by telephone of the split-up. She said that she would not report for work today for scheduled shooting in the "Seven Year Itch." She said, however, she would report tomorrow. She recently returned from New York where scenes in the film had been shot.

The marriage was the second for both DiMaggio and the actress. He previously was divorced by Dorothy Arnold, by whom he has a son. Miss Monroe had married when she was 15 years old but it ended four years later in divorce. Her first husband was Jim Dougherty, then a seaman but now a policeman in suburban Van Nuys.

When DiMaggio, 37 years old, married the nation's No. 1 pin-up girl at San Francisco, it was hailed as the top Hollywood marriage in a decade. The couple had kept steady company for two years before they went before a municipal judge in San Francisco and were married in a civil ceremony.

From the start, DiMaggio made it clear he intended to stay out of the spotlight focused on the 27-year-old actress. He continued to pal around with his former sports cronies. Only once did he visit his wife at work.

Miss Monroe didn't seem to mind her husband's refusal to mix in the fast-paced movietown social whirl. She repeatedly emphasized that her first thought was of Joe. Her career came second, she said.

547 ARRESTED AS WESTERN AIDS IN EAST ZONE IN AUGUST

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Communist East German government announced today 547 persons were arrested in last August's mass roundup of alleged American underground agents in the Soviet zone of Germany. The previously announced figure was 400.

State Secretary Albert Norden said 27 of the agents arrested were equipped with radio transmitters of American manufacture.

AFL MAN FINED $1000 FOR TAKING CONTRACTOR GIFT

John Coleman Pleads Guilty of Violating Taft-Hartley Act by Accepting $800.

John Coleman, business representative of Local 527, AFL Cement Finishers' Union, was fined $1000 by United States District Judge Rubey M. Hulen today when he pleaded guilty of violating the Taft-Hartley Act by accepting an $800 cash gift from a contractor to whom he supplied craftsmen.

A second count of the indictment, charging Coleman with also receiving $9903 in free materials and labor from the contractor, was dismissed by the Government. The count alleged the contractor, William Hertfelder, Inc., 4108 Clayton avenue, used the material and labor in work at Coleman's home.

Assistant United States Attorney William K. Stanard II, who presented the case to the court, said he believed it was the first time this section of the Taft-Hartley Act ever had been prosecuted anywhere in the United States.

"Acceptance by labor leaders of gifts from contractors with whom they do business is a clear violation of the law," he said. "It is a widespread practice and one that should be elimiated."

Plea for Leniency.

In a plea for leniency, defense counsel Robert Jones said the money was given to Coleman by William Hertsfelder, head of the cement firm, as a Christmas present last Dec. 24. The two men and members of their families had been close friends for many years, he said.

After listening to the attorneys, Judge Hulen asked Coleman if he still had the $800. When Coleman said he did, the judge fixed the fine. Payment was stayed until Friday.

Maximum penalty on the charge, which is a misdemeanor, is a $1000 fine and a year in jail.

Coleman was named president of the AFL Building & Construction Trades Council in January 1952 to complete the term of William H. Anderson, plasterers' business agent, who retired from office in the council because of ill health. Coleman was re-elected last year.

Coleman's indictment resulted from an investigation of reports of monopolistic tie-ins between some sub-constractors and labor leaders in the St. Louis district.

Actress Fired; Fixed Partner's Stage Drink to Pucker Mouth

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (UP)—Actress Betsy Von Furstenberg was fired from the Broadway play, "Oh, Men! Oh Women!" because, among other things, she slipped actor Tony Randall a drink on stage which puckered up his mouth so much he could hardly talk.

A theater spokesman disclosed yesterday the reasons behind the temperamental actress's dismissal three weeks ago.

Her part called for her to mix Randall a drink just before the actor was to make a long monologue. The theater spokesman said she mixed "German herbs" in the drink.

The management also complained that Miss Von Furstenberg secretly kicked actor Larry Blyden on stage, causing him great pain. It said she missed a performance because she said she was sick, though she reportedly was seen with actor Franchot Tone that night attending a ballet.

Angus Duncan, executive secretary of Actors Equity, confirmed that the union upheld management's right to terminate Miss Von Furstenberg's contract.

DEFENSE DEPT. TO STEP UP DRIVE TO GET RID OF SECURITY RISKS

Wilson Confers With Eisenhower — Secretary Says Percentage of Cases Needing Investigation Is Low.

DENVER, Oct. 4 (UP)—Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said after a long conference with President Eisenhower today that his department is "stepping up all our procedures" to rid it of subversives and security risks.

Wilson said that under the Defense Department's speed-up in dealing with security risks, questionable cases would be moved out of sensitive jobs "and if they are out-and-out risks and practicing subversion, they will be dealt with severely."

Wilson said he felt that the "percentage" of cases warranting investigation in the Defense Department was "happily" low, considering that the Defense Establishment, including the armed forces, consists of about 4,000,000 men and women.

Other Highlights.

Other highlights that developed in a press conference following Wilson's talk with the President included:

1. The Secretary was bluntly critical of Democratic "ethics" in attacking Defense Department contracts with General Motors which Wilson once headed.

2. Wilson regards the nine-power agreement concluded in London yesterday for the rearmament of Germany as "a very hopeful step ahead for Europe." He said that before discussing the agreement to end the occupation of West Germany in any great detail, however, he preferred to wait for a first-hand report from Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

3. The Selective Service Act, which expires next June 30, must be extended and improved. In this connection, he said that in the foreseeable future he envisioned an American armed force of about 3,000,000 men and to maintain this manpower level would require a "career" force of about 1,300,000 men who would remain in service longer than the two-year draft or enlistment term.

He said he had not had an opportunity to measure the armed services' reaction to the recommended censure of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin.

Comment on Anti-Red Drive.

In discussing Defense Department plans to tighten up on "procedures" in dealing with subversives and security risks, Wilson said he was not prepared for a full-dress press conference and consequently could not give concrete figures on the number of risk cases now under investigation.

Reminded that Vice President Richard M. Nixon recently said that the Administration was getting rid of security risks "by the thousands," Wilson said of his department, "there are over 4,000,000 of us and I think a thousand — even a thousand — would be a small percentage."

Then reporters brought up the recent succession of critical statements directed at Wilson by Senator Henry Jackson (Dem.), Washington. Jackson contended that General Motors has received much too high a proportion of Government business since Wilson took over the Defense Department.

Asked if he regarded the Jackson statements as part of the fall congressional campaign, Wilson replied, "it looks that way to me."

"And I might say this," he added, "the ethics of it seem to be of a little lower order than I am used to in business."

Reason for Trip.

He said the reason for his presence at the Denver White House was that he and the President normally confer in Washington at least once a week and that he had not had an opportunity to go over an accumulation of Defense Department business with the Chief Executive in some weeks.

After Wilson talked with Mr. Eisenhower, he told reporters he thought the new London agreement would be more effective than the proposed European Defense Community because of British participation. He said he was sure the French felt better about the new plan and that German rearmament would be more palatable to Premier Pierre Mendes-France because the new agreement would provide for the presence of British troops on European soil.

After the Eisenhower-Wilson meeting, the President then went into conference with a group of his White House staff advisers who flew here from Washington last night. Wilson returned to Washington by air immediately ater his talk with Mr. Eisenhower.

The group of advisers included presidential assistant Sherman Adams and Wilton Persons, chief White House liaison aid on congressional matters. Some of the aids plan also to work with Mr. Eisenhower on the nationwide television and radio address that the President will give this Friday night before a "live" audience appealing for continued Republican control of Congress.

DULLES SAYS LONDON PACT SALVAGES MUCH OF EDC; OCCUPATION NEARS END

9 NATIONS SIGN AGREEMENT TO REARM GERMANY UNDER CONTROLS

Pact Would Restore West Reich Sovereignty, Provide for 12-Division Army, Entry Into NATO.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

LONDON, Oct. 4—A historic agreement, the "final act of the nine-power London conference," was formally signed yesterday afternoon in the ornate state drawing room of Lancaster House.

Opening up a promising new era of accord and unity for Western Europe and the rest of the free world, it provides for:

Rapid restoration of West German sovereignty;

Rearmament of West Germany under a system of arms controls;

Entry by West Germany and Italy into the 1948 Brussels Treaty Organization for mutual deefnse against aggression;

Simultaneous entry by West Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization;

Strong American and British military support for defense of continental Western Europe;

Increased powers for the Allied supreme commander in Europe in the fields of command and control of the continental armies;

And finally, from West Germany, a solemn declaration of adherence to the non-aggression policy of the United Nations and a renunciation of use of force to achieve reunification of divided Germany.

This important diplomatic achievement filled the political vacuum left when the French National Assembly on Aug. 30, killed the Europe Defense Community project.

The British offer to station four divisions of troops and a tactical air force in Western Europe for an indefinite period was the key to the successful outcome to the conference.

The rejection of EDC by France had been attributed by Premier Mendes-France, in part at least, to British refusal to join in it fully and thus offset French fears of a rearmed Germany.

The conference, which began last Tuesday, was characterized by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles as "without doubt one of the great conferences of all time."

Under the agreement, West Germany will be permitted to raise a 12-division army of 500,000 men, a tactical air force and a small navy, to strengthen the NATO defense system in western Europe.

Signed by Foreign Ministers.

The agreement was signed by the foreign ministers of the United States, Great Britain, France, Canada, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg, Italy and West Germany.

As he left for Washington by plane from London airport three hours after the signing ceremony, Dulles spoke of "a moment of deep emotion in the general feeling that Western defense has been set upon a secure constructive path which will lead to world peace."

He said that "a large part of what was sought to be achieved by the European Defense Community project has been sal-

EISENHOWER SETS MARK IN ABSENCE FROM WASHINGTON

DENVER, Oct. 4 (AP)—President Eisenhower's work-and-play Colorado vacation already has set a record in time he has remained away from Washington on any one trip since taking office. Furthermore, he probably will not return to the capital for another 10 days—about Oct. 15.

The President began his Colorado stay this year on Aug. 21, six weeks and two days ago.

His longest previous absence from Washington as President was the six weeks to a day he spent here last year. None of his other trips comes close to matching the length of the two Colorado vacations.

Actually, both this year and last the President did get back to Washington once from Colorado to fill one-day speaking engagements. Last year he also made an overnight trip to New York. This year he has left Denver several times to campaign for a Republican Congress in his area, the Midwest and the Far West.

Mendes-France Calls Assembly To Consider London Agreement

Britain's Promise to Maintain Powerful Forces on Continent Should Help Chances of Approval.

By BARRETT McGURN
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

PARIS, Oct. 4—Premier Mendes-France has summoned a special session of the National Assembly for Thursday in line with his promise to seek French ratification of the nine-power London agreement before the end of this year.

The reaction the Premier will get as he outlines his gains and his setbacks at London is still hard to judge, but there is no question that Britain's agreement to maintain four divisions and a powerful air force in Europe will have a favorable effect.

There is also no question that despite the controls over German rearmament which Mendes-France obtained, many deputies will still hang back at the idea of putting guns in German hands under any circumstances. A strong argument in Mendes-France's favor in this regard is sure to be the contention that France might have found itself ousted from the Atlantic alliance unless it agreed to some limited form of West German rearmament.

Indicating he intended to fight for ratification of the accord, the Premier was quoted before leaving London as saying his administration would be "really guilty if it didn't put all its weight behind something it had negotiated itself and which had brought France such important guarantees."

Saar Not Mentioned.

He added that "there are still many more details to be worked out on our agreement here." He did not mention the dispute over the Saar between France and West Germany but the French delegation at the conference made it clear that a Saar agreement must be made a part of the "package deal."

The Assembly was on vacation until early November, but deputies knew they might be recalled in the event of major developments in France's foreign relations.

Despite Mendes-France's numerous diplomatic victories at

NEWLYWEDS TAKE WRONG BORROWED CAR, MEET POLICE

COBALT, Ont., Oct. 4 (AP)—The bride and groom left in a shower of confetti, their car suitably decorated with slogans. At North Bay, 100 miles to the south, a reception committee greeted them—a police roadblock.

Before Irene Laliberte and Ricky Sullivan were married Saturday, the groom arranged to borrow a car from George Sadler of Cobalt.

As the couple headed for North Bay, Henan Paulin, a neighbor of the bride's family, told police his car had been stolen. Meanwhile, Sadler was wondering why Ricky had not taken his car.

Ricky's friends, it seemed, had decorated Paulin's car by mistake. The groom was too nervous to notice.

REDS SEEK LOVE SONG GEARED TO MOON, NOT MOTORS

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (AP)—One of the things the Soviet Union appears to need is a good June-moon-spoon love song.

Even ardent Communists now admit that youth here can't get a "cardial feeling" (heart beat, this means) on song lyrics sounding like this:

"Motors are roaring . . . conveyor belts carry up piles of bricks . . . and this conveyor method means faster building."

The inadequacy of Soviet popular songs recently got a going-over in Komsomol Pravda, official newspaper of the Communist Youth League. It says that this business of singing a love song to a tractor underneath the harvest moon is off key.

A. Bocharov, who signed this article in Komsomol Pravda, says: "We have felt the need for a song which could resound with the same success at a meeting, at a Communist party demonstration, at a table among friends, even when a person is in solitude. . . ."

STREAMLINED RUSSIAN TRAIN AMOUNTS TO SINGLE SLEEPER

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP) — The Russians said a new streamlined, all-steel 30-car train would travel for Moscow to Berlin on adjustable undercarriages to fit the two rail gauges between the two cities.

They had advertised that their engineers finally had solved the problem of fitting the cars so passengers riding between Moscow to Berlin wouldn't have to change trains at the Polish border where the western narrow gauge ends an dthe Russian wide gauge begins.

But the train that arrived in Berlin yesterday was an old Polish engine and eight cars of the narrow-gauge variety pulling behind them one Russian sleeper with the adjustable undercarriage.

PRESIDENT HAILS PACT AS TRIUMPH OF DIPLOMACY

Says It Carries Great Promise of Unified Security for West Europe.

DENVER, Oct. 4 (AP)—President Eisenhower today hailed the new Western Europe defense alliance against Communism as "what may be one of the greatest diplomatic achievements of our time."

In a statement, the President said the nine-power pact, providing for rearmament of West Germany and an end to the Allied occupation of that country, will—when ratified by the nations which signed it in London yesterday—"preserve most of the values inherent in the original European Defense Community proposal."

The President said "all of us have reasons to be gratified by the outcome" of the London conference.

He added that the agreement carries "great promise of a strengthened and unified security arrangement among the Western European nations, including West Germany, so as to maintain an effective front in the defense of freedom."

The President said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, together with the Foreign Ministers of the other eight nations which approved the defense alliance agreements, "has accomplished what may be one of the greatest diplomatic achievements of our time because of the potentialities of these agreements for promoting security, prosperity and peace in Europe, with the inevitable benefits of such a development on the United States and the rest of the world."

Mr. Eisenhower said he kept in "constant communication" with Dulles while Dulles was in London, and that he talked to him again this morning on Dulles's return to Washington.

HALF IN TEST HAVE ONE FOOT SMALLER THAN THE OTHER

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 4 (AP)—Dr. Lawrence E. Morehouse, professor of physical education at the University of California at Los Angeles, said yesterday that 49 per cent of 600 students whose feet were studied turned out to have one foot larger than the other.

The variance ranged from half a size to two and one-half sizes, he told the Conference on Foot-Problems in Industry meeting, held under the auspices of the American College of Foot Orthopedists.

Prince Charles Takes Up Boxing, Will Meet an American in Ring

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP)—British boxing found a new hope today—Battling Prince Charles, age 5.

Among his opponents, the gossips say, will be a big 'un—6-year-old Stephen Rutter, son of an American diplomat.

Charles, heir to the British throne, weighs in at 40 pounds. Stephen goes around 45. According to the London papers they'll fight it out late this month under the promotion of Percy Sage, who runs a boxing academy for the sons of gentlemen.

Buckingham Palace wouldn't confirm but explained the Prince is of an age to begin athletic pursuits.

Stephen's manager took time out from diplomatic duties to say: "My boy has talent, but things are tricky. Certain arrangements have been made, but too much publicity might snarl the whole thing."

RETURNS HOME, STATES ATLANTIC COMMUNITY HAS BEEN BOLSTERED

Praises European Nations for Swift Action on Germany Just 33 Days After France Killed Earlier Plan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles returned today from the nine-power London conference on West European defense and said it produced "solid results" to preserve and strengthen the Atlantic community.

Dulles praised the European nations for their swift action on the German problem just 33 days after France killed the European Defence Community. He said he hoped the United States will co-operate with the London conference agreement "because to do so will be very much in our national interest."

'Momentous Commitment.

Dulles said Britain made "a momentous long term commitment" of its forces to the European continent.

Noting that much of the London agreement will require "further approvals by other nations and by parliaments," he refused to say whether he feared the French parliament might reject the London agreement as it did EDC.

Dulles said he had "no plans at all" when asked about reporting to President Eisenhower in Denver on the conference results.

The United States and eight of its West European allies in London yesterday signed a lengthy protocol calling for quick West German sovereignty, establishing a complicated system for its rearmament, and providing for its admission to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the revised Brussels pact.

Beginning today, Dulles said, the United States, British and French High commissioners in Germany "will forego the exercise of most of their occupation rights."

Dulles issued this statement:

"The London conference produced solid results. It worked out a system, in place of the European Defense Community, which can preserve and strengthen the Atlantic Community by giving it a hard core of European unity. Thus it salvages many of the values of the EDC plan, and will give opportunity for the others to be achieved by further effort. The fact that all of this was done, and done within 33 days of the rejection of EDC, shows the vitality of the Atlantic community. Under this new plan:

"Germany sovereignty will be restored and beginning today the allied high commissioners will forego the exercise of most of their occupation rights.

Continental System.

"Germany will join NATO and make its indespensible contribution to the defense of the West. This will be done within a continental system of armament controls.

"Western European unity will be developed within the framework of the Brussels treaty. The treaty members will become identical with the projected membership of EDC, with the addition of the United Kingdom. Their council will have broad authority and can act in many important matters by a majority vote. Thus national authority gives way to European authority.

"The United Kingdom has made a momentous long term commitment of its military forces to the continent of Europe.

"Much of what was agreed on will, of course, require further approvals by other nations and by parliaments.

"When I went to London, I said that the initiative rested with the European powers. They exercised this initiative, and the result is what the Europeans decided on for themselves. The United States will, I hope, cooperate with the result, because to do so will be very much in our national interest."

Dulles's plane arrived at 9:14 a.m. He stepped out of it smiling broadly and waving a black homburg. Retiring Under Secretary of State Walter Bedell Smith strode up, shook his hand, and said simply "Congratulations."

Second to greet the Secretary was Herbert Hoover Jr., who succeeded Smith today as Under Secretary. Also on hand were the ambassadors of Germany, France and Italy—Heinz Krekeler, Henri Bonnet and Alberto Tarchiani.

BRITON CAUTIOUS IN CALLING RED DISARMING PLAN 'A STEP FORWARD'

Tells U.N. It Left Much to Be Clarified — Heartened by Acceptance of West Proposals as Basis for Talks.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 4—Selwyn Lloyd of Britain today told the United Nations General Assembly that new Russian suggestions for an approach to disarmament and abolition of nuclear weapons was a "step forward" unless the Soviet Union was only trying "to confuse the domestic political situation in countries considering a German defense contribution."

The British Minister of State said that Soviet delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky had left much to be clarified in his resolution of last week calling for a step-by-step disarmament program. The Vishinsky plan accepted as a basis for negotiation a British-French disarmament plan offered in London last June.

"A Step Forward."

"The fact that our proposals have at length been accepted as a basis—I hope there is no mistake or misunderstanding about that," Lloyd said, "is a step forward.

"It is a cause for satisfaction that after years of apparently profitless debate, the Western proposals of June 11, and Russian acceptance of them as a basis, hold out the possibility of progress in this all important field."

He added that Britain "is prepared to deal with these proposals on their merits and to press on with the work in the Political Committee, the Disarmament Commission, and the technical bodies which will have to examine certain aspects of these matters."

The French representative, Guerin de Beaumont, who followed Lloyd to the rostrum in the general policy debate, also termed the Russian proposal a "step forward" which deserves "our full attention."

Lloyd put a series of questions to the Soviet delegation on Russia's proposed arms control and inspection system.

Would the "temporary control committee," proposed by Russia to supervise the first stage of disarmament, have "real power to do more than request information?" he asked.

On Temporary Control.

He asked also why it was necessary to have a temporary control agency and later a permanent one, as Vishinsky proposed and whether decision of the control agency would be subject to the veto in the Security Council.

The Russian plan envisages creation of an international control organ simultaneously with the barring and scrapping of atomic, hydrogen and other weapons of mass destruction. The West always has insisted that the control agency should be set up and working first. Lloyd said the Soviet resolution "is not clear on that very important matter."

In an oblique reference to the accord reached at London for limited rearmament of West Germany with a pledge of sovereignty and membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the British spokesman said that Soviet objection to the step was because the Kremlin conception of a "unified Germany" was to have Germany "in close alliance" with Russia.

"Would that mean a disarmed Germany?" Lloyd asked. "I must say that the Soviet attitude on this matter appears to me to be quite cynical. What have they been doing all this time in East Germany?

"Under the guise of police forces there is an East German army. It consists of about 90,000 men. They are organized into two Soviet-type rifle corps, each of two infantry divisions, and one mechanized division.

"There is in addition one independent mechanized division. It is estimated that altogether about 1300 tanks and self-propelled guns are held by these forces and about the same number of field, anti-tank and anti-aircraft guns.

"This is a police force, mark you.

Military Insignia.

"Since October 1952 these men have ceased to wear police uniforms and now wear an olive green one with a mixture of old Soviet and Wehrmacht features. Police ranks have been dropped and military ranks and insignia adopted. In addition there is a navy of 6000 strong, an air force called the "people's air force" training on Soviet aircraft. Quite apart from all this there are the security, frontier and ordinary police.

"In view of these facts the Russian campaign to deny Western Germany the opportunity to have any military forces at all, is, I repeat, just cynical. There is no other suitable epithet.

"However that may be, a united Germany, united on the basis of free elections and accepted into the community of nations must be achieved if there is to be stability in Europe."

As to the general problem of disarmament, Lloyd said the public should have "the somber facts" about nuclear weapons. He said another world war would mean the end of civilization.

"One of the reasons, quite apart from the political and military arguments, I have always opposed the banning of one particular weapon in isolation, is the implication that thereby in some way you are making another world war safe for humanity," he added.

"When it is everywhere understood that a recourse to war is going to mean complete destruction of both sides, may that not be the supreme deterrent to war which has hitherto been lacking?"

"The countries on this side of the Iron Curtain want peace—we seek peace—we are ready to negotiate," Lloyd asserted. He wondered if the Soviet offer to negotiate solutions to world conflicts on the basis of "co-existence" mean onlly to the "extent of the avoidance of atomic war" and the ultimate aim of the Kremlin was still world revolution.

He asked Moscow to refute by deeds evidence of its desire for Communist world domination.

In his address, De Beaumont pledged French support to the United States atoms-for-peace plan for an international bank of atomic resources for peacetime uses.

"For the first time, a forward step has been taken by the Soviet delegation in the atomic energy debate," the French delegation leader said. "We congratulate ourselves on this fact all the more, considering that up until now attempts to reconcile the opposed views have come principally from us alone.

"We can only hope that this effort of mutual comprehension and collaboration will be pursued without ulterior motives or calculations and that it will find expession in our acts."

De Beaumont made no mention of the London conference at which nine powers agreed on the partial rearmament and independence of West Germany, with assurance to the Bonn government of membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

He described NATO, however, as an agency to insure peace.

'War an Outrage.'

"It is high time to realize that mistrust is fraught with more dangers than confidence," De Beaumont said. "There is no responsible chief of state today who does not know that, in the age of the hydrogen bomb, war is an outrage which solves nothing and which would destroy the two opposing camps with complete impartiality.

"Thus a tragic situation has arisen in which two worlds stand confronting each other, confined in their armor, waiting for some magic wand to release them."

The Assembly gathered today with 17 speakers still to be heard in the general policy debate. U.N. officials figured they would be finished by Wednesday, and that the main Political Committee could organize for the detailed debates on disarmament before the end of the week.

The 15-nation Steering Committee will meet tomorrow to act on Wishinsky's demand that his disarmament proposals should be considered as a new item on the agenda.

FRIEND OF MRS. EISENHOWER STIRS SECRET SERVICE MEN

DENVER, Oct. 4 (UP) — A wealthy Denver woman who knew Mrs. Eisenhower long ago, decided the other day to ask her to tea.

The woman drove up in front of the summer White House, left the engine running in her high-priced convertible and started to scamper up the steps with an invitation in her hand.

An alert Secret Service agent intercepted her.

"May I help you?" asked the President's protector.

"Yes," said the woman, "I just want to leave this for Mamie."

"I'll deliver it for you," said the Secret Service man.

"Oh no, that's all right, I'll give it to her myself."

"I think, ma'm, you'd better let me have it."

It was only after the woman got back into her car that she realized that with the engine running, her visit to the summer White House had all the earmarks of a quick getaway.

6.09-Inch Rain in Texas.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., Oct. 4 (AP) — A tropical disturbance that began in the Gulf of Mexico blew inland at Texas's south tip this morning, dumping 6.09 inches of rain on Brownsville in six hours and kicking up rough seas and high tides. The squally patch—not of hurricane intensity—was expected to blow itself out as it pushed deeper inland.

Wilson has been Mayor of Honolulu off and on since 1920.

PASSENGERS WIN STRIKE TO STAY ON CRASHED LINER

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (UP)—A sitdown strike aboard the crippled liner Maasdam was settled today. The Holland American line announced that the 25 passengers will remain aboard the vessel until their transfer Wednesday to the U. S. Lines flagship Independence at no extra charge.

The 25 passengers had vowed to remain on board until the ship sailed for Europe. They had refused, because of economy reasons, to go ashore when the liner returned to its Hoboken dock after it had smashed its bow in a collision Saturday.

The company will recompense the 25 strikers for rail fares to Frankfort, Germany, from Genoa, Italy, where the Independence will dock. The Maasdam was to have docked at Le Havre, France.

A group of 60 "hardship" passengers will be flown to Europe tomorrow. Others of the original 523 aboard the Maasdam will be taken aboard the Queen Mary and Gripsholm sailing Saturday and more than 100 on the Ryndam sailing Monday.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Allotments of $10,000,000 in federal funds to assist new school construction in 95 communities crowded by federal activities were announced yesterday by the Office of Education.

Allotments in Illinois total $110,964 and in Missouri $7004, none in the St. Louis area.

The allotments complete the disbursement of $55,000,000 appropriated by the last session of Congress for the federal aid program. The other allotments were announced last Thursday.

2 U.S. BROTHERS ASK FOR ASYLUM IN EAST GERMANY

Missing for Month From West Berlin, They Show Up at Press Conference.

BERLIN, Oct. 4 (AP) — Two American brothers who vanished mysteriously from West Berlin early last month presented themselves at a Communist press conference today and said they had asked for political asylum in East Germany.

The men are William Henry Starr, 30 years old, an electrician, and James Starr, 31, an oil worker, both formerly of Westville, N.J. They had been living in Germany more than a year and a half.

The brothers were presented at a specially-called press conference in East Berlin which provided the first indication of their whereabouts since West Berliners reported they saw an East German highway patrol arrest them Sept. 7 on the autobahn.

William Starr, speaking for the pair, told correspondents they defected because they "disagreed with the ruling clique in the United States" and its policy.

"If we had dared to say this in West Berlin, we would have been arrested and brought back to the United States to face trial there," he said. "We love America and the American people and will not return as long as America is governed by this clique."

He spoke in English and his remarks were translated into German by a woman interpreter.

East German Government Press Chief Fritz Beyling cut short questions from newspaper men, claiming the press conference had been called for other matters. Beyling earlier had blasted the London nine-power conference and alleged American espionage activities in East Germany.

American officials could furnish little information about the past history of the Starrs or their activities since they arrived in Germany Feb. 2, 1953.

At the time of their reported "arrest" they were driving an automobile they had rented from a West Berlin dealer.

Two days later, a mysterious phone call advised the dealer the car would be found parked on a West Berlin street and that the firm could keep the 200 marks ($48) left as a deposit. The dealer recovered the car.

American authorities made several inquiries to the Russians in East Berlin on the whereabouts of the brothers but got no answer.

The brothers appeared at the press conference neatly attired in dark suits. Western newspaper men noted they appeared pale, but otherwise in apparent good health.

An East German official, Deputy Cabinet Minister Albert Norden, reported the brothers told Soviet zone authorities that United States diplomats had entered the Big Four conference in Berlin last winter with intentions of wrecking it.

He was 80 years old. Dr. Schneider, a professor emeritus at Wesleyan University, developed the Schneider physical fitness index first used to determine a pilot's adaptability to the strains of flying.

6 Billions in U.S. Military Aid Still Due Europe, General Says

Most of It, Including Arms for 12 German Divisions, Is Reported to Be in the 'Pipeline.'

CAMP LES LOGES, France, Oct. 4 (AP)—Gen. Orval R. Cook, deputy United States commander in Europe, announced today nearly six billion dollars of American military assistance is to be poured into Europe, much of it in the next two years.

This is the balance of about 12 billion dollars, he said, which has been programmed by the United States since 1949 for aid in European defense, "more than half of which has been delivered."

Cook made his statement to news correspondents in the newly built headquarters camp in the forest of St. Germain, 15 miles northwest of Paris.

Much of the billions still due, he said, is already in the "pipeline" in the form of fighting goods being manufactured either in the United States or on orders placed in Allied countries in Europe for delivery to North Atlantic Treaty countries.

Only yesterday the nine-power London conference reached agreement for arming of West Germany under the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and an enlarged Brussels alliance.

Cook said equipment for the 12 new divisions which Germany is expected to add to the Western defense line is already largely assembled. Some of it is in Europe in the stockpiles of the United States Army and Air Force, the General said in reply to questions, and most of the balance is on the Atlantic seaboard awaiting shipment.

"None will be turned over (to West Germany) until there is agreement among the Allied nations, and we get authority to turn it over," the General told the news conference.

"In the past three years under the mutual defense program, we have contracted with western European industry and suppliers for more than $3,250,000,000 worth of supplies and equipment—$2,500,000,000 in defense equipment to strengthen the armed forces of our allies, and $750,000,000 in supplies for our own troops, the latter including substantial quantities of foodstuff for our forces.

"Of the $2,500,000,000 of orders we have placed for ammunition, aircraft, ships, electronic equipment, combat vehicles and other defense materials for our allies since July 1, 1951, we have received delivery on about $617,000,000, about one-fourth of what we have ordered."

Cook pointed to charts showing the distribution of the aid and orders among both NATO countries and others, such as Yugoslavia, Spain and Switzerland, and added, "I am convinced that our off-shore procurement program is achieving the purposes for which it was intended."

These he listed as providing essential defense items, building up European defense production, and supplying dollars to European treasuries.

PAKISTAN SAYS PARLEYS ON KASHMIR HAVE FAILED

KARACHI, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Pakistan government today issued a white paper on the dispute over Kashmir, announcing failure of direct talks between Indian Prime Minister Nehru and Pakistan's Prime Minister Ali.

Ali, in his last letter to Nehru, said "I cannot help feeling a wholly extraneous issue, that of United States military aid, has been put forward as yet another reason for declining to hold an impartial plebiscite and denying the people of Kashmir the right of self-determination."

He indicated the dispute would revert to the United Nations Security Council, which has tried to arrange a vote in the predominantly Moslem territory between Moslem Pakistan and Hindu India.

CARR RESIGNS AS DIRECTOR OF M'CARTHY STAFF

Will Take Job With Eastern Transport Firm — Praised by Chairman.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, announced today the resignation of Francis P. Carr as executive director of his Senate Investigating subcommittee staff, effective Oct. 31.

A formal announcement said McCarthy accepted the resignation and "highly praised Mr. Carr's work . . . especially in the investigations of the Government Printing Office, Fort-Monmouth, and the Communist infiltration of defense installations."

Carr, who was one of the principals in the McCarthy-Army hearings, will take an administrative position with Associated Transport Inc., a trucking company, with headquarters in New York City.

Carr became executive director of the subcommittee, at an $11,000-a-year salary, on July 16, 1953, after 11 years with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Army named him, along with McCarthy and former subcommittee counsel Roy M. Cohn, as principals in its charges that improper pressures had been brought in behalf of Pvt. G. David Schine, a former subcommittee consultant.

During the hearings on the controversy between McCarthy and his top aids and top army officials, the subcommittee which conducted the investigation dismissed Carr as a principal by unanimous vote.

Cohn resigned as chief counsel of the subcommittee on July 19, several weeks after the hearings were concluded and 12 days before the issuance of majority and minority subcommittee reports critical of him.

SENATORS CALL 12 IN INQUIRY INTO ALLEGED POWELL GAMING

Capehart Says Former FHA Official Himself Will Be Witness — Once Invoked 5th Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (UP)—Senate investigators today called 12 witnesses to testify at a public hearing tomorrow on alleged gambling activities of Clyde L. Powell, ousted assistant commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration.

Senator Homer E. Capehart (Rep.), Indiana, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, said one of the witnesses would be Powell himself. Powell twice previously invoked the Fifth Amendment and refused to testify on grounds of possible self-incrimination.

Powell, who was ousted from his federal post earlier this year, has been a principal target of the committee's months-long investigation of multi-million dollar "windfall profits" reaped by builders of Government-insured apartment houses and other scandals in the FHA.

Payment to De Grazia.

Capehart told reporters that the committee has obtained evidence from Powell's bank records that in 1950 he paid $8700 to Rocco De Grazia of Chicago. Capehart said De Grazia was "reputed to own a gambling establishment in Melrose Park, Chicago."

Capehart said the committee wants to question De Grazia, too, but has been unable tto find him. De Grazia's wife, who has told the committee she doesn't know where her husband is, was called as a witness tomorrow.

Also scheduled to testify is an official of the Riggs National Bank here, to identify Powell's bank records.

Capehart said he plans four days of hearings here this week which he hopes will wind up the committee's public sessions in housing scandals. He said private investigations will continue, however, probably to the end of the year.

Biggest U.S. Scandal.

Capehart said hearings held recently in six cities across the country have exposed "the biggest scandal in American history, participated in by more people and involving more money."

He said he did not think the committee had held a single hearing where it did not find "some bribery" of FHA officials.

"The American people were fleeced out of goodness knows how many millions on home repair and modernization rackets," he said. Builders also made millions on "windfall" mortgages, he said.

FHA administrators could have stopped the irregularities if they wanted to, Capehart said, but instead, FHA "taught and encouraged laxness." He said FHA officials were "always looking in the opposite direction" when there was wrongdoing.

HOTEL CHASE SUES TO BAR ENTERTAINER STRIKE ACTION

Suit for a temporary injunction prohibiting Don Hart, representative of the American Guild of Variety Artists, from continuing strike action against Hotel Chase was filed in circuit court today by the hotel.

The suit, which also requests $250,000 damages from Hart, asks that he be restrained from continuing to prevent performers from acting in floor shows at the hotel, in a contract dispute. An order directing Hart to show cause tomorrow why a temporary injunction should not be put in effect was issued by Circuit Judge William H. Killoren.

Floor shows at the Chase were halted last Thursday night after Hart and the hotel management failed to reach an agreement on a demand the hotel enter into a contract providing accident insurance for performers.

COOLER WEATHER EXPECTED AFTER OCT. 3 HEAT RECORD

St. Louisans could look forward today to cooler weather after suffering through an unseasonable hot spell which sent the mercury to 91.5 degrees yesterday, a record for the day and the second hottest for this late in the year. The only higher reading was 92.8 on Oct. 7, 1939.

The July in October weather, caused by warm air from the southwest, was due to end with the influx of a cold mass from Canada. Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said the low tonight should be about 60, and the high tomorrow near 70.

Yesterday's heat was general over the state and the Midwest. Chicago recorded 91 degrees, Kansas City had 93 and Springfield, Mo., 88. Nationally, the maximum high was 100 at Salina, Kan., and the low maximum was 26 at Cutbank, Mont., where it snowed.

It looks as if summer in St. Louis mght be over for a while, Wahlgren conceded, but he added this warning: "Remember that Indian Summer is due in late October, and you never can tell."

ARRESTING GEAR AT LAMBERT FIELD SAVES JET FIGHTER

An arresting gear system for emergency landings, in use at Lambert-St. Louis Field only since Aug. 20, paid for itself yesterday the first time it was called upon by saving a jet fighter whose landing gear had failed on a test flight.

The pilot, George Mills, of 4315 Boswell avenue, Overland, was the one who had made a demonstration landing in the presence of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker and other officials just after the system was installed.

It works like the arresting gear on an aircraft carrier. A tail hook on the plane catches a cable that extends a few inches above the runway and is fastened to a drum on each side. The cable comes out under increasing tension, and the plane is stopped within a few hundred feet.

The plane was a Navy fighter, the F3H Demon, which is being made by McDonnell Aircraft Corp. The system cost about $300,000; the cost of the F3H has not been announced, but it is more than that.

MAN WHO FILED CANCER SUIT AGAINST TOBACCO FIRM DIES

Funeral services for Ira C. Lowe, who last June filed a $500,000 damage suit alleging cigarette smoking caused his lung cancer, will be tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. at the C. Hoffmeister undertaking establishment, 7814 South Broadway, with burial in National Cemetery at Jefferson Barracks.

Mr. Lowe, 39 years old, died Saturday at his home, 2624A Louisiana avenue. He was an assembler for an equipment firm. His suit, directed against the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., and the operator of a market, alleged that he had smoked from 1930 to 1952 because advertising claims made him confident cigarettes were not harmful.

Mr. Lowe was a veteran of World War II. Surviving are his wife, Ida May, and a daughter, Miss Carol Jane Lowe.

SIX ARRESTED IN EMERSON PLANT STRIKE RELEASED

Five strikers at the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co. and a CIO union officer, who were arrested last Wednesday for blocking a railroad spur leading into the plant, were released from bond today when the Wabash Railroad failed to prefer a charge against them at Clayton.

Those arrested and now released without charges are: August Bernsen, international representative of the CIO Electrical Workers; Joseph Russo, 3433 Wyoming street; Eugene Eaves, 5070 Waterman boulevard; John Edwards, 5 Chateau drive, Florissant; Ross L. Russell, 2404 McNair avenue, and Robert L. Ryan, 2707 Link road, St. Louis county. Bonds of $500 each had been posted for appearance today.

Final day for new registrations before the Nov. 2 general election will be next Saturday, when the offices will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. New registrations must be made by personal visit to the offices. Transfers of address may be made in person or by mail, with the old and new addresses and the signature of the registrant included with mail notifications.

AIR RAID SIRENS GIVE OUT EXTRA GROWL'S WORTH

St. Louisans got an extra growl's worth today in the monthly test of the city's air raid sirens.

The 127 sirens were to be sounded for only 6 to 8 seconds in what Civil Defense officials call a "growl test" but something went wrong when the stop signal was dialed.

Instead of stopping, the sirens continued with their low but far-reaching sound for another several seconds. A second turn of the dial was necessary to silence the sirens.

University City tested its nine sirens at the same time. Residents of that community got only a simple growl—nothing more.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TO HEAR O'DWYER ON REDS OCT. 14

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Representative Hillings (Rep.) California, said last night that William O'Dwyer, former New York Mayor and United States Ambassador to Mexico, will testify before a Congressional subcommittee in Los Angeles Oct. 14-15 to tell about Communist activities in Latin America.

Hillings said in an interview that the subcommittee feels that O'Dwyer "can make a real contribution to our efforts at exploring Soviet penetration in this hemisphere."

Hanging over O'Dwyer is a federal income tax claim of $9699. On Sept. 13 a suit filed on his behalf blamed "political and other ulterior considerations" for the tax claim. O'Dwyer has demanded a trial on the alleged tax liability and has promised to "be there to answer when they bring it to court." He is now practicing law in Mexico City.

DONNELLY ASKS GOV. FINE ABOUT PRISON SURVEY

He Seeks Evaluation by Pennsylvania Official on Study After Riots There.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 4—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly said today he has written to Gov. John S. Fine of Pennsylvania, seeking advice on how to proceed with the planned survey of operations at the riot-torn Missouri Penitentiary.

Donnelly told reporters he was interested in the scope and cost of a similar survey made in Pennsylvania last year following a series of prison riots in that state.

The Missouri Governor also wanted Fine's evaluation of the study, conducted by a group of nationally-known authorities.

A suggestion that Donnelly inquire into the Pennsylvania prison survey was made by Edward R. Cass, general secretary of the American Prison Association, which rejected Donnelly's request that it make the study. The organization said it lacked sufficient staff and funds for such a project.

Yesterday, for the first time since the riot of Sept. 22, virtually all the inmates of the Missouri prison were allowed out on the institution's recreation grounds.

A complete suspension of privileges was ordered by prison officials following the outbreak, which resulted in the death of four convicts, injury to 34 inmates and guards and damage of $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Mrs. Myrtle Lester of St. Joseph, Mo., mother of one of the six convicts charged with murder as a result of the riot, said today she had warned the Federal Bureau of Investigation of impending trouble at the prison.

She said her son, Melvin Laster, told her when she visited him in the prison recently that she should notify the FBI of conditions there, saying he was in a cell in death row without a bed or other furniture.

She said she wrote to the FBI and was visited by agents. Her son, who is serving a 12-year robbery sentence, is one of five inmates accused of killing Walter Lee Donnell, a fellow convict.

HONDURAS CLOSES BORDER

GUATEMALA CITY, Oct. 4 (AP) — Neighboring Honduras closed the border to foreigners today, denying visas until further notice. The order, from the foreign ministry, evidently was issued in connection with elections of Oct. 10 in Honduras.

Brilliant Court Being Prepared For Veiled Prophet and Queen

Dominant Colors for Tomorrow Night's Ball Will Be Lacquer Red and Gold.

A crew of decorators was busy at Convention Hall of Kiel Auditorium today transforming it into a brilliant Court of Love and Beauty for the Veiled Prophet ball tomorrow night, when a new Queen will be crowned.

Dominant colors this year will be lacquer red and gold. At the north end there will be a large peristyle, a colonnade of tall and simple golden columns hung with drapery of red. Two golden throne chairs will be placed at the center, one for the Prophet and one for the Queen—first the present Queen and later for her successor.

Broad terraces descending from the throne area will have curving balustrades of gold and white, and will be covered with ivory-colored cloth sewn with gold metallic thread. On each side there will be chairs for the Maids of Honor, the Ladies of Honor, and the Krewe.

Balcony for Orchestra.

At the south end of the ballroom there will be a balcony for a 60-piece orchestra, and beneath it an elaborate, gold-curtained entrance in which the principal figures in the traditional ceremony will make their first appearance as the curtains part.

Starting at 7:45 p.m., the oarchestra will play for an hour as more than 10,000 participants and guests arrive and take their places on the main floor and in the galleries. The program will begin with the introduction to the third act of Wagner's Lohengrin, and include a medley of tunes by Sigmund Romberg, many of them from old favorites at the Municipal Opera, which is being saluted in the Veiled Prophet festivities this year.

For the successive stages of the coronation ceremony the music will be as follows:

Parade Wednesday Night.

The Veiled Prophet parade will be Wednesday night, weather permitting, starting at Kingshighway and Lindell boulevard at 7:05 p.m. Twenty floats will depict Municipal Opera favorites, and as an innovation this year 10 of them will have their own recorded music.

Each will have its own electrical generator, and those especially equipped for recordings will have a loud speaker on each side. The music will supplement that of ten 14-man bands in the parade. Each band will play tunes suitable for the float just ahead and behind.

The floats with recordings will be the title float, The Chocolate Soldier, The Desert Song, The New Moon, The Prince of Pilsen, The Great Waltz, Rose Marie, The Wizard of Oz, Annie Get Your Gun, and Oklahoma.

Post-Dispatch Station KSD-TV will televise the ball from 9 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. and feed the final 15 minutes to the NBC-TV national network. Station KSD will broadcast from the ball at the same time, and the Queen will be interviewed on the air at 11:10 p.m. in her suite at Hotel Jefferson.

The night of the parade, KSD-TV will televise it, starting at 9 p.m. KSD will broadcast a description of the floats as they leave the Prophet's Den at 6:15 p.m.

BODY OF ST. LOUISAN LOST IN JAPAN TYPHOON IS FOUND

Divers yesterday recovered the body of Cpl. Clarence L. Davis, one of two St. Louisans among 1168 persons listed as lost in the sinking Sept. 26 of the ferry Toya Maru in a typhoon off Japan.

Japanese divers found the body in Hakodate bay. Davis, a Negro, 27 years old, lived at 1836 O'Fallon street. Surviving are his wife and two young daughters.

The other St. Louisan missing in the sinking of the ferry is Pfc. Teddy D. Graham, 3509 Palm street.

CROSS BURNED AT SCHOOL

Police were summoned to Roosevelt High School, 3220 Hartford street, Saturday midnight after a cross had been burned on the school lawn.

Officers, who described the incident as a prank, said the wood cross was four by three feet and apparently had been covered with cloth and paper, which was ignited.

ALDERMAN PROPOSES MORE TRUCK ROUTES

Not Enough North-South Links in Bill, Everett J. Taylor Says.

Amendment of a bill designating truck routes in the city was proposed today by Alderman Everett J. Taylor, who said the bill does not include enough north-south routes.

Taylor, Twenty-seventh Ward Democrat and chairman of the aldermanic traffic committtee, suggested the change after a City Hall conference attended by representatives of the local truck industry.

Also at the meeting were Traffic Commissioner Charles G. Gonter, Director of Streets and Sewers Frank Kriz and Chamber of Commerce representatives.

Taylor said he agreed with the trucking firms' position that the proposed bill would cause them heavy expenses, if passed, unless provision were made for a series of north-south links.

After a discussion with Kriz and Gonter on what routes should be added to the bill, an amendment will be proposed, Taylor stated. He said he would ask the Board of Aldermen to defer action on the bill Friday to give the traffic committee time to consider the changes suggested.

As now proposed, 12 routes are designated to which heavy vehicles would be restricted for city travel.

FOUR YOUNG MEN STABBED AND BEATEN IN STREET FIGHT

Four young men were stabbed and beaten in a fight at Ninth street and Ann avenue Saturday midnight.

Fred Bowman, 16 years old, 1821 South Fourteenth street, and Jesse French Jr., 20, 1754 Mississippi avenue, are in City Hospital with stab wounds in their chests. Samuel McRoy Jr., 22, 329 Russell boulevard, and Cyril Schrage, Jr., 18, of 1821 South Fourteenth street, were treated for cuts. All were booked as suspected of assault.

French, Bowman and Schrage told police they were driving at Ninth street and Ann avenue when five youths on the corner shouted insults at them. They stopped and the melee followed. McRoy said he was passing the intersection and was attacked by the fighters.

LOOPHOLE IS LEFT FOR GERMAN-BUILT ATOM SUBMARINE

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP)—The nine-power conference made a change in its description of atomic weapons that might some day enable Germany to produce an atomic-powered submarine.

Its list left out a provision that would bar the Germans from making more than 500 grams (about 1.1 pounds) of nuclear fuel a year. It defines atomic weapons, which Germany cannot produce, as those "capable of mass destruction, mass injury or mass poisoning" by explosion or any other "uncontrolled" means.

America's new atomic submarine uses nuclear fuel, but in a controlled power system designed not to explode.

Yesterday's agreement barred Germany from making any submarines of more than 350 tons. Nor can it make any warships propelled by anything but steam, diesel oil, gasoline, gas turbine or jet engines. These prohibitions can be changed in the future, if enough of the European Allies agree.

2 Killed in Plane Crash.

RED AGENT TELLS WHERE HE GOT FRENCH SECRETS

Andre Baranes Formally Charged With Endangering Security of State.

PARIS, Oct. 4 (AP)—Police informants say the route French defense secrets traveled to the Communists is coming to light as a result of the arrest of Red journalist Andre Baranes.

Nabbed in eastern France Saturday as he tried to flee on a woman's bicycle to Switzerland, Baranes was charged formally yesterday with endangering the security of the state.

Police sources said he had confessed to being the chief middleman in the transmission to the Communists of secret information on meetings of the National Defense Council.

Problem for Premier.

Though the leaks began during the government of former Premier Laniel, the furor has posed grave new problems for goes before the special session of the National Assmbly Thursday on his negotiations on German rearmament in London last week.

Police today searched the offices of Baranes' employer, the newspaper Liberation, and the home of the paper's managing editor, Emanuel d'Astier de la Vigerie, who is a deputy in the French National Assembly from the pro-Communist Progressive party.

Neither the purpose nor the result of the searches was revealed.

The acting boss of the French Communist party, Jacques Duclos, has been summoned to appear Wednesday before the military magistrate investigating the loss of French defense secrets to the reds.

Duclos is the party's No. 2 man, but actually the leader in the continuing absence in ill health of Maurice Thorez. The military magistrate, Maj. Jean de Resseguier, who acts as a one-man grand jury under French law, questioned Pierre Heni Teitgen, former vice premier, today.

Teitgen served in the cabinet of ex-Premier Laniel. Laniel and Edmond Barrachin, Laniel's minister of state for constitutional reforms, are to testify tomorrow.

Asylum Granted.

Andre Hugues, a Radical Socialist member of the National Assembly who granted asylum to Baranes in his country home near Neves last week, also will be called before the investigating magistrate, police said.

Hugues said he sheltered Baranes after the latter told him his life was threatened. Baranes at that time had been questioned once by the magistrate and freed. The warrant for his arrest was issued last Friday.

Two high employes of the Defense Ministry, Rene Turpin and Roger LaBrusse, were arrested Thursday on charges of giving secret information to non-qualified persons. The ministry's secretary general, Jean Mons, was suspended—but not jailed—on suspicion of endangering the state security through negligence.

Turpin was chief of Mons's personal secretariat and La Brusse was in charge of "national protection" at the ministry.

The police informants said Baranes, during 15 hours of questioning by four French counter-espionage agents, gave this account:

LaBrusse dictated the secret information directly to him, or sometimes passed it by intermediaries who have not been identified.

Baranes never met Turpin and had no contact with him. Police said Turpin had admited being the original source of the leaks but claimed he had no direct connection with Baranes.

Relay of Secrets.

Baranes relayed the secrets to the French Communist party command. He also gave information to Chief Police Inspector Jean Dides, but only after the Communist party had altered it. The Reds new Baranes was passing the altered information to Dides.

The scandal broke into the open two weeks ago when Dides was suspended after counter-intelligence agents found in his possession a report of a secret Defense Council meeting. Dides said he got the paper—information he was not supposed to have—from Baranes.

The charge against Baranes was filed by Maj. Jean de Resseguier, a military magistrate investigating the scandal. If convicted, the journalist faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a fine of 4,800,000 francs ($13,713).

NATO OPENS $36,000,000 HEAQUARTERS IN GERMANY

MUENCHEN - GLADBACH, Germany, Oct. 4 (AP)—The flags of four nations—Britain, Belgium, The Netherlands and Canada—were hoisted near here today to signal the opening of a new $36,000,000 northern headquarters for North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

In a forest outside this town, west of the Rhine and near the Dutch frontier, a sprawling building houses three of the North Atlantic alliance's top commanders and their staffs. In a small, new town around the building, some 9000 persons, including 2000 Germans, will live and rear their families.

The new headquarters replaces scattered and inconvenient posts in several Westphalian towns chosen in 1945 for occupation purposes.

PICCARD INVITES LEAN SCIENTISTS TO GO ON SEA DIVE

CASTELLAMMARE, Italy, Oct. 4 (AP) — Wanted: A few skinny scientists who would like to see the bottom of the sea with Belgian Prof. Auguste Piccard in his bathyscafe diving box this month.

The lean professor says there is little space in the observation bubble of the steel diving box in which he and his son Jacques a year ago descended 10,339 feet off the island of Ponza.

Back to try it again, the 70-year-old Piccard said "this time we do not propose to go too far —and we are not trying to beat any records." He said he and his son have installed powerful lights.

"We propose to make observations," he said, "and to film the depths of the sea. Professors and scientists who will be sent to us by the Swiss National Fund and the Italian Scientific Council will be allowed to go down with us—on condition that their girth is not too great. They will be able to make observations with the aid of precision instruments which we are now testing."

TEMPLE ISRAEL, METHODIST CHURCH ROBBED; LOSS $25

Burglars caused $25 damage forcing their way into Temple Israel, Saturday night, but had less trouble breaking into St. John's Methodist Church, police reported today. The church and the temple are on opposite sides of Washington boulevard at Kingshighway.

At Temple Israel the thieves broke a rear window, attempted to cut a door and then forced a second inner door to reach three lockers, which yielded $10.

At St. John's Church, entrance was through a side window, and loot was $15 in postage stamps.

1,041,033 transatlantic travelers from 1946 to July this year preferred Cunard size, style, and luxury! That's how many people crossed in the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, by far the largest superliners afloat. And the figure doesn't include voyagers who enjoyed Cunard cuisine and service in nine other famous Cunarders. As proof that this trend continues: the Queen Elizabeth alone carried more passengers than any other ship afloat during the year ending July 1, 1954.

9 NATIONS SIGN LONDON TREATY TO ARM GERMANY

vaged" and that now there is "the tremendous asset not present in the EDC—the generous committal of the United Kingdom (Great Britain) to defense of the continent."

Premier Mendes-France promised to seek French ratification of the agreement. He had told the conferees that he would make the greatest effort to obtain parliamentary action at Paris "as quickly as possible," saying: "It is the desire of the French government to make up for the time that has been lost." He looked pale and ill after a three-day attack of influenza.

Have Built Well, Eden Says.

"We have built well for the future of Europe," said British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, the organizer of the conference.

West German Chancellor Adenauer said the decisions reached at the parley will be "satisfactory to the German people here and on the other side of the Iron Curtain."

Much of the success of the London conference was credited to Eden. Tributes to the British Secretary from all quarters have been generous and genuine. There was also Secretary Eden's initiative in hitting upon revision of the Brussels Treaty as the way out of a serious dilemma. British organizational and technical work smoothed away obstacles during six days of intensive negotiations.

The schedule now calls for three weeks of work by the experts on each of the general agreements in principle signed yesterday.

At Bonn, for example, the staffs of the Allied High Commissions will go to work with West German officials on questions of sovereignty.

Big 4 to Meet Oct. 20.

The Big Four—Dulles, Eden, Mendes-France and Adenauer—will meet in Paris, Oct. 20 to review their aids' work on ending the occupation. The other five ministers will join them next day to take up the drafts of the instruments on extension of the Brussels Alliance and arms control.

On the following day, the NATO council of ministers will assemble to consider the entry of West Germany as their fifteenth partner and also to discuss the new powers to be given to the supreme Allied commander over national armies.

Mendes-France and Adenauer also pressed ahead with plans for a conference between their governments on the future of the Saar valley, German before World War II and now tied economically to France. The French want the coal-steel area controlled by the Brussels group. The Germans want the 15-nation council of Europe to supervise it.

The French Parliament has said an acceptable settlement must be reached before it will approve German rearmament. Mendes-France raised the issue at the London conference but agreed to work it out in direct negotiations with the Germans.

The main hurdle which had to be overcome at the London conference was the question of arms control. On this point, concessions made by Chancellor Adenauer to meet the demands of the French seem to have been the key to the compromise which was reached.

Adenauer agreed, first of all, to a list of weapons which will not be manufactured by West Germany, which will nevertheless be free to produce artillery, tanks and jet fighter planes. Forbidden will be atomic, chemical and bacteriological weapons, naval vessels of any considerable size, mines and bombing planes.

Can be Altered by Council.

The French, on the other hand, agreed that this list can be altered by a two-thirds vote of the new Brussels Treaty council which is to be formed to supervise arms control on the continent of Europe.

On the question of West German sovereignty, the three occupying powers, the United States, Britain and France, issued in the "final act" a strong and unequivocal declaration of intent to "abolish the Allied High Commissions," restore West German sovereignty except in cases where Allied rights have to be maintained—as in West Berlin—and, in the meantime, "to act forthwith in accordance with the spirit of this policy."

By the Associated Press.

Mendes-France was reported "four-fifths sure" the French Chamber of Deputies would approve the sweeping new plan to rearm West Germany. One high French source said the Premier would stake his government's life on the outcome by making the Assembly vote an issue of confidence, something he refused to do for EDC.

Adenauer scheduled a report to his Cabinet today and to Parliament tomorrow. None of the Parliaments can act, however, until experts incorporate the London agreements into treaties for signing, probably late this month.

In the legislatures of the other seven conference nations—Britain, the United States, Canada, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—the agreements are expected to have smooth sailing.

Similar approval is anticipated from the other six NATO members. Norway, Denmark, Turkey, Greece, Iceland and Portugal.

Known as "The London Act," the accord alters the balance of power in Europe and brings Germany into alliance with America and other traditional enemies for the first time in modern history. Summarized, its provisions follow:

1. The United States, Britain and France agree to end the occupation of West Germany as "quickly as possible." In a formal declaration of intent to do so the three ministers said they wanted free and democratic West Germany "on a footing of equality" in order to "liquidate the past and to prepare for the future."

2. The nine nations agreed to "strengthen and extend" the five-power Brussels Alliance by associating West Germany and Italy, both former enemies, as equal members. The original five are Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourgh, who signed the treaty in 1948.

Will Watch Germany.

This enlarged alliance will share with NATO the job of watching over West German rearmament. To do so, it will establish an armaments agency. The agency will decide the maximum military strength allowable for any continental member. It will inspect arms plants, watch over import and export of controlled arms, and examine American and Canadian military aid allocations to members.

NATO will continue to decide the minimum military contributions that members should make to the common defense scheme.

Britain's arms industries will not be subject to controls. Its allies recognized its special position as an island power with a need for arms and troops to protect its worldwide empire.

3. The United States, Britain and Canada promised to keep troops in Europe so long as "a threat to the area exists." Britain went further than its North American partners by promising to maintain four divisions and a tactical air force in Europe indefinitely.

4. The eight NATO members at the conference agreed to recommend to the NATO council that West Germany be admitted "forthwith." Other NATO members are Norway, Denmark, Turkey, Greece, Iceland and Portugal. All other powers were sure to approve. A unanimous vote is necessary.

The conferees also decided to recommend that NATO's "machinery be reinforced." Under the plan, American Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, the NATO commander, would be given more powers. He would have authority to deploy the troops of the enlarged Brussels Alliance in any way he sees fit. Also, more executive power would rest with him. For example, he could cut off the oil supplies of any defiant member nation.

The conference decided the 20-year life of NATO should be extended indefinitely. Other NATO members must agree.

Promise to Be Peaceful.

5. To help in easing the anxieties of nations it has so often overrun, West Germany promised to "resolve by peaceful means any disputes which may arise (with) . . . other states."

"Upon her accession to the North Atlantic Treaty and the Brussels Treaty, the German Federal Republic declares that she will refrain from any action inconsistent with the strictly defensive characters of the two treaties," the German government said in a formal declaration.

"In particular the German Federal Republic undertakes never to have recourse to force to achieve the reunification of Germany or the modification of the present boundaries of the German Federal Republic."

6. The United States, Britain and France made a counterpart declaration affirming that a fundamental goal of their policies is to get East and West Germany reunited peacefully. German people on both sides of the Iron Curtain dearly want their country reunited. The declaration enables Adenauer to tell his people that the London agreement does not finalize the division.

The Western Big Three reserved the right to keep troops in West Berlin, which is an island deep inside the East zone of Germany, to protect the city against attack.

"They reaffirm that they will treat any attack against Berlin from any quarter as an attack upon their forces and themselves," the three-power statement said.

7. The United States, Britain and France warned that any partner in the London pact which violates any phase of the agreement will forfeit its "rights to any guarantee and any military assistance provided for in the north Atlantic treaty."

8. The nine ministers agreed that West Germany may put 500,000 men under arms.

The Germans will raise six infantry, four armored and two motorized divisions. They will build up a tactical air force of about 1000 medium bombers and fighters to support ground troops. They also will develop a navy of small ships, big enough only to patrol the free German coast.

struction industry in August 1951 that such tie-ins were one of the abuses in the industry which had caused skyrocketing costs.

General contractors were inclined to go along with companies favored by union bosses, it was reported, because they would be assigned the best craftsmen in the union. Companies not favored by union bosses were more apt to be plagued with jurisdictional strikes, featherbedding, slowdowns and other troubles, it was found.

As a result of the newspaper's investigations, Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd in February 1953, directed a circuit court grand jury investigation of the reported financial interest of steamfitters' boss Lawrence L. Callanan in the J. E. Barry Co., a heating firm.

Both Callanan and Barry denied there was a partnership and the inquiry reached no conclusion. Since then Callanan was convicted of labor racketeering in United States District Court and has appealed a 12-year sentence.

MENDES-FRANCE CALLS ASSEMBLY ON ARMS PLAN

the London conference, a hint that some of his bitter home opponents are still not disarmed came from Pierre Pflimlin, a leader of the Popular Republican Movement. Pflimlin's party, a chiefly Catholic group, served as the hard core for the European army plan for German rearmament.

Pflimlin, former Minister of Agriculture, in a speech at Arras, declared:

"It's still not possible today to tell whether the substitute European system worked out at London (as a replacement for the torpedoed European Defense Community) is anything but a facade. We'll judge in all objectivity when the contents of the agreement are better known."

In powerful support from the military, Marshal Alphonse Juin, the highest-ranking member of the French armed forces, told an audience in Lille that German participation in the Western defense was "absolutely indispensable" and that "things seem to be working out very happily inside the supple and enlarged framework which is most desirable."

Juin was one of the strongest opponents of the EDC system for German rearmament. The "enlarged" framework clearly referred to British participation in the task of balancing German might on the continent. The "supple" framework evidently referred to the fewer relinquishments of French sovereignty to which Marshal Juin objected in the EDC.

Some of the resistance to the Premier was expressed last week by an article in a French provincial newspaper, Populaire Centre. It said in part:

"We won't be reassured so long as Pierre Mendes-France continues to be supported by circles which persist in expecting from him exactly the contrary of the public statements he keeps on making with such vigor.

"He was pushed to power by a clique of neutralists who, after having counted on him to bury the European (Defense) Community, count on him now to lead us through a new series of refusals to accept a security pact a la Molotov, that is to say, a Russian sponsorship of France.

"How is it that the champions of a Russophile policy remain the most ardent supporters of Pierre Mendes-France? How is it that the Communists get so little excited about his anti-Communist declarations? That's why we are waiting to see words translated into acts."

McCarthy on TV Refuses to Say In Full How He Spent Funds

Asserts He Declined to Go Before Hennings Subcommittee Because It Was 'Dishonest.'

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—Senators who had hopes that they might find out where Senator Joseph R. McCarthy obtained his money to "fight Communism," and what he did with it after he got it were faced today with the certain prospect of disappointment.

The Wisconsin Republican, who faces "trial" Nov. 8 on Senate censure charges, said last night that he would not give a full account of the money he received from contributors. He added that the Internal Revenue Bureau had checked his accounts "dollar for dollar and penny for penny," and apparently was satisfied.

Appearing on a nation-wide telecast of the NBC program "Meet the Press," McCarthy was questioned about his refusal to appear before a Senate Investigating subcommittee, once headed by Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. of Missouri, which sought during 1951 and 1952 to question him about his financial operations, including the disposion of funds contributed to him to "fight Communism."

He said he would explain what he could about his financial operations if he were allowed 30 seconds. Asked why he was willing to explain them on a television show but would no do so under oath before a Senate committee, the Senator replied that the Hennings committee was a "dishonest committee' and that he had refused to go before it and "dignify" it.

Senator McCarthy said that he had used all contributions sent to him for combatting Communism in that fight and that he personally had "gone broke" financing his self-styled anti-Red campaign. As for the censure charges he faces, Senator McCarthy said that he "wouldn't be in this trouble if I hadn't started this Communist fight."

Senator McCarthy became chairman of the permanent investating subcommittee in January 1953. His appropriations to carry him through January 1955 have totaled approximately $350,000.

As to whether the Senate will vote to censure him, as has been recommended by a six-member bipartisan committee of his colleagues, McCarthy said that if the decision is based on politics the answer would be yes but that if the Senate thought about the precedent it would be establishing the answer would be no.

A lot depends, McCarthy said, on what the Democratic National Committee and President Eisenhower do with respect to the censure motion. He said that Senator Ralph E. Flanders (Rep.), Vermont, and prime mover in the drive to force a Senate vote on censuring him was "bragging" that he had a letter from President Eisenhower "commending" him for his anti-McCarthy activities.

"I don't believe him (Flanders)," McCarthy said. He added, however, that if President Eisenhower did feel he ought to be censured, it would swing some votes.

The United Press reported this morning from Pebble Beach, Calif., where Flanders is vacationing, that Flanders's comment on McCarthy's statement was "I have never bragged about anything" in connection with the McCarthy censure move, and he denied that he had received a letter of "commendation" from President Eisenhower.

Flanders added: "In response to a reporter's question last March, I said I had received a brief note of approval for my speech. I had sought no support from the White House and I bragged of no support because I had not sought it."

Flanders said he did not divulge the text of Mr. Eisenhower's note because he didn't feel he should quote the President without authorization.

"However," he said, "it was only a brief note—just two or three sentences." Flanders added that he has "no way of knowing whether the White House has approved or disapproved of what I've said since because I haven't heard from the President."

If the Senate votes to censure him, McCarthy said, it will be voting that Senators should not fight "Communists or treason."

The Senator, who through his attorney, Edward B. Williams, last Thursday sharply attacked the findings of the Watkins committee which recommended his censure, said last night that he had not "said a word" about the Watkins committee report.

Under questioning he said that he had expected the committee to recommend his censure by a vote of four to two. The recommendation was unanimous. He challenged the "impartiality" of Senator Arthur V. Watkins (Rep.), Utah, who was chairman of the committee which conducted the hearings on the censure motion against him, Senator Edwin Johnson (Dem.), Colorado, Senator Sam J. Ervin (Dem.), North Carolina, and another committee member whom he did not name.

The Senator's questioners, persistently reverting back to his finances, reminded him that during the 1952 presidential campaign, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, then a Senator, was under attack by Democrats because of his having accepted about $18,000 from a group of wealthy Californians and that Nixon subsequently made a complete public accounting of how he had spent the funds.

McCarthy replied that he had no intention of making any similar accounting of his funds, adding:

"I would not give a list of the people who contributed to that (anti-Communist) fight. Anyone who even intimates that even one penny of the money in fighting Communism was used for any other purpose is grossly untruthful."

The Hennings subcommittee which raised the questions about McCarthy's financial operations in a report to the Senate in 1953, also turned over its report to the Justice and Treasury Departments. Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. said last October that his investigators could find no basis for criminal action in the report but that the Internal Revenue Service was checking McCarthy's finances. The Internal Revenue Service has not publicly reported its findings.

One of the charges on which McCarthy's censure was recommended by the Watkins committee was that he was "contemptuous, contumacious and denunciatory" of the Hennings subcommittee which sought to question him about certain of his financial dealings, including the funds he collected to "fight Communism."

Watkins Accepts Jenner's Rlues Committee Bid.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Senator Arthur V. Watkins (Rep.), Utah, has informed Senator William E. Jenner (Rep.), Indiana, that he would be happy to appear before a Senate rules subcommittee studying proposed changes in procedures for congressional investigations.

Watkins served as chairman of the select committee of three Republicans and three Democrats which issued a unanimous report a week ago recommending that the Senate censure Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisconsin, for his conduct.

Jenner wrote Watkins last week that the rules committee, of which he is chairman, would like "the benefit of your views on committee procedure" and invited him to testify at his convenience.

Watkins was away today, but an aid said he had written Jenner that he would be happy to appear. Watkins left it up to Jenner to set a date, but he suggested some time before Oct. 15 or else shortly before or after the Senate reconvenes Nov. 8 to consider the censure resolution.

PACT TO BE SIGNED TOMORROW ENDING TRIESTE DISPUTE

ROME, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Italian Government announced today the nine-year-old dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia over Trieste will end tomorrow with signature in London of a compromise agreement.

Yugoslav Vice Premier Edvard Kardelj said in Olso last night that agreement had been reached.

A spokesman for Prime Minister Mario Scelba said the settlement would be signed in London at 1 p.m. (6 a.m., St. Louis time) tomorrow, after which the Prime Minister will report to the Italian Senate and Chamber of Deputies and demand a vote of confidence.

Kardelj confirmed preliminary reports that the strategic Adriatic territory is to be divided between the two countries largely along present demarcation lines. As he described it, Italy would get the Allied-occupied Zone A and the port city of Trieste—86 square miles with a population of 300,000—and Yugoslavia would get Zone B—119 square miles with a population of 75,000. Minor frontier adjustments would be made.

DOUGLAS OF ILLINOIS BACKS VETERANS' AID

Only Old Guard Wing of G.O.P. Thinks Program Is Socialistic, He Says.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 4—Only the Old Guard wing of the G.O.P. believes that the program of veterans' benefits is socialistic, Senator Paul H. Douglas (Dem.) of Illinois said here yesterday.

Addressing the Illinois Veterans League in his campaign for re-election, Douglas quoted his Republican opponent, Joseph T. Meek, as calling provisions for various veterans' benefits "Socialism" or even "peaceful Communism."

"Does this shock you?" Douglas asked the audience of ex-service men. "It shocks me. I do not believe for a minute that any veterans' benefits are 'Socialism.' Neither does any other Democrat. Neither does any Republican except those in the Old Guard wing of the G.O.P."

Douglas cited figures showing that from 1947 to 1952, average income of veterans shot up 40 per cent, compared with 10 per cent among non-veterans. He said this was due to the education and training veterans received under the G.I. Bill of Rights. Because of this higher income these veterans pay more taxes, to the tune of an extra one billion dollars a year, he said. At this rate the 14-billion-dollar cost of the program would be paid off in 14 years, he said.

"Is that Socialism?" he asked. "The Republican candidate is like the boy who cried wolf. He cries Socialism so often when it doesn't exist that if he were to cry Socialism at the real thing no one would believe him.

"I am for free enterprise and am flatly opposed to Socialism. But we Americans are not going to be hoodwinked into opposing worthwhile programs such as veterans' benefits because of some little boy who cries Socialism several times a day to attract attention.

"I do not believe in keeping the veteran in luxury after his military service, for defense of one's country is a rare privilege for anyone. Nor do I believe in exerting any pressure direct or indirect on the military service to obtain for anyone any special privilege except the privilege of enduring privation and danger beyond his present assignment. I have never asked for any soft job for anyone in the service—I never will."

Entering the United States Marine Corps as a private at the age of 50 years, Douglas saw service in the Asiatic theater in World War II and suffered a serious wound. He apparently referred above to Senator Joseph McCarthy's row with the Army arising from attempts to get special privileges for Pfc. G. David Schine.

CONCERNED OVER JOBS, PRESIDENT TELLS DONNELLY

Eisenhower Says, However, He Expects Economy to Improve in Future.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 4 (AP)—President Eisenhower says "I expect to see further improvements in the national economy in the months to come and I am confident that these improvements will be reflected in the State of Missouri."

In a letter to Gov. Phil M. Donnelly released today, the President wrote from the summer White House at Denver. "I share your concern over the problem of unemployment and agree that it is not, shall not be in my Administration, a political issue.

"This Administration will contiue to follow policies and take actions which will stimulate that growth in the American economy which will in turn provide ample employment opportunities for workers throughout the nation."

Governor's Letter.

The Governor wrote the President several weeks ago, expressing concern about mounting unemployment in Missouri.

In his reply the President noted that the country has been in a difficult transition from the high level of production and employment caused by the Korean war.

"The Federal Government," he said, "has endeavored to take actions which would permit the economy to complete this transition with a minimum of dislocations, and which would foster further growth and stability of the economy.

"I believe that we have been successful . . ."

Donnelly's Suggestion.

Donnelly had suggested that areas where unemployment is heavy should have preference in the awarding of defense contracts.

The President said this is being done but "the amount of help which can be given to any community through defense contract is necessarily limited . . .

"I am sure that you will agree . . . that we should not increase military expenditures merely for the purpose of providing jobs . . ."

The President said he recognized that unemployment is still serioously high in some parts of the country.

Clean Patriotism.

NIXON AND HALL PREDICT G.O.P. WILL WIN NOV. 2

Halleck Asserts, However, His Party Is in 'Tough Fight'—Charge by Stevenson.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Vice President Richard M. Nixon says the Republicans will win the Nov. 2 election "going away" and National Chairman Leonard Hall now sees the G.O.P. "firmly on the high road."

Both men have emphasized in recent weeks that the Republicans must "run scared" to retain control of Congress.

However, neither Nixon nor Hall, in their latest statements, signaled any letup in the G.O.P. campaign. And another top Republican—House Leader Charles A. Halleck—called for even greater efforts.

Halleck told reporters in Denver yesterday that he hopes President Eisenhower will schedule more fighting campaign talks to give the Republican cause a boost.

G.O.P. in Tough Fight.

After talking politics with the President, Halleck said the G.O.P. is in "a tough fight."

Nixon, at a Lexington, Ky., reception marking the start of his third major campaign tour, said last night: "We're going to win in the stretch and win going away. We have a President who is popular and a program that is good."

Hall, in a statement released in Washington, said the Republicans are "firmly on the high road to win next month."

The principal Democratic campaign volley fired off during the weekend came from Adlai Stevenson, the party's 1952 presidential candidate.

Addressing a Democratic rally in Detroit Saturday, Stevenson said "the most disturbing aspect of the G.O.P. economic record in these past months is not just that we have slipped backward but . . . failure to show genuine, human concern over it."

Martin on New Tour.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts begins his second big campaign swing today. He will visit six eastern and midwestern states this week. Nixon's trip will take him to seven states.

Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell demanded Saturday that Nixon name "the Communists who have been kicked out" of Government or retract statements he made concerning the federal security program.

Republican Chairman Hall replied last night in an NBC television interview that established policy prevents the naming of persons discharged as security risks.

Hall repeated his demand that Mitchell retract a charge that Nixon told "an outright falsehood" about Administration efforts to rid the Government of security risks.

At Pineville, Ky., today Nixon told a press conference "thousands of Communists and security risks have been removed from the (federal) payroll."

And, he added, "I have the facts and figures to back up the statement completely." He said figures on this subject have been and will be released in the usual course of events by the Government and not in political speeches.

Nixon told an estimated 700 persons at Pineville that "the Republicans in office are the best qualified to keep us out of war."

He blamed the Truman-Acheson foreign policy program for getting us "in the war in Korea."

An he added, "The Eisenhower Administration will not surrender to Communists. We want a peace without surrender."

At a reception in Lexington for him and his wife last night, Nixon said "when you analyze the campaign of the other side . . . they don't have an issue."

Maine Race.

Democratic Gov.-elect Edmund Muskie of Maine said yesterday he thought Senator Margaret Chase Smith (Rep.), Maine, lost votes last month because her opponent convinced many voters "that she wasn't the liberal most people think she is."

Muskie said on the CBS "Man of the Week" television show that Mrs. Smith, who won reelection but with a substantially smaller majority of the vote than in previous campaigns," had an unusually able opponent" in Democrat Paul Fullam.

Muskie listed as factors in his own victory the fact that the Democrats were able to get out an unusually heavy Democratic vote; "an accumulation of dissatisfactions among Republicans," heavy Democratic votes in "labor distress areas"; his emphasis on "the fact that Maine was underdeveloped" industrially, and the fact that "Maine farm income is depressed even below the national average."

PRICE OF TURKEY EXPECTED TO BE LOWER THIS YEAR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (UP)—Your Thanksgiving day turkey is likely to be cheaper this year than last, the Department of Agriculture estimated today.

It indicated also that near-record supplies of eggs and chickens will mean continued low prices for those items as far ahead as next spring for eggs and possibly longer for broilers.

The department said record turkey supplies already have reduced prices about 5 cents a pound below a year ago. It added that prices are "likely to remain below last year, by approximately that margin, through the remaining months of the season."

It said also that seasonal price rises should be less than average as Thanksgiving day approaches.

NEHRU SAYS HE MAY RETIRE AS PRIME MINISTER

NEW DELHI, Oct. 4 (AP)—Jawaharlal Nehru says his job as Indian Prime Minister has fatigued him and he may step down, but observers here are not inclined to take him too seriously.

They pointed out today that Nehru in the past has used similar expressions, largely as a threat to whip segments of his Congress party into line. If he is really tired, the observers said, there are several lesser burdens he might ask others to take over. He holds the posts of Indian foreign minister, defense minister and chairman of the Planning Commission, as well as the premiership.

Nehru told Congress party members last week he was "rather tired" mentally, stirring reports he would give up the party presidency. When newspaper men asked about this yesterday, he replied:

"I have not said anything about the Congress presidency. If you want to know the reference, it is to relinquishing the prime ministership."

Bombay reports said Nehru was considering Bombay state's chief minister Morarji Desaii for the top government post.

STUDEBAKER-PACKARD CORP. NAMES J J. NANCE PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Final integration of the Studebaker Corp. and Packard Motor Car Co. as one corporation was completed today with the election of James J. Nance as president.

The board of directors of the new corporation, Studebaker-Packard Corp., also named Paul G. Hoffman as board chairman and Harold S. Vance as chairman of the executive board. Nance has been president of Packard, Hoffman has been board chairman and Vance has been president of Studebaker.

The board of directors, meeting here for the first time, also approved the previously disclosed $70,000,000 financing program and committed the corporation to a diversified program. The diversification program was not detailed, but President Nance said that one of the principal reasons for joining Studebaker and Packard was to procure a larger share of defense work by pooling resources that would make sufficient capacity and research facilities to handle work of any type.

DIES OF INJURIES SUFFERED IN AUTO ACCIDENT SEPT. 19

Chauffeur Succumbs — Boy, 12, Struck by Hit-Run Driver, Is Hurt Seriously.

Ralph Oakley, a chauffeur, 2006 Lafayette avenue, died last night at Firmin Desloge Hospital of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Red Bud, Ill., Sept. 19.

Oakley, 30 years old, had been in a hospital there since the accident but was brought to Firmin Desloge last Thursday.

Otto H. Boenker, of St. Charles, died at St. Joseph Hospital in St. Charles Saturday night of head injuries suffered earlier in an automobile accident on Highway 40 at St. Peters, about eight miles west of St. Charles.

Highway patrolmen said Boenker's machine was crossing the highway when its left rear fender was struck by a vehicle driven by Steve Vukovich, 2333 South Compton avenue. Boenker, 75, and his wife, Anna, were thrown from the machine. Mrs. Boenker suffered minor injuries. Vukovich was unhurt.

Terry O. Mahar, 12, was in serious condition at St. Louis County Hospital today as the result of injuries suffered Saturday when he was struck by an automobile on Lackland road near Ashby road in St. Louis county. The driver of the car did not stop, police reported.

Terry is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mahar, 10309 Oak avenue, Overland. His father owns the Mahar Coal Co. in Overland. The boy suffered head injuries, a fractured arm and a fractured leg.

Suspect Is Arrested.

A man who said he was Elmer Nations, a carpenter, living in the 10300 block of Capitol avenue, Frontenac, was arrested an hour and 15 minutes after the accident about a mile and a half from where the boy was struck.

Overland police said they found Nations lying on the front seat of an automobile parked in the 9500 block of Page avenue. They said there was blood on his shirt and face. Nations said the blood splattered on him when he killed some chickens.

Following questioning, he admitted that he had been in "some sort" of accident before his arrest, Deputy Sheriff Marcel Bonzon said. A warrant was issued charging Nations with leaving the scene of an accident.

The accident occurred when the boy was delivering Sunday newspapers. He was on the shoulder of the road bending over a paper cart when he was struck.

Clues Are Found.

Bonzon said that the front and rear fenders of Nations' car were dented and there were traces of paint in the dents similar in color to that on the paper cart. He said hair also was found in the dents. Tests are being made to determine if the paint came from the paper cart and if the hair came from the boy.

Charles Grotsky, clerk in the traffic division of the Police Department, was seriously injured Saturday night when struck by an automobile in the 5100 block of Hampton avenue. He suffered head injuries and a fractured leg. Grotsky lives at 5745 Enright avenue.

Driver of the car which struck him was Lester G. Davidson, a personnel director, 6224 Sunshine drive, police reported.

Crash Injures Six.

Six persons were injured, two seriously, yesterday when two cars collided at Bell and Channing avenues. One of the automobiles was hurled against a lamp post by the impact.

Driver of that machine was Albert Valenti, 512 North Spring avenue, police reported. He suffered back injuries. Charles Jackson, Negro, 4117A Cozens avenue, a passenger in the other automobile, suffered head injuries. Driver of the car was Robert Brown, Negro, 4223 West Cozens avenue, who suffered minor injuries.

Miss Marlene Whitener, 520 Brotherton lane, Ferguson, suffered serious neck injuries last night when the car in which she was riding and three other machines were in a chain collision at Twenty-third and Palm streets.

Her mother, Mrs. Frances Whitener of the Ferguson address, suffered minor injuries. Driver of the car was Mrs. Whitener's son, John Whitener.

UNFAIR BUSINESS PRACTICES

MANILA, Oct. 4 (INS)—The spirit of competition became a little too lively in Manila when police had to stop a battle for passengers between two bus conductors.

A Manila court was told that one conductor encouraged his passengers to throw stones at the other bus, which was getting to the bus stops first and picking up more fares.

BENSON ASSAILS CRITICISMS OF POWER POLICY

Accuses National Rural Electric Co-operative Association of Spreading 'Propaganda.'

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 4 (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson today accused the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association of spreading "propaganda" against the Administration's public power policy.

"There appears to be a well-organized attempt to discredit the accomplishments of the Administration in rural electrification," Benson told a group of agricultural and farm leaders in Weber county, Utah.

He referred to the criticism of the power policy as "propaganda . . . stemming from the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association."

That organization has charged that the Administration policy outlined by President Eisenhower in a speech at McNary Dam would cripple the Rural Electrification Administration. It said also that some members of the President's Administration have been working against REA and spreading "misinformation" about the electrification program.

Benson said the Administration has "enlarged" the REA program rather than slowed it down.

He said the REA lent $167,000,000 for electricity in the first fiscal year of the Eisenhower Administration, "which is more than the total loaned in the two preceding years combined." He also said the REA lent $75,000,000 for telephones in that fiscal year, "which was double the previous year."

Defends Flexible Supports.

Benson devoted much of his speech to calling for a Republican victory in next month's congressional election and in defending the Administration's new flexible price support law. The Democrats have claimed that the old high, rigid price support system was more beneficial to the farmers.

"I don't believe the farmers of America will swallow that line," Benson said. "I don't believe that the farm vote of this nation is for sale to the highest bidder."

He warned his party, however, that the G.O.P. should not become "apathetic" about the coming elections. He said the "Republicans face no easy task this year."

Benson urged the election of Republicans to Congress in order to carry out President Eisenhower's program, an apparent slap at a Democratic campaign argument that a Democratic Congress would best carry out the Eisenhower program.

"Make no mistake about this—the election of Republicans at local, state and national levels will aid the President in carrying forward his program," he said.

Assails Rigid Support.

The Agriculture Secretary, who led the fight for flexible price control, told the group, "You will hear from the political fox holes in the next few weeks that to be a friend of the farmer one must favor high and rigid price supports and be ready to hand out a government dollar as soon as some political pressure group asks for it."

Benson hit at high, rigid supports, claiming that they encouraged production in the face of surpluses, kept prices artificially high and robbed farmers of markets, depleted soil for unneeded production, gave most benefits to "large operators," and tightened government controls.

REDS WON'T LEAVE AUSTRIA DUE TO U.S., GENERAL SAYS

MOSCOW, Oct. 4 (AP)—A Soviet general said today Russia must not withdraw its troops from Austria because the United States would establish a bomber base at Vienna for possible attacks on the Soviet Union.

Writing in the weekly New Times, Maj. Gen. G. Fomin of the reserve declared also the United States, one way or another, would turn all Austria into an American military base if Soviet troops quit the country.

The Western powers recently demanded that the Soviet Union sign an Austrian independence treaty ending occupation of that country as a precondition for calling a four-power conference on Germany. The note is unanswered as yet.

ARMY ATTORNEY WELCH SAYS HE IS JUST AN 'ILLUSION'

GRINNELL, Ia., Oct. 4 (AP)—Joseph N. Welch of Boston, attorney for the Army during the Army-McCarthy hearing last spring, told a Grinnell College convocation yesterday that "the truth about me is that I am not actually real."

Welch, a 1914 graduate of Grinnell, was awarded an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Welch told the Grinnell audience that "people were yearning for something" during the hearings. "So they built up an illusion," he said, "and they gave this illusion my name."

"During the hearings," he continued, "when I sat stunned and speechless, you said 'what patience the man has.'

"When I sat in an agony of indecision, you said 'how wise he is. He must be planning some deeply wonderful move.'

"Sometimes I was so weary that my mind was almost a blank. And then some of you would say, 'how witty he is.'"

ARENDS SAYS G.O.P. FAILS TO TELL ACCOMPLISHMENTS

The greatest shortcoming of the Republican party has been its failure to tell the American people the "accomplishments of the present Administration and Congress," Representative Leslie G. Arends (Rep., Illinois, majority whip in the House, said yesterday.

He was the principal speaker at a breakfast-rally at the home of Norman B. Champ, 5657 Country Day lane, Berkeley City, held to further the campaign of Bill Bangert, Republican nominee for Congress from the First District. The meeting was attended by about 40 business men and party leaders.

Among Administration accomplishments which Arends said should receive greater publicity are revisions in income tax laws, Social Security benefits, the farm program and economies in Government. In regard to the latter, he said the nation now "is getting a dollar's worth of defense for a dollar spent."

APPLEGATE STORY

Correspondent Finally Writes 'Confession' That Pleases Reds

He Tricks Chinese Prisoners Into Telling Him Details of Other Germ Warfare Stories.

By RICHARD APPLEGATE

(Copyright, 1954)

TENTH OF A SERIES.

NEW YORK.

MY germ warfare "confession" finally got the ball rolling. I had already "confessed" in long, detailed, imaginary reports about atom bombs—about which I knew nothing—American "cruelty" to prisoners of war in Korea, etc., etc.

Each time there was a week or 10 days of silence and then I would be called up before a "judge" who had apparently taken over the case of forcing me to "confess" about germ warfare. He had been the interpreter for the regular judge for many months.

I made up all the gory details I could think of, and "quoted" Air Force pilots I said I had talked to about germs in Korea. I had to have names I could remember, so I used "Capt. Bob Hope" and "Capt. Red Skelton" and "Major John Reddy." Reddy is a New York television producer I had grown up with in Oregon.

In my report, which took me several days to write, I said that all germs were carried in propeller-driven airplanes because the hot gasses of jet planes destroyed the culture when the germs were dropped. This seemed a reasonable thing to say, seeing that jet gasses are pretty hot and disease germs pretty delicate things until they get inside the human body.

Others Said Jets.

I didn't know then that other Americans caught on the Communist flypaper had apparently got together and agreed to say germs were being dropped from jets only. The Chinese newspapers carried a series of nineteen such "confessions" by American flyers, but I cannot read Chinese.

When I had completed my report, I sent it up to the Communists. There was a dead silence for 10 days, then I was called up before the "judge" at midnight.

When I walked into the big square room the interpreter-judge, who was sitting behind a huge desk on the far side, snapped at me to sit down on the square bamboo stool just far enough from the near wall to keep me from resting my back. He stared at me incredulously. He didn't say anything, but kept looking me in the eyes.

There I was, on the Red record with the "confession" they had been trying to make me give them for more than a year, and in it I was quoting radio comedians, long dead American authors, and the late Lydia E. Pinkham. I was still defiant but very badly frightened, too.

Takes Out 'Confession.'

Finally the commissar reached into a drawer of his desk, pulled out my "confession" and laid it in front of him. He rapped it with the back of his bony hand, stared at it thoughtfully for a moment, and then, with what sounded like surprise in his voice, asked me:

"Is this true?"

I had to pretend to be indignant, and said of course it was true.

He gave me the fish-eye treatment for another spell, and then said:

"This report not complete. Is best report you make so far, but you trying cheat Chinese Government. We know. Is very dangerous for you. . . ." And he went on to tell me the Reds had lost patience with me and were going to kill me unless I corrected the report. He wouldn't tell me what to correct.

I tried pleading, and I tried guile, but I simply could not get him to give me a single hint.

Finally, after more than an hour of this, he said he would give me one "example" of where the report was "incorrect."

He picked out the only statement in the whole report that had some basis in fact!

In the summer of 1951 a horrible disease had broken out in the American Twenty-fifth Division, among other places, in Korea. Known as "hemorrhagic fever," it killed a lot of people before the Army medical department, moving fast, learned how to fight it. In my "confession" I blamed an accidentally dropped germ bomb, and said that in the first three or four days it killed 97 per cent of its victims in one small area, which was about the percentage I remembered.

The Chinese interpreter-judge seemed to know all about this fever. He said I "lied" on the figures.

"You no have any more time," the guy told me. "You be killed very soon if try to cheat Chinese government. You keep on lying, Chinese government must punish you for your crimes. Go back to your cell and think. . . ."

Sick with despair, I walked down the stairs and the long corridors to "think," knowing that my try for freedom and control over my own mind had failed, because my lying "confession" did not coincide with the "confessions" the other victims of Chinese Communism had made. In my cell I recalled those "confessions" that had been printed over a period of months in the Chinese newspapers.

Begins to Hope.

I began to hope again. By this time, after sitting in the same cell with a Chinese prisoner, night and day for months, I was not on the best of terms with him, but it was easy enough to pick a fight with him. I picked it on germ warfare.

The Chinese quoted from memory from the American flyers' "confessions" and I challenged his accuracy. In indignation, he got one of the outside trusty prisoners in charge of the "education" program and got all the back copies of the newspapers.

Then, with me arguing and yelling, I took notes on what the 19 flyers had said, and what Radio Peiping had said they had said.

I found out right off the bat that one of the things the Communists found objectionable about my 'confession" was that I was a year off! I had written that germ bombing started in the spring of 1951. All of the others—and one of these days I am going to find out how they managed to co-ordinate their lies for the Reds—said it started in the winter of 1951-52!

No wonder the Reds said that my lies were "lies!"

I found out that I was wrong about my "confession" was that the others said that jets were doing the main job.

But these were minor details. I just did a fast rewrite of the 19 pilots, put in some of the more grisly but impossible-to-check details from my other "confessions" on the subject, and handed it in.

I didn't hear another word from the interpreter-judge for the next five weeks.

Food Improves.

Then the food started getting better and they started giving me books.

When I asked how the report was, the little man said that the Canton germ experts were confused by some of the details I had given them but that the report had gone "to our superiors" in Peiping.

I don't know even now what the "confession" had to do with our getting out of China, but I'm reasonably certain if I hadn't written it, jiggled it, and finally made it coincide with the earlier "confessions" I would not be alive today.

My last "confession," rewritten to coincide with the other reports, was made near the end of May. On June 28 the interpreter finally handed me a letter from my mother, the first word I had had that she was alive, or that she knew I was.

We were on our way out of China, although I didn't know it then.

QUAKE SHAKES ANCHORAGE; MANY FLEE TO STREETS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 4 (AP)—Tall buildings rocked and residents fled to the streets in their night clothes early yesterday in a three-minute earthquake seismologists said would have caused disaster had the epicenter been in a populated area. No casualties were reported, however.

The tremor, recorded at 1:18 a.m. Alaska time (5:18 a.m. St. Louis time) shook a 1000 mile area of the Alaska mainland but was felt most severely in a triangular area 80 to 100 miles west and south of Anchorage.

It cracked building walls and shattered windows at Anchorage, Seward, Valdez and Homer and was felt at Fairbanks, Homer, Cordova, Kodiak and Yakutat. Some residents of Anchorage's two 14-story apartment buildings fled to the street.

TAIPEH, Formosa, Oct. 4 (AP)—An earthquake jolted Taipeh for about 10 minutes today. There were no reports of damage.

YOSHIDA LANDS IN FRANCE

CHERBOURG, France, Oct. 4 (AP)—Japanese Premier Yoshida arrived in Cherbourg today aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth for an official visit to France.

The Japanese Ambassador to Paris, Kumano Nishimura, and several French officials greeted Yoshida on the pier and escorted him to his special train for Paris.

AIR CHIEF SAYS FUND CUTS HURT RE-ENLISTMENTS

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 4 (AP)—Secretary of the Air Force Secretary Harold Talbott said last night the Air Force will be in "serious trouble" unless its present rate of re-enlistment increases.

In a speech at ceremonies launching a waste-cutting campaign at Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co., Talbott forecast a "considerable drop in efficiency during the next two years" if the Air Force loses as many trained technicians as anticipated.

"This drop in efficiency will cause a weakening of our defense capability — a weakness such as the Communists have been fond of exploiting," Talbott declared.

He said some 200,000 airmen who enlisted in 1950 and 1951 will be eligible to leave the Air Force within the next year. If the present 30 per cent re-enlistment rate continues, he said, the loss in trained personnel will present an Air Force investment of $2,000,000,000.

Talbott asked for congressional help in making service life more attractive, and criticized as "pennywise and pound-foolish" the elimination of several fringe benefits for airmen.

AIR FORCE CUTS 17,500 JOBS FOUND TO BE USELESS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Some 17,500 Defense Department jobs have been abolished in the last nine months as useless, the House Civil Service Committee said yesterday, and the action will save $95,000,000 yearly.

The committee made public a preliminary report on its campaign, waged by a subcommittee headed by Representative Corbett (Rep.), Pennsylvania, against the practice of assigning both uniformed and civilian personnel to the same job.

It said most of the job reduction thus far has resulted from a job reappraisal in the Air Force, and that "a much larger additional saving" is expected when the Army and Navy report fully on their efforts.

HIGHER SOCIAL SECURITY CHECKS MAILED TO 6,500,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—More than 6,500,000 Social Security checks, reflecting increases authorized by the last Congress, were mailed to beneficiaries yesterday under the old age and survivors insurance program.

The checks cover benefits for September. They aggregate $319,000,000, an increase of $36,000,000 over the payments for August. Retired workers numbered 3,600,000. Their benefits were increased by a minimum of $5 and a maximum of $13.50 a month.

The other 3,000,000 beneficiaries consisted of wives, widows, dependent husbands, dependent widowers, children and parents of retired or deceased workers. Their benefits were increased within family maximums by amounts proportionate to the benefits of retired workers. Maximum family benefits were increased from $168.75 to $200 a month.

SWORN IN AS HEAD OF FCC

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—George C. McConnaughey, Ohio Republican who has headed the Federal Renegotiation Board since last November, today was sworn in as chairman of the Federal Communications Commission.. President Eisenhower named McConnaughey, to the FCC last month to fill out the remainder of the term of George E. Sterling, Maine Republican, who resigned because of ill health. The term runs to June 30, 1957. At the same time the President designated the new member as commission chairman, succeeding Rosel H. Hyde, Idaho Republican who has held the chairmanship since April 1953.

CIO Report Lists '10 Indictments' Of G.O.P.-Controlled Congress

Cites 'Shameful Record in Public Interest Program' Under the Eisenhower Administration.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—The Eighty-third Congress—the first "Eisenhower Congress"—achieved a shameful record in terms of the public interest, defaulting in at least 10 major legislative areas, the Congress of Industrial Organizations charged today.

The labor organization, which is traditionally unfriendly to Republicans at the national and most local levels, buttressed its conclusions with a "10-point indictment" of the Republican-controlled Congress based on its own appraisal of legislative action in the session which ended Aug. 20. Its findings were published in a 64-page document titled "Report on Congress," which bristled with such descriptive terms as "give-away," "chip away" and "take away."

Its 10 'Indictments.'

The "indictment" of the Eighty-Third Congress was:

1. It has embarked upon a give-away program—in oil, in power, in atomic energy—which is morally indefensible and economically dangerous.

2. It has embraced the dangerous school of "trickledown" economics which believes that the welfare of the highest income groups and corporations must receive top priority.

3. It has exposed its inability to understand the needs of an expanding economy through its callous indifference to continuing unemployment and declines in total industrial development.

4. It has adopted a "trickle-down" tax program which provides huge tax savings for corporations and wealthy stockholders, while it has refused to grant needed tax relief to low- and middle-income families in the form of increased tax exemptions.

Refutes 'Liberal' Claim.

5. It has refuted Administration claims of a "liberal" approach to problems of people, by failing to provide adequate unemployment insurance, scuttling the housing program, refusing to adopt a school construction program, making no progress toward a meaningful health program and doing nothing to raise the minimum wage.

6. It has defaulted on campaign promises to make the Taft-Hartley law fair to labor, but instead attempted to adopt a program that would have made this anti-labor law even more harmful to labor.

7. It has adopted a farm policy which will still further reduce farm incomes, thus causing even worse hardship for millions of rank and file farm families and laying the basis for general economic decline.

8. It has placed the balancing of the national budget ahead of national security in our international affairs.

9. It has defaulted on our international economic obligations by failing to agree to the three-year extensions of reciprocal trade agreements, and by penny-pinching actions on economic and technical assistance abroad.

10. It has been more anxious to play politics than to develop sound, effective legislation to counteract Communist subversion.

In a voting record compilation on key "showdown votes," the report found that Missouri's two Democratic Senators, Thomas C. Hennings Jr. and Stuart Symington, voted "right" on all counts by CIO standards. Of the three Representatives from the St. Louis area, the report said that Frank M. Karsten and Mrs. Lenor Sullivan, Democrats, voted "right" and that Thomas B. Curtis, a Republican, voted "wrong" in every case.

"The best that can be said about the Eighty-third Congress," the report said, "is that it didn't dare go quite as far as some of its extremist elements desired. The great gains of the New Deal and Fair Deal were tampered with, but not destroyed. But the give-away, take-away, chip-away gang is at work. And it will take at least a few dozen replacements in the Congress next year to make sure that the damage which has been done will be repaired."

The few positive achievements of the Eighty-third Congress resulted from bi-partisan support and represented continuation of policies initiated during previous administrations, the report contended. These were set out as the St. Lawrence seaway legislation which has equal support of Democrats and Republicans in the Senate and 100 Democratic supporters in the House, and "modest" social security improvements.

As for the November elections, the CIO said that the challenge to the voters is that "those who have defended the public interest must be returned to Washington to continue their good work, and those who failed to do so must be retired and be replaced with those who understand what is truly good for America."

An increase in the number of men and women "devoted to the public interest" by only a "handful" in the Senate and by "a dozen or two" in the House will mean an Eighty-fourth Congress which will better serve the cause of freedom and prosperity for all, the report said.

On Dixon-Yates Combine.

Discussing what it termed "give-aways," the report said that one of the worst setbacks for the people was the defeat of a Senate amendment which would have made impossible the Administration-ordered contract between the Atomic Energy Commission and the Dixon-Yates power combine to supply electric power to the Tennessee Valley Authority area.

"The contract," the report said, "ordered personally by President Eisenhower, is a bald give-away which would cost the taxpayers over $90,000,000 plus the cost of a steam generating plan. TVA friends have objected particularly to the fact that the power bought by the Atomic Energy Commission from the private power companies—at higher rates—will actually be turned back into the TVA system and used to service TVA customers around Memphis (Tenn.), whereas TVA will continue to be the real source of the AEC's power.

"The transaction is not only obviously uneconomic but, in the words of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, 'would infringe on the separate powers of Congress, impair the independence of independent agencies, damage both AEC and TVA, deny the principle of competitive bidding and establish a very undesirable precedent of public subsidy for a private utility.'"

Under Heavy Fire.

The controversial Dixon-Yates contract currently is under heavy fire in hearings being conducted by the Anti-Monopoly subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, of which Senator William Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, is chairman.

As for what it called the oil "give-away," the report said the Eighty-third Congress "lost no time in keeping a pledge candidate Eisenhower had made during his campaign to give away somewhere between 50 billion dollars and 300 billion dollars in gas and oil lying in the submerged lands off the coast of Texas, Louisiana and California."

Senate liberals managed to explain the "steal" to the American people and aroused enough protests to "cut the handout to about one-sixth the size originally intended" for the states and through them "the oil millionaires who had financed the 1952 G.O.P. campaign," the report added.

With respect to that part of its "indictment" relating to the Taft-Hartley law, President Eisenhower told the American Federation of Labor national convention recently that the Democrats were to blame for the Administration's failure to eradicate "union busting" provisions from the statute.

Discusses 'Trickledown.'

Discussing "trickledown," the report said that the New Deal and Fair Deal were based on the economic principle that the economic system will operate well as long as there are enough active customers for the goods which an increasingly productive America can produce.

The Eisenhower Administration has acted however, on the theory that if enough prosperity is guaranteed at the top of the economic pyramid, that prosperity will trickle down to the low and middle income groups and the entire nation will be better off, the report went on.

"Something like piling the banquet table so high with food that some is likely to fall off for the pets around the house," the report observed.

It was this theory which prompted the Republican Congress to pack its tax bill with special tax-saving devices for big business and persons having income from corporation dividends instead of providing higher exemptions for the bulk of the nation's income taxpayers which would, in turn, have increased purchasing power for industry's goods, the report went on.

'Hitting the Farmer.'

Under the heading "Hitting the Farmer," the report included a section which said that "the nation's 6,000,000 farm families—whose income has dropped 20 per cent while food prices have reached an all-time high—were perhaps the hardest hit of any single economic group by the Eisenhower Congress.

At the heart of the Republican farm program was the substitution for fixed 90 per cent of parity price supports on basic crops a sliding scale support system ranging between 75 per cent and 90 per cent of parity. Democrats compelled the Administration to at least raise the floor to 82½ per cent of parity, the CIO said.

Farm services were hit through attacks on soil conservation, public power and rural electrification programs, both by Administration directives and through appropriations cuts by Congress, the report said.

The document concluded that "the picture isn't entirely black" and that there is a substantial group of men and women from both parties who "fought brilliantly for the public interest," sometimes losing by very small margins.

"There is, of course, little comfort in almost winning a battle," the CIO document said, "but there is ground for satisfaction in the knowledge that there is a large group of men and women in the Congress devoted to the public interest."

CAN THIS MAN HAVE HEALTHY HAIR?

By N. J. Thomas

The man pictured above typifies a Thomas client. Some time ago he started to worry because his scalp itched and was laden with dandruff. He noticed an abnormal amount of hair in his comb and brush. His hair had a dead, dull, lifeless look. He tried various cure-remedies without success. Then a friend—or his family doctor suggested that he consult a Thomas hair expert.

First Learn What's Wrong

The Thomas expert carefully examined his hair and scalp (without charge) and told him exactly what Thomas treatment could do to help him. He told him that Thomas could remove his itchy dandruff scurf; hygienically cleanse and purify his hair and scalp; and stimulate his sluggish scalp structure. These benefits have created a scalp environment most favorable to a normal hair-cycle function. In the normal hair-cycle, hair falls out when it reaches mature length, and is then replaced by new hair.

The Thomas' unusual ability to aid men and women in combatting their hair problems is soundly based on 34 years of experience—six-million treatments. Thomas alone has this broad background of experience. Thomas methods are often imitated—but NEVER duplicated. Thomas offers you the most in knowledge, skill, and benefit-producing technique.

Examination Without Charge

So come in today for consultation and advice (in private)—without charge or obligation. See for yourself exactly how Thomas treatment works—and how it can help you, too, to have healthier, better hair. You'll be glad you did!

Czechs Threatened 2 Americans To Try to Get Military Secrets

Pair Queried About Atomic Weapons and Told They Faced 10 Years' Imprisonment — Refused to Talk.

NUERNBERG, Germany, Oct. 4 (AP)—Two American soldiers today accused their Czech Communist captors of threatening them with 10 years' imprisonment if they refused to divulge United States military secrets.

The men, Capt. Richard H. Dries of St. Albans, Long Island, New York, and Pfc. George Pisk, 22, of Austin, Tex, talked at a news conference of their two-week confinement. Seized near the border in Bavaria on Sept. 17, they were released by Czech army officers last Saturday at the West German border point at Waidhaus.

Dries had a pleasant surpise awaiting him after his liberation. He learned that while he was imprisoned he had been promoted from first lieutenant to captain.

"Czech officials asked me specifically about atomic weapons in Europe, what type of weapons were here," Dries said.

"I said: 'I know nothing about them.' That's all I told them other than what my name was, my rank and serial number."

The Red inquisitors angrily threatened to have both Dries and Pisk tried before a Communist court "and sentenced to 10 years in prison," the two men said.

Despaired of Freedom.

Dries said they learned eventually they were imprisoned in Prague, and "there was doubt in my mind that I'd ever be returned."

A Czech questioner told Dries that Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, "has asked for $100,000,000 to be used for spying in Czechoslovakia." Dries replied that he knew nothing of such a report.

The officer said he was sternly warned:

"We can throw you in jail and keep you just as long as we did William Oatis," the Associated Press correspondent who was imprisoned two years as an alleged spy.

Dries acted as a spokesman through most of the conference. He said that neither he nor Pisk was physically mistreated, but they spent their imprisonment in solitary confinement.

"They put a tremendous amount of psychological pressure on us throughout the whole time," Dries said. "From the beginning it was strongly indicated that if we did not talk, we would be considered spies and would be tried under Czech law."

Neither he nor Pisk broke under the nearly constant interrogation, he emphasized.

The men said the Czechs told them that "your Government will do nothing for you," and that "we have been trying to contact the United States Embassy in Prague."

The United States Embassy pushed for their release throughout their confinement, but the Czechs ignored these overtures and even kept secret where the men were held.

Dries Tells Story.

Dries told the story of their seizure by a Czech army patrol which prowled the border:

"We were on a routine mission. The first thing I recall was that someone shouted 'halt!' in Czech. I understand a little Czech. I know that we were in West Germany because I had a map with me. When I heard the shout, we both turned around and saw three Czech soldiers. At least two of them were armed.

"They carried machine pistols, something like our own. They had the guns aimed right at us. They told us to come to them. We were blindfolded and led across the border into Czechoslovakia, where we were searched.

"They seemed in an awful hurry to get us out of sight. Although we were blindfolded, we got the impression we were led into a tunnel.

"We were handcuffed more tightly than necessary. The treatment was definitely not gentle. While we were being led, they prodded us with their guns. One shot was fired over our heads as we stumbled along blindfolded. I don't know if it was from nervousness or a signal, or just to scare us. They took us to a building where we were interrogated, first in German, and accused of being spies."

Pisk said the prison food was sufficient but not up to American standards, and that he had lost about 10 pounds, "possibly because of the mental strain we were under."

WOMAN KILLS HER HUSBAND, TWO SONS, SELF

Teacher Uses Rifle — Leaves Note Saying Something Is Wrong With Her Memory.

OAKLAND, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP)—A mother's anxiety over a failing memory is blamed for a 10-hour nightmare in which she methodically wiped out her entire family, including two teen-age sons, with a .22 rifle.

Police said Mrs. Olive Losser, 52-year-old kindergarten teacher, shot and killed her two sons, Donald, 19 years old, and Richard, 17, yesterday morning with a .22 caliber rifle. Then she sat for 10 hours in the living room of her fashionable East Oakland home waiting. . . .

At dusk, her husband, Milan (Mike) Losser, 52, prosperous manager of an appliance company, opened the front door. The rifle barked again. Losser fell, fatally wounded in the head.

Mrs. Losser, a final bullet saved for herself, dashed out front to the street and fired it into her own head.

Stunned neighbors, who later described the Lossers as "a fine family who never quarreled," summoned police.

Inside the house, police found an open case of .22 cartridges and seven rambling notes, scrawled in pencil on cheap paper.

Only one gave a clue. It said: "I can't teach. Something is wrong with my memory. I don't know what else to do. . . ."

Police said the others were cold, methodical directions about saving accounts, insurance . . . and where to find the bodies of the boys.

Donald, a sophomore, engineering student at the University of California at nearby Berkeley, was found in the bathroom. Police said he obviously had been cornered there while trying to escape.

Richard, a high school senior, was found in a basement bedroom. The bullet had entered his brain as he slept.

Neighbors told police Mrs. Losser had come outside during the afternoon and chatted amiably with them. County Coroner Bernard Bungarz said tests showed that even as Mrs. Losser chatted her sons had been dead for hours.

SPAIN'S MINISTER OF WAR ARRIVES IN U.S. FOR TOUR

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP) — Spain's minister of war, Gen. Augustine Munoz Grandes, arrived at Idlewild airport from Madrid today to start a 19-day inspection tour of United States Army facilities at the invitation of Secretary Robert T. Stevens.

Asked to comment on a report that Generalissimo Francisco Franco is considering Prince Juan Carlos of Bourbon as a possible successor, the general said: "There is a law which says that Spain is a kingdom. Everything in Spain is based on a desire for social justice."

He added that his country under Franco's leadership is "in very good hands." Gen. Munoz boarded a United States Army plane to proceed to Washington.

18-FOOT PYTHON CAPTURED AFTER ESCAPE FROM ZOO

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 4 (UP)—Pete the python, his 18-foot length sore and bruised from his struggle to avoid capture after 15 days of freedom, was back in his heavily reinforced cage today.

Pete slithered from the Forest Park Zoo home on Sept. 18 by butting open a door with his powerful head.

He was captured early yesterday by owner Harry Jackson and several others about a block from his old home. A frightened chimpanzee began screaming when he either sensed or saw Pete snaking along near the monkey cages.

Using a snake catcher—a five-foot piece of metal pipe with a noose—the men subdued Pete after a brief but frightening struggle during which the snake attempted to get Jackson in his coils, and almost succeeded. He came fairly close several times as Jackson wrestled with Pete in the 4 a.m. darkness.

Other zoo attendants, including Ed Baker, a 71-year-old nightwatchman, overpowered the 130-pound python, but it took eight men to carry him back to his cage.

HEREDITY CALLED MAJOR FACTOR IN CROOKED TEETH

Heredity is a more important factor in tooth crookedness than early loss of baby teeth, Dr. Anders Lundstrom of Stockholm, Sweden, said today at the annual meeting of the central section of the American Association of Orthodontists at the Park Plaza Hotel.

However, he said, premature loss of first teeth can cause irregular formation of adult teeth. More research in the field is needed, he said, to help dentists determine the exten to which such loss causes crooked teeth.

In another talk, Dr. H. C. Pollock, Clayton orthodonists, said St. Louis "really was the birthplace of modern orthodontics." More than 100 dentists who specialize in straightening teeth are attending the two-day meeting, which opened today. They come from seven states and Canada.

REPRESENTATIVE MITTENDORF URGES PRIMARY DATE CHANGE

Enactment of legislation at the next session of the Missouri Legislature to advance the date of primary elections to the first week in June and to provide a blanket primary election ballot and signature verification law was recommended today by State Representative Forrest Mittendorf, Republican nominee for re-election in the Third District in St. Louis county.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of the Normandy Township Women's Republican Club, Mittendorf asserted that "honest elections, reflecting the true desires of the voting public, can become a reality only if these changes in the election laws are made."

"A primary prior to the vacation season with a blanket ballot will bring more voters to the polls to make their desires known," he said. "This, combined with signature verification to prevent fraudulent voting, will protect Missourians against machine rule and insure more honest elections."

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—A youth, accused of stabbing a 70-year-old practical nurse to death in a subway train in Brooklyn, says he didn't know the woman and doesn't remember a thing about the killing, police report.

The woman, who was planning her retirement after 25 years service, was killed early yesterday.

"It was the most methodical, willful murder you can imagine," reported subway motorman John S. Hough.

Hough told police that husky, 19-year-old Everett D. Benson of Brooklyn, who had been drinking, and the murdered woman, Miss Minnie G. Williams, had been riding alone in the first car of the train.

SHELL OIL GETS TAX BENEFIT ON PROJECT AT WOOD RIVER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4—Shell Oil Co. has obtained a certificate of necessity entitling it to federal tax benefits on a $1,186,000 output for new refinery construction and equipment at Wood River, Ill.

Because of the potential capacity of the project to produce military fuels, the Office of Defense Mobilization authorized Shell to write off part of the cost in five years for federal tax purposes.

The rapid write-off, ODM said, applies to 65 per cent of the cost of a $327,500 portion of the project, and to 15 per cent of an $858,500 portion.

Why sugar in reducing diets?

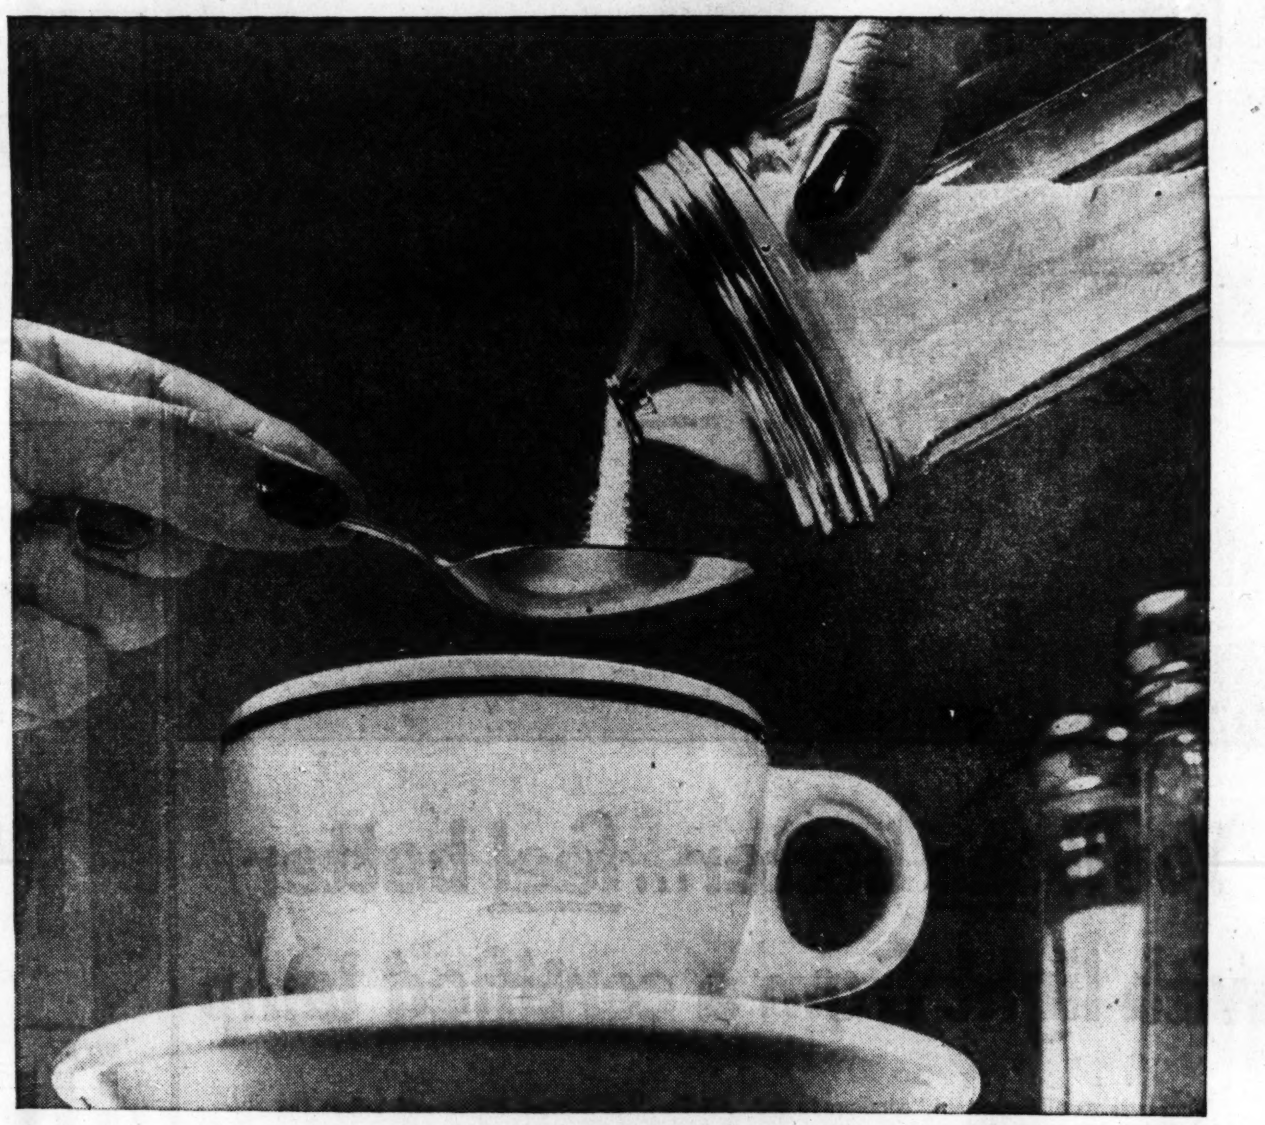
It's based on important new medical findings

In healthy people the blood sugar level helps regulate appetite

When it's low you're most apt to eat more than you need

When it's high you're more quickly satisfied on less food

The fastest way to raise your blood sugar level is to have some sugar, or one of the good things that contain it



Here's why an 18-calorie teaspoonful of sugar may make it easier for you to turn down extra helpings that contain far more calories

Many people have the idea that dieting means giving up almost everything they like to eat. They think of 10 or 14 or 21 days of rigorous fasting . . . of drab, uninteresting or one-sided meals . . . of lagging energy and constant hunger.

As a result, all too often people who should diet put off dieting. All too often people who do diet gain the lost pounds right back again.

New approach to diet planning

Now health authorities say that anybody who wants to can lose surplus pounds—and keep them lost—without making drastic changes in his or her own eating habits.

Modern diets are easier to start on, easier to get used to and easier to stick to because you go right on eating the foods you like. You do not cut out any food—you simply cut down.

Surprising as it may seem, one of your best-liked foods, sugar, can be one of the things that can be one of your best helps in cutting down your total calorie intake!

When you include moderate amounts of sugar (or the good things that contain sugar) in your diet you actually take advantage of nature's own system of appetite control.

This was recently demonstrated at a leading university where scientists found that, in healthy people, the size of the appetite is related to the blood sugar level.

When your blood sugar level is low, you're hungry. You're most apt to eat more than you need.

When it is elevated you find it much easier to stay satisfied on smaller portions—to say "no thanks" to the extra portions that mean extra pounds.

Part of the foods you eat must be turned into sugar before the body can use them up as energy. Many foods, however, raise the blood sugar level so slowly that you may have already eaten too much before your appetite is "turned off."

Artificial no-calorie sugar substitutes have no effect on your blood sugar level. Since they do nothing to curb your appetite, you may find that, by using them, you are eating more calories than they save you.

Sugar, on the other hand, is assimilated into the blood stream and used as energy faster than any other food. It satisfies your craving for food faster than anything else you can eat because it almost immediately raises your blood sugar level.

Make Smaller Meals More Satisfying

That is why a nibble of something sweet between meals is permitted in the newer diets. It not only revives your energy, but helps you to keep your appetite within bounds at the next meal.

You may also use a spoonful of sugar in your coffee or tea, and may eat desserts that include sugar with lunch or dinner. The sense of satisfaction they give is far greater than would be provided by the same meal without sugar.

And whether you're overweight or just watching your weight, doesn't it give another kind of satisfaction to know that science now says you can have your sugar and your waistline, too?

18 CALORIES

Surprise you that there are only 18 calories in a level teaspoonful of sugar? Compare this with the 2,500 a moderately active woman (123 lbs.) uses up every day. A 154-pound man requires 3,000 calories a day for normal activity.

All facts in this message apply to both cane and beet sugar.

MONTGOMERY WOULD TRAIN GERMANS UNDER PLAN

PARIS, Oct. 4 (AP) — Field Marshal Lord Montgomery, who played a leading role in defeating German armies in World War II, will be in charge of training West German soldiers if and when the new European defense plan is adopted.

Offiicals at Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers in Europe said today Montgomery, as deputy commander, heads the section which drafts and supervises training programs for all Allied forces in Europe. Consequently, if West Germany poins the Allied powers under agreements still to be ratified, training of all troops recruited by Bonn will come under his supervision.

Man Blown Halfway Out of Hatch On Airliner, Saved by Seat Belt

Passenger Awoke to Find Himself Dangling Over Space — Pulled Back Inside.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 4 (AP)—An infantry reserve officer, who was blown halfway out a United Air Lines plane emergency hatch and lived to tell it, prepared to resume his trip to Fort Monmouth, N.J., today—by plane.

"But I won't sit beside a hatch," said Lt. Col. James Greenway, 48 years old, of Seattle, who awoke from a snooze Saturday to find himself dangling as far outside a DC6 as the loosened safety belt, which caught at his knees, would let him.

"I thought this is it," he told a reporter in Memorial Hospital at South Bend, where he was taken for observation after the airliner made an emergency landing.

Fellow passengers grabbed a leg and an arm and pulled him back into the ship. He said his wallet containing a "nominal sum" of money, pen pencil, personal papers and wristwatch, were blown away. His jacket was torn to shreds.

"I don't mind a bit," he said, "I consider myself the luckiest man in Indiana."

The airliner, carrying 66 passengers and a crew of four, was New York-bound and had left Chicago for Cleveland around noon Saturday. It was cruising 300 m.p.h. at 13,000 feet, when the escape hatch cover beside Col. Greenway's seat blew off and the colonel nearly followed it.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.
JAMES GREENWAY

In Seattle, his wife said Greenway told her in a telephone conversation he dozed off almost as soon as the plane left Chicago and had loosened the safety belt with the intention of unbuckling it when the plane's warning light went out. But by that time he was already asleep and the belt was still buckled.

"He's alive because the Lord was looking after him," Mrs. Greenway said.

The Greenways have three children. He is production manager for the Carnation Co. in Seattle.

Greenway said his back was pressed against the side of the hatch and his head, shoulders and arms were outside the plane.

"I thought if I could just get ahold of the plane I could save myself."

He managed to grasp the hatch edge with one hand.

"All this seemed like a horribly long time," he said, "but it wasn't."

The other passengers grabbed Greenway and pulled him to safety.

The hatch cover damaged the plane's tail assembly when it flew off and the plane was grounded pending Civil Aeronautics Board inspection.

Emergency hatches on planes are usually attached by four quick-opening brackets. If one or two of the brackets were loose, the rush of air conceivably could cause a hatch to fall open.

It was the second miraculous escape for Greenway, who goes to Fort Monmouth for 15 days active duty. Greenway said he escaped with bruises from a crash in the China-Burma-India theater of World War II.

MAN ROBS BANK OF $1600 ACROSS FROM U.S. TREASURY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—A young man robbed the Riggs National Bank—across the street from the Treasury — of about $1600 and escaped today.

Police said the yellow-shirted robber, apparently unarmed, walked into the busy banking room and handed a teller a note ordering him to fill a bag with money. They said the teller, Robert N. Waller, Silver Spring, Md., turned to another teller and asked for a Treasury coin bag.

Waller then scooped $1600 in small denomination bills into the bag, but saved a much larger amount in bigger bills.

As the robber left the bank, Waller shouted: "I've been robbed." But before an alarm could be sounded the robber had escaped.

Now a great city has a great future

There's a great new era ahead for greater St. Louis, now that the charter amendment has been passed.

And, as we join in celebration, we also pause to congratulate all progressive St. Louisans who voted "yes." For you not only made possible the financial stability of the city, but you also have opened the way to a greater future for the entire metropolitan area.

Now the festering slums can be cleaned out, great new housing projects can be built and new industrial areas created — such as have been envisioned in the Mill Creek Redevelopment Project and the Memorial Plaza Development.

Now this great community can have new expressways to speed our way in and out and across our great city, new parks and recreation centers for our enjoyment, new hospital services for more people and improved city services.

And all of us can look forward confidently to a revitalized economic life — which will mean more jobs and better living for everybody.

First National Bank in St. Louis has always believed that St. Louis will progress — not decay — because it has the economic potential and stability that makes growth inevitable. We'll tell you about it in advertisements that will appear in this newspaper soon.

And we're not just talking. We're engaged in an extensive expansion and modernization of our building because we share the faith in the future that St. Louisans have demonstrated at the polls.

Now that we all have demonstrated our faith, let us move forward with new confidence to make St. Louis truly a great city with a great future.

151 Western Leaders Urge More Economic Co-operation in NATO

Byrnes and Truman Among Petitioners for Program to Strengthen Non-Military Side of Alliance.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (UP)—A group of 151 western leaders, including such old foes as former President Truman and James F. Byrnes, called on their governments today to co-ordinate political and economic as well as defense policies.

The group, which includes statesmen, industrialists, educators and religious leaders, specifically proposed that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization be developed "as a central agency to co-ordinate the political, trade and defense policies" of the 14 NATO powers.

Their appeal said the Communist challenge requires a "comprehensive mutual program for lowering tariffs, freeing currencies and eliminating trade restrictions so that there may be established an adequate economic base for the Atlantic community and associated nations."

The group said this would provide "better defense at less costs" in addition to the "benefits of an expanding and thriving economy" which would raise living standards throughout the free world.

Atlantic Assembly.

The group urged creation of an advisory Atlantic assembly representing the various NATO powers "which would meet periodically to discuss matters of common concern."

It likewise called for establishment by the legislative body of each NATO country of a special committee "to further understanding" of the treaty organization's "progress and potentialities."

Another proposal would provide for an economic advisory council made up both of employers and workers to advise the council and other NATO agencies of the effect of their policies on living standards in member countries.

In addition to Truman and Byrnes, who broke politically with the ex-President after serving in his cabinet as Secretary of State, the Americans signing the appeal included:

Adlai Stevenson, defeated 1952 Democratic presidential nominee; Benjamin F. Fairless, chairman of United States Steel; Henry Ford II; former judge Learned Hand; Paul G. Hoffman, board chairman of Studebaker Corp.; Gen. George C. Marshall; Gov. Theodore E. McKeldin of Maryland; Charles P. Taft and former ambassador Chester Bowles.

Foreign Indorsement.

The statement also was indorsed by national leaders from Britain, Canada, France, Norway, Belgium, Denmark and The Netherlands. They included Author Julian S. Huxley, French industrialist Rene Fould and Dutch Adm. Conrad E. M. Helfrich.

Noting that President Eisenhower has warned that "unity among free nations is our only hope of survival," they said NATO "has succeeded in vastly reducing the danger of direct military attack on Europe."

"This success has caused the enemies of freedom to divert their military aggression to other areas and to concentrate on diplomatic maneuvers to disrupt the unity of the NATO nations," the statement said.

"Their efforts have been aided by voices of isolationism in each of our countries and by mutual recrimination. Thus, our peril from disunity has increased."

While conceding that NATO is basically a military alliance, the statement recalled that the NATO council said in April 1953 that it was resolved to step up economic, political and social as well as military co-operation.

"But little has since been done," it said.

MURROW HONORED BY FREEDOM HOUSE

Commentator Gets Award for Challenging McCarthy Inquiry Tactics.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4—Edward R. Murrow, Columbia Broadcasting System commentator who challenged the investigative methods of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, received the annual Freedom House award last night at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Lewis W. Douglas, former United States Ambassador to Great Britain, who made the presentation, described the Watkins report, recommending censure of Senator McCarthy by the Senate, as "one of the most notable achievements of the legislative branch of our Government" in the last 30 years.

"Its quality," he said, "is, happily, reminiscent of the great state papers of our past, its language and its contents restore what may have been our faltering faith in the future."

Douglas, in presenting the award to Murrow, said that the latter reported "the chronicle of our times and crises with skillful fidelity to the honored truth."

Messages of congratulation to Murrow included ones from President Eisenhower and Gov. Dewey of New York.

500,000-Man Army Believed All West Germany Could Raise Or Support in the Next 5 Years

Defense Chief Estimates It Will Be 2 Years Before 12 Divisions Are Ready—Initial Cost of Rearming Put at 10 Billion, Which U.S. Is Expected to Pay.

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

BONN, Oct. 4 (UP).

THE 12-division, 500,000-man army West Germany is to raise under the London agreements is the largest it could muster for at least five years, and possibly even longer.

It might be six, eight or even more years before West Germany could begin to increase that force, and probably 10 years before it could double it.

That is the estimate of West Germany's own defense planners as well as United States military experts here.

They believe French fears of a vast new Wehrmacht greatly outnumbering France's own armed forces are groundless, at least in the measurable future.

The explanation is one of simple arithmetic.

West Germany will begin rearming from scratch. As the nucleus of its initial 500,000-man force, it will need an estimated 130,000 long-service volunteers to form the training cadres; the top sergeants and junior officers of the new army, navy and air force.

Estimates on Draft.

The other 370,000 men will be drafted. Defense Chief Theodor Blank and his advisers have no statistics to guide them. They do not know for sure how many men of draft age each annual class will produce.

However, they estimate that the strength of an annual class at the moment will be about 320,000 men.

Allowing for at least 40 per cent rejections for physical reasons stemming from wartime and postwar "hunger years," they expect each class to produce about 200,000 draftable men.

Thus, two full draft years will be necessary to fill out the initial West German contingent of 500,000 men.

Blank estimates it will be at least two years before the initial 12 divisions are raised, equipped, trained and ready to fight.

In another two or three years, Blank estimates, West Germany would have potentially 12 front-line divisions and 12 reserve divisions. But, he said he believes, it would be considerably longer before the force could be increased to 24 ready-to-go first-line divisions.

Couldn't Support More.

Furthermore, it is considered doubtful that the West German economy could support a force of more than 12 divisions now or in the foreseeable future.

Blank and his advisers scoff at suggestions that the Soviets could cancel out the value of the West German army by raising one of equal strength in East Germany. They point to the relative populations of the two areas—50,000,000 West Germans and 18,000,000 East Germans.

In addition, the physical condition of the East Germans is much below that of West Germans.

Blank and his aids said they would be surprised if the Soviets could raise even 250,000 soldiers in their zone.

Equipping the new German army at this moment also is something beyond the capacity of the nation whose entire arms industry was dismantled after World War II.

The initial cost of rearming has been estimated at 10 billion dollars, and the Germans expect the United States to foot the bill and provide most of the heavy equipment. Some of the equipment, including planes, may come from Britain and other North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries, but more than half of it is expected to be provided by the United States.

Vast U.S. Stockpiles.

During the past two years the United States Army has built up vast stockpiles in its main West German supply area around Kaiserslautern, in the French zone west of the Rhine.

It is generally assumed that much of the initial equipment will be drawn from these stockpiles.

Under the London agreements West German Chancellor Adenauer voluntarily renounced manufacture of atomic, bacteriological and chemical weapons. West Germany also promised not to build warships, except coastal defense craft, guided missiles or heavy bombers.

Theoretically there is nothing to prevent Germany from building jet fighters and medium bombers for the 1500-plane tactical air force it is to raise under the London agreement. But, in practice, it will not be in a position to do so itself.

The Germans have been forbidden to build or fly planes since 1945. Their aircraft factories have been dismantled and their research staffs scattered around the globe.

10 Years Needed.

The initial 1500 planes, therefore, will have to be obtained from the Allies. Experts estimate it will take West Germany at least 10 years to get back into the aircraft-building business again.

The same applies to other heavy equipment for the new army—tanks, big guns and anti-aircraft weapons.

It will be some years before German industrial potential can be diverted in part, re-tooled and ready to turn out this equipment. Until then it will have to come from allies.

However, uniforms and lighter equipment can be manufactured here without difficulty. Officials said that almost all the uniforms, boots, helmets, rifles and other such items will be made in Germany.

Blank estimates that about 40 generals or officers of equivalent rank will be needed for the new armed forces. These will be drawn from a pool of an estimated 1400 to 1500 retired generals in West Germany.

Many of them fought for the Nazis and will be screened by special boards to eliminate any who committed war crimes. Final appointment will be subject to cabinet and parliamentary approval.

HOW REICH WILL BE CONTROLLED

By DON COOK

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

LONDON, Oct. 4—Here is how the new plan for control over a revived German national army under the Brussels Alliance and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is to operate:

The German force will be about the same size as that called for under the defunct European Defense Community Treaty—that is, 12 active divisions, with a navy of about 25,000 men limited to small coastal and patrol units, plus an air force of about 75,000 men limited to tactical fighter planes and having no bombers.

Under the Brussels treaty, a new "BRUTO" organization will be established joining Great Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg and West Germany and Italy. The organization will be empowered to fix maximum defense contributions of all its members by unanimous consent. Thus the general level of German arms can be changed only by all the Brussels Treaty powers acting jointly.

Arms Control Agency.

The Brussels treaty powers then would set up an arms control agency under which production of certain types of arms would be forbidden in certain areas (mainly Germany) and additionally a "stock control" over arms would be established. All Brussels Treaty countries have agreed to abide by controls over stocks as fixed by the council, but council decisions in this matter will be taken by majority vote.

In the final act of the conference, Germany signed an agreement under which production of atomic, biological and chemical weapons will be forbidden in Germany. Germany further undertook in the agreement not to manufacture guided missiles, mines, bombers or warships of more than 3000 tons displacement or submarines of more than 350 tons.

However, the agreement provides that these restrictions on Germany could be altered by a two-thirds vote of the Brussels council of ministers if requested by the supreme Allied commander.

Germany thus will be able to make jet fighter planes, tanks and guns—which probably will keep the Germans pretty busy anyway.

Control Over Troops.

So much for what might be called the "ceilings" on German arms. The second part of the picture is control over German military units after they are formed and are under command of the supreme Allied commander, now United States Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther.

In the first place, it is agreed that if NATO should recommend greater forces for Germany than the Brussels Treaty powers have decided upon, then a unanimous vote of the Brussels powers would be necessary for approval of the NATO recommendations.

Supreme Allied headquarters then would create a sort of "inspector general's office" with the task of keeping tabs on the German army and other military forces on the continent to see that the agreements on sizes of forces were being adhered to. At the same time, all the Allied forces on the continent will be placed under the complete authority of the supreme Allied commander and will be allowed to move from one location to another only with the supreme commander's consent. This is to insure that deployment of German units is under full international control.

Additionally, the supreme Allied commander will in the future exercise much closer control over supplies for troops—in particular, it is believed, over oil supplies, without which armies cannot move and air forces cannot fly.

Unlike the setup provided by the EDC treaty, the Germans now will have a national army with their own general staff and supply services.

All these agreements so far

Adenauer Thinks France Will OK New West Plan to Rearm Bonn

Believes Germans on Both Sides of Iron Curtain Will Be Satisfied With Outcome of London Parley.

By GASTON COBLENTZ

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

BONN, Oct. 4.

CHANCELLOR ADENAUER, clearly fatigued by the exhausting negotiations at London, said on his return to Bonn last night that he believes France will ratify the West's new plan for the rearmament of West Germany.

The German leader, who is 78 years old, walked slowly from his plane across the brightly-lighted stretch of Bonn airport at a less energetic pace than is customary for him and made a brief statement to the press.

He said he believed that the German people on both sides of the Iron Curtain would be satisfied with the outcome at London. He described the far-reaching British commitment to keep sizable British forces on the Continent as "the most important thing" that happened at London. This above all apparently formed the basis of his belief that France would approve the rearmament plan.

The Chancellor will be faced with the problem of rallying his government cialition partners to renew their former full support of his policy.

He will face a new attack by his strong Social Democratic opponents as a result of his strategy of giving top priority to creating a military alliance between the Bonn republic and the Western powers instead of first demanding new East-West talks with Russia on German reunification.

He will also find it necessary to fight against the public skepticism about his all-out pro-Western policy that has become noticeable since France killed the European Defense Community treaty. The signs are that this skepticism will not be dissipated by the London communique alone.

Within his own coalition the Chancellor's greatest difficulty has come from Thomas Dehler, leader of the conservative Free Democrats, who formed the second largest bloc in the Adenauer government.

While the Chancellor was still in London, Dehler said on Friday that Andrei Vishinsky's new proposals at the United Nations show that the time has come to talk with Russia again about German reunification.

Dehler said, perhaps prematurely, that the success of the London talks meant that the Germans had reached a settlement with the West, as they did once before with the Locarno treaty in 1925. Therefore, he said, it would be appropriate for the Germans now to turn their attention to a settlement with the East, implying that reunification and something along the lines of the German-Russian Rapallo treaty of 1922 and the Berlin treaty of 1926 might be worked out with Moscow.

Adenauer is scheduled to make a major foreign policy address to the Bunestag (lower house of parliament) tomorrow and to report on the results of the London talks.

British Newspapers Call Parley Triumph for Eden.

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Almost all British newspapers cheered the agreement as a triumph for British statesmanship and particularly for Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, who organized the conference.

But Lord Beaverbrook's pro-Empire Daily Express, which has long fought against German rearmament, and the Communist Daily Worker teamed up to attack the agreement.

"From this day forward Britain is bogged down on the continent of Europe," complained the Express. "Green light for the Nazis," it was called by the Worker.

The Manchester Guardian welcomed the agreement and said the chances were "good" that it would work out. But the Guardian also warned against the danger that the agreement may be sidetracked either in quarrels over details or through parliamentary rejection.

16 TOP PRO-RED GUATEMALA EXILES SEIZED IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4 (UP)—Guatemala's former secret police chief, Jaime Rosenberg, and at least 15 other top pro-Communist fugitives from Guatemala were arrested today for extradition hearings.

Mexico City newspapers said warrents also have been issued for the arrests of ousted pro-Red Guatemalan President Jacobo Arbenz, former Foreign Minister Guillermo Toriello and others of the collapsed, Communist-tainted Arbenz government.

Extradition of the top exiles of the former pro-Red government of Guatemala was requester more than a month ago. The Communists were toppled from power in Guatemala last July by a revolution led by Gen. Carlos Castillo Armas, now the President.

Guatemala has changed leaders of the ousted regime with mass exterminatioon of its enemies and looting of the national treasury.

MAO IS HOST AT BANQUET FOR IRON CURTAIN DELEGATES

TOKYO, Oct. 4 (AP) — Red China's Mao Tse-tung was host last night at a huge banquet for Iron Curtain delegations invited to attend China's Oct. 1 National day celebration.

Peiping radio listed today this impressive delegation attending Mao's party from Soviet Russia: N. S. Khruschchev, first secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist party; N. A. Bulganin, first deputy chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of defense; A. I. Mikoyan, deputy chairman of the Council of Ministers and minister of trade; N. M. M. Shvernik, chairman of the all-union central Council of Trade Unions.

Eisenhower Resists Pleas To Campaign

Cabinet Fears He Will Lose Prestige by 'Sticking Neck Out.'

By DORIS FLEESON

(Copyright, 1954.)

DENVER.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER is under heavy pressure from congressional Republicans to step up his part in the campaign. So far he is resisting it.

The President has only two speeches scheduled between now and the election. One next Friday at a campaign rally here will be frankly and vigorously political. The other is a vote appeal on election eve.

Actually the President is caught in the switches between G.O.P. members of Congress and his own staff and Cabinet. The former say they must have his help because the trend is against them. The latter are unwilling to risk the Eisenhower prestige in what has historically proved to be a losing venture.

The same field reports which induce desperation among the candidates for Congress only harden the feeling among his own people that the President should be extremely cautious about throwing his whole weight into the scales. They have an advantage in the President's own concept of himself as a Chief of State rather than a partisan politician.

Halleck Calls on President.

Sunday, House Majority Leader Halleck put the case to the President. Halleck is returning east from a California sortie to help a number of House members who are, or fear they are, in trouble. The President feels extremely grateful to him for his good work in putting through the House so much of the Eisenhower program; their conversation was long and doubtless cordial.

An adroit politician, Halleck was discretion itself when he met with reporters. But he firmly made several points.

The President, he said, is the most effective salesman for his party and his program. The people, he thought, do not understand yet how good that program is and the necessity of re-electing a Republican Congress to go on with it. His conclusion, which he refrained from stating, is clear.

He also ducked the question: If the campaign problem is how to put across the Eisenhower program, why hasn't the President had a press conference in the six weeks he has been here?

Halleck's Explanations.

Rather incautiously, Halleck argued that they had had trouble getting the program printed in the newspapers—an Adlai Stevenson attack in reverse. He also mentioned "diversionary attacks" and conceded he meant Senator McCarthy.

Other sources disclose that one trouble encountered by Halleck and Representative Richard Simpson, the Pennsylvania protectionist who is chairman of the House Campaign Committee, is that not all Eisenhower Republicans are warming up to the project to re-elect a Republican Congress. No doubt the President was told he needed to galvanize these supporters into action.

On the record Halleck put it, "we are in a tough fight. I am not as optimistic as Len Hall (national chairman)." Hall has claimed a gain of 18 in the House.

Congressional claims will get another spokesman when Vice President Nixon arrives this week. But coming too are such men as Sherman Adams, presidential assistant, and Defense Secretary Wilson who will reinforce the "don't stick your neck out too far" school.

Evidence Indicates H-Bomb Designed by Teller Was a Dud

Statements by Los Alamos Head and Senator Anderson Raise Questions About New Book's Assertions.

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

(Copyright, 1954.)

WASHINGTON.

THERE is publicly available evidence which strongly suggests that the hydrogen bomb designed at Dr. Edward Teller's Livermore laboratory turned out to be a failure, during the Pacific test series last spring.

This evidence, it should be said at the outset, is in no way secret. It is all on the public record.

The evidence may not be conclusive — on that point, the reader must be allowed to judge for himself — yet it is worth reporting, simply because an extraordinary campaign is now under way to picture Dr. Teller as the true and only "father of the H-bomb," and virtually every other American scientist as a fuzzy-minded fool or worse.

The first part of the evidence consists of an official release by the Atomic Energy Commission itself. At the time of the test series at Eniwetok, in the Pacific, the AEC announced that both the Livermore laboratory, established to give Dr. Teller a free hand in designing an H-bomb, and the great Los Alamos laboratory, were "participating" in the tests.

Bradbury Statement.

The second part of the evidence consists of a statement by Dr. Norris Bradbury, director of the Los Alamos laboratory. This statement was made at an extraordinary press conference called by Bradbury on Sept. 14, to refute charges in the book, "The Hydrogen Bomb," by James Shepley and Clay Blair Jr., that Los Alamos resisted the H-bomb program.

The Los Alamos laboratory, Dr. Bradbury said with emphasis, has "developed EVERY SUCCESSFUL THERMONUCLEAR WEAPON THAT EXISTS TODAY" in the free world. The capitalization of the above words is to be found in the official Los Alamos release.

This statement certainly looks like a broad hint that only the Los Alamos bombs worked—that the H-bomb or bombs designed at Livermore failed. Dr. Bradbury should certainly know what he is talking about. An even broader hint came from Senator Clinton P. Anderson. As ranking Democratic member of the joint congressional atomic energy committee, Anderson also should know what he is talking about.

Asked to comment on the Shepley-Blair book, Anderson said: "I wish that the AEC would remove from its classified character the report of what happened to the bombs designed by Dr. Teller and the Livermore laboratory. The authors...might have asked the AEC how Dr. Teller's thermonuclear bombs have thus far exploded."

Obvious Conclusion.

The conclusion is obvious. The New Mexican, the astutely edited newspaper which serves Los Alamos, drew it. Anderson's statement, the well-informed New Mexican noted, "most nearly says what informed Los Alamos opinion has left unsaid." Quite obviously, what informed Los Alamos opinion has left unsaid is that the Teller-Livermore version of a hydrogen bomb was a dud.

There is nothing shameful about this. Although, as far as is known, there has never been a previous failure in the many AEC nuclear tests, failures are no doubt inevitable in so unexplored a field. Moreover, his bitterest critics do not doubt that Dr. Teller is a brilliant scientist. Yet in the rewrite of history now being promoted, Teller is not only brilliant. He is the virtually single-handed creator of the hydrogen bomb.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Mr. Saigh on Prison Riots

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I was pleased to read your editorial of Sept. 26 called "What Happens in Prison," for you took the part of many unfortunate individuals who have been disregarded in the social scheme of things. As you know, I am writing from experience, and this does not necessarily pertain to my experience.

Regardless of the official appraisal of the cause of the Missouri prison riot, there are five principal reasons for prison riots. 1. Idleness. 2. More important, the terrible food on which human beings are forced to live. 3. Unconscionable, cruel, unnecessary and non-uniform sentences. 4. Sadistic untrained political personnel who run prisons. 5. Parole systems which are not parole systems.

I have come to the conclusion from the many people I have talked to in and out of prison that crime is the result of forces in our society, and should be treated as we treat any other product of those forces, such as community care of insane, community care of disease, community education, etc.

• • •

There are four classes of criminals. 1. The accidental criminal, and there are many of them, who through no fault of their own, have fallen into a pattern that eventually led to their imprisonment (usually not problems). 2. The psychopath who had committed crime mostly because he was mentally sick or because of the society in which he grew. 3. The lazy individual who does not want to face life in the outside world, and takes prison life as an easy way of existence (and there are more of them than one would think). 4. The out-and-out mean and vicious man who commits a crime because of some sadistic weakness born in him.

Because there are four classes, they should be treated in four different ways, and the State of Missouri should provide four different institutions, each not to have more than 1000 men.

All of these classes of men should be treated as though they can be rehabilitated and put back into society and there treated as human beings. This can be done very readily by forced education in prison, by forced medical care in prison, by systematic treatment by trained psychologists and sociologists, and above all by preparing the man to face his responsibilities.

• • •

Ninety per cent of the men who are in prison today would become good citizens if given a chance. It is what happens after prison that really constitutes the punishment and which causes additional crime, because of what the man has learned in prison and because he is not prepared there for his life to come.

We have tremendous lobbies of private industry preventing prison-made goods from competing in the civilian economy, but how much cheaper would it be if prisoners were trained to take care of themselves by employment within the prison? And the prison system can be made to pay for itself plus profit.

The men and women should be permitted to do the same type work as those not in prison, paid the same wages less money for room and board, and that money accumulated so that when they leave prison they can go into a business of their own.

Missouri has a problem to solve. It could do this easily enough if it would start on a rehabilitation program of human beings.

It is good to see you on the constructive side. FRED SAIGH.

On a Holy Day

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It's not only unfair to those of the Jewish religion who wanted to but can't see the Veiled Prophet parade, but more important it is completely disrespectful to stage this parade on one of the holiest of all Jewish religious days.

BERNICE SCHWARTZ.

Whom McCarran Backed

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In my opinion your belittling editorial on the late Senator Pat McCarran was in poor taste.

Evidently one of the things you held against him was his backing of Chiang Kai-shek, Gen. Franco, Gen. MacArthur, and Senator McCarthy. It seems to me that Senator McCarran backed men who prefer to do something about the Communist threat rather than those who just talk about it.

It would be interesting to learn what individuals, in the Post-Dispatch's opinion, have dedicated their careers to fighting Communism on a larger scale than those mentioned above, and then what those individuals have to say about these men whom Senator McCarran backed.

R. SCHWEITZER.

Sharing With a Dean

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For several years I have been meaning to write to you to express my appreciation for your giving the citizens of St. Louis the opportunity to read the column "The Dean Speaks Up." It is a privilege for us to share with Mrs. Starbird, her wisdom, her experiences and her wide literary knowledge.

MRS. EDWIN GROSSMAN.

A New Day in Europe

Great and justifiable satisfaction throughout the Western world attends the signing of the London pact.

Only a few weeks ago France's rejection of the European Defense Community plunged the Western world into gloom and darkened the prospect for any agreement to permit a West German contribution to European defense and termination of the allied occupation.

Now an agreement has been reached with remarkable dispatch. It could still be upset by French or German failure to ratify, but the outlook for acceptance on both sides appears to be good. Justifiably, the West rejoices.

Yet it would be the saddest of mistakes to regard the London pact as an end. It is in fact only a beginning, and its essential spirit and values will depend upon how the signatories conduct themselves in the future. They will depend in particular, upon the vigilance with which West Germany's partners control their former enemy's rearmament.

When EDC failed, one of the surest ways of exerting such control failed with it. Incorporating German troops into an international army would tend to minimize the nationalist spirit which so often in German history has welled into an aggressive militarist drive. That safeguard is now gone. West Germany is to be a sovereign power with its own army.

• • •

Other safeguards have been substituted, and on their face they seem to be satisfactory. The Germans agree to forego production of atomic weapons, of bomber planes and naval ships and other heavy armament.

German troops are to be limited initially to 12 divisions—as they would have been under EDC—and the armament of all continental members of the expanded NATO is to be controlled by an arms agency jointly representing NATO and the Brussels pact powers.

But in the end these safeguards to be incorporated in treaties depend upon the Germans' keeping their word and upon the readiness of the other Western powers to enforce the treaties.

Governments change, and the spirit of treaties changes with them. Hitler destroyed the controls imposed upon Germany after World War I by marching into the Rhineland and getting away with it, France and Britain at that point being unwilling to enforce the guarantees they had previously accepted. So too another German government may some day undertake to break the pact of London, at which point the pact will depend entirely upon the readiness of the other signatories to enforce it.

The 12 German divisions which are so essential to European defense are in themselves no threat to anybody. Once they are in being, however, they will change the situation and the political atmosphere. It has always been a possibility that once the Germans got everything they could get from the West they would turn to the Soviet Union to get what they could in that quarter — particularly reunification with the Eastern zone.

• • •

It is good that the London pact specifically commits the Germans to use peaceful means only in the quest for reunification, and commits Britain and France to the goal of reunification. The ideal solution would be a negotiated settlement with the Russians which permitted peaceful reunification.

The London pact, everything considered, is a great achievement. Britain's Anthony Eden, who laid the groundwork on his tour of European capitals just after the rejection of EDC, plainly deserves the primary credit. He took the lead at a time when our own State Department was saying that with EDC dead the Europeans would have to come forward with new ideas. Secretary Dulles shares the credit of the final agreements, particularly for helping to overcome French reservations which produced a last-minute crisis.

Amid the rejoicing it is well that we remember that this pact represents the beginning of a responsibility rather than merely the imminent end of an occupation.

That responsibility is to prevent history from repeating itself—to bring Germany into a peaceful European community as an equal partner but not as a militarily dominant member; to arm Germany while holding in check the aggressive nationalism which has accompanied German armament in the past.

Time Is Wasting

Secretary of Defense Wilson says that the legislation for overhauling and making something substantial out of the National Guard and the reserves of the Army, Navy and Air Force may be ready in 60 to 90 days. It most certainly is to be hoped that this vital legislation is not only completed but also is assured of passage early in the next Congress.

President Eisenhower, Secretary Wilson, several of his assistants and a goodly number of congressmen and military leaders have been pointing out for months that this country's reserve components are a very far cry from what they should be in this day of hydrogen bombs.

It was a shameful thing that the impending fall elections caused the politicians to hole up on the necessary reserve legislation. Once the elections are out of the way Secretary Wilson could retrieve some of the lost time by putting his utmost efforts behind this legislation that is so imperatively needed.

Exploring the Shopper's Mind

A Washington newsletter reports that the Federal Government is working on a new program to find out why people do or do not buy the goods on a storekeeper's shelves.

What's involved, to put it in newsletter style, is secret ballot of store customers . . . exploring public preferences as to services, goods, prices . . . details to be confidential, except to the store management . . . already tried in sample areas, startling results.

So at least says the newsletter. What's involved, we judge, is a new outbreak of the public opinion poll epidemic. We don't object to the principle of the thing. If the nation's retailers want to poll their customers in the hope of improving their sales position, why, let them poll away. What puzzles us is only this: Why in the world should the United States Government take over the polling job for the retailers?

Isn't this creeping something or other? If the United States Government assumes the task of improving a department store's sales, it may next be called upon to take over the task of improving the consumer's position as shopper. If it is a governmental function to help move goods, then farmers may rightly demand help in raising chickens, and housewives may properly expect Government help in learning how to wash dishes—and weren't we told, at the inception of this business Administration, that all this would be a thing of the past? The Administration's trend-spotters had better keep their eyes on this ball. Or, first thing they know, it will be creep, creep, creep, and no telling where it will all end.

No Retreat for Senator McCarthy

On the widely followed television-radio program, "Meet the Press," Senator McCarthy of Wisconsin, said Sunday that:

> He will not be defending himself when he takes the floor at the Nov. 8 special meeting: he will be defending the Senate and the country.
>
> He was tried by the Watkins committee and found guilty even though three of the six members of the jury named by Mr. Nixon were on record strongly against him.
>
> He considers the statement of Senator Watkins concerning the impartiality of the jury as "the most fantastic statement I ever heard in my life."
>
> He still regards the Gillette-Hennings-Hayden-Hendrickson subcommittee as "completely dishonest" and that he was "fully justified in not dignifying it" by testifying.
>
> He intends to go on fighting and exposing Communism and corruption regardless of what the Senate does about the censure recommendations.
>
> He expects to be opposed in high places so long as he continues his embarrassing exposure of those who protect Communist infiltrators.
>
> He thinks President Eisenhower will have influence in the censure vote to the extent of swinging some Senators against him if the White House so decides.
>
> He does not believe the statement that Senator Flanders has a letter from the President commending the Vermont Senator for his part in the censure effort.
>
> He not only did not divert any funds contributed to his anti-Communist efforts to his personal use; he "went broke" in his exposure of Communism.

It is not necessary to comment on each of these assertions. By now it ought to be obvious that much of what the Wisconsin demagogue says answers itself. The Watkins committee, for example, was no trial body. It merely conducted hearings for the Senate and made a report. If there is a jury, it will be the Senate when it votes on the Watkins committee's report.

This much is as clear as an October Ozark sky: Senator McCarthy is not through as a problem to the Republican party. Even if he is censured, he will still be chairman of his committees—unless he is deposed either by the Republican majority or by the people in their composition of the Senate, Nov. 2.

There are important considerations, to be sure, in the senatorial election, other than the separation of Senator McCarthy from his chairmanships. But with many voters this will be an important factor if not a controlling one. Such could be the price of executive and legislative appeasement of McCarthyism.

Summer, Anyhow

When a Fourth of July sun shines so close to Columbus day, and the thin red line stretches up to 92 degrees, the question is just what to call it. Some folks call this an Indian summer. Technically, though, Indian summer occurs in late fall, which this is not, and is characterized by a smoky haze. Our atmosphere over the weekend was not very hazy—just hot and lazy. Then we come to the timely question as to whether any summer, or anything else, should be called "Indian" after that world series and those Indians. All in all, we would not call this Indian summer. Just summer. And better late than almost any other time.

Where Are Our Scientists?

Most persons have become suddenly aware that at this late date Soviet Russia is breathing down our neck in the nuclear fission field and may even be a step ahead of us in the fields of military aviation and guided missiles. But very few are aware of the main reason why we have been losing ground in these fields. It is largely because Russia, desperately seeking scientific world supremacy, is surging far ahead of us in the training of young scientists.

Top scientists and science teachers in a recent conference at Bryn Mawr College emphasized that in the past school year Soviet Russia graduated twice as many scientists and technologists as did the United States. They also graduated 50,000 engineers whereas we graduated 17,500, just 40,000 short of the number needed.

This was exactly what Dr. Alan T. Waterman, head of the National Science Foundation, which has a major role in basic scientific research for the Government, warned Congress in April 1953:

> "Our output of young scientists and engineers is now dropping to nearly one-third of the output in 1950 at a time when our research and development effort has approximately tripled."

To this warning by Dr. Waterman should be appended one that followed just a year later. It came from the deliberations of 66 national leaders in the engineering, medical, educational, scientific, industrial, governmental and military fields. They had been assembled by the National Manpower Council, established in 1951 by Dwight D. Eisenhower when he was head of Columbia University. In a 200-page summary of their sessions, entitled: "The Utilization of Scientific and Professional Manpower," the experts anticipated a continuing shortage of scientists and professional people for the next decade. The results of 10 years—or even three years—of such under-production are fearful to think upon.

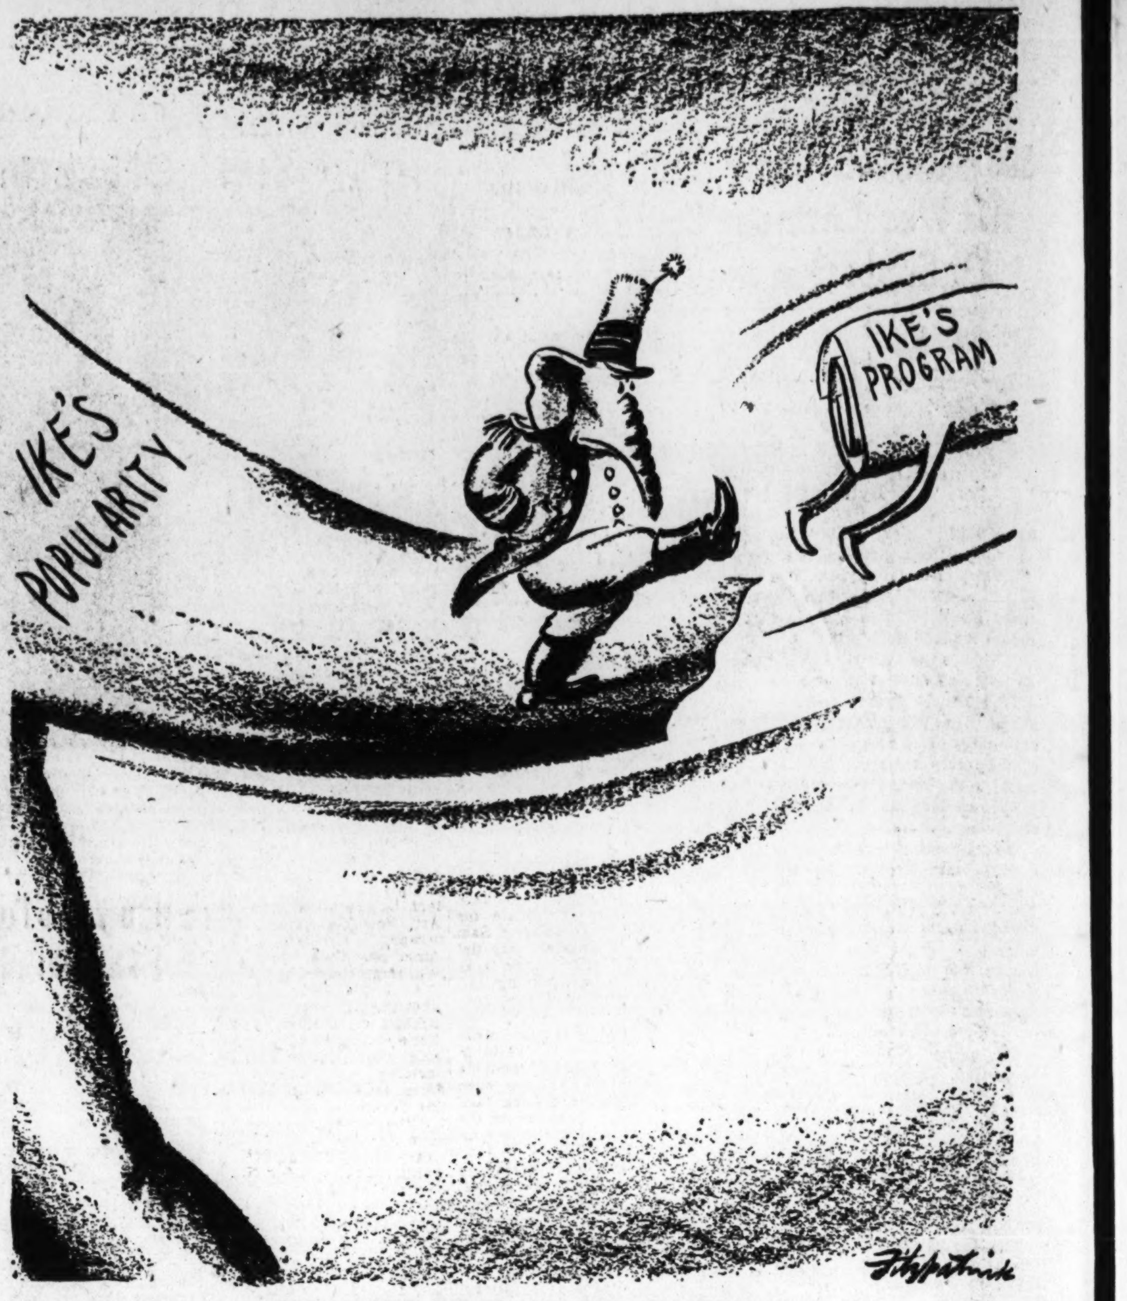
In addition to the difficulty inherent in not having enough scientists graduated every year there is the problem of keeping them in the important field of research and development which is so vital to maintaining a lead in all types of weapons. Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, president of California Institute of Technology, stressed this last May when he suggested:

> Find the good and the promising scientists. This is quite easy. Pay them enough so they can stay in science rather than go into administration. This is not so easy. Provide them with facilities they need. Encourage the education of young scientists.

If the United States does not want to fall behind militarily it is axiomatic that it must keep up scientifically. Something like Dr. DuBridge's program should be put in effect. This nation cannot afford to sit by and see Russia training more and more scientists and engineers as less and less are trained in this country.

Upsets Galore

Purdue knocked off Notre Dame, the No. 1 rated football team, and it did it by the resounding total of 27 to 14, which is just about twice as good in anybody's figures. Doing so the Boilermakers relived and then some that Saturday four years ago when they pounded a big hole in the Irish's long string of victories. Then, as if a Notre Dame upset were not enough, Wisconsin crossed Michigan State's goal line to give the Spartans their second defeat of the year. And an underdog Stanford stopped J.C. Caroline and his fellow Illini. For a season that is only two weeks old, 1954 on the gridiron is giving the dopesters a hard time and that is all right. Why should they have it easier than the rest of us?



OLD GUARD RIDER ON THE COATTAIL

TV Towers: Menace to Aviation

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Installations on approaches to airports caused four collisions last year, says trade magazine; industry and government both blamed for rise in danger; safety recommendations include visual markings for guy wires and communal towers for cities.

Swanee Taylor in Skyways, Monthly Publication of the National Business Aircraft Association

Television transmitters have become a deadly menace to air navigation. New towers are being built taller and taller, closer and closer to long-established aerial rights-of-way.

Some 360 TV spires already are in existence, each reaching anywhere from 500 to 1400 feet into the navigable airspace. Seventy will top 1000 feet.

Pending before the Federal Communications Commission in Washington are close to 800 more applications for permission to build and operate TV transmitters.

Most of them will be located near metropolitan areas where the air traffic saturation point already is causing grave apprehension. Truly appalling, after two years of fiddle-faddle nothing of a remedial nature is being undertaken.

Last year three airplanes smashed against television installations, two of them in the cobwebby tangle of guy wires supporting the structures. A fourth hit a power-line tower. All four pilots were expert aviators, one was flying an airliner, and all but one were on instruments when the inadequately-marked towers loomed like lightning in the murk.

Among experienced airmen there is unanimity of opinion that the towers were inadequately marked and that had there been sufficient warning — even three short seconds of grace—the pilots could have dodged them.

Air men and women feel justified in demanding marking regulations which will at least reduce the tower terror to a reasonable minimum. They are up in arms over an utterly needless threat to their lives.

At the outset of the TV license application hearings the applicants wore an air of annoyance at aviation's ill-humored objections to the heights and sites of most transmitters. They made it clear that they regarded these objections as unreasonable exaggerations. They persistently tried to heap the burden of averting collisions onto the shoulders of aviation.

Foremost in the fight to bring about a remedy are the Air Line Pilots' Association, the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, the National Aviation Trades Association, and the National Business Aircraft Association. Practically everyone who owns or flies an aircraft in the United States belongs to one or more of these organizations.

As long ago as April 1952 aviation, TV and the Government sat down together in a working group to draw up a satisfactory visual marking system for TV transmitters. The entire working group, including several who should have known better, pooh-poohed the thought that any pilot capable of flying on instruments would ever come close to a transmitting tower.

One of the suggestions was that large metal balls be attached to guy wires for easy discernment. This was dismissed because it was believed they might cause vibration. This although the Swiss have been using this type of marker for years.

The TV-sters' excuse for not wanting to install 100-watt marker lamps on the wires was that it would be too much trouble and expense to service the lights. Who would repaint the towers with reflective paint every six months?

The lower collision insurance premiums on a properly marked tower would more than pay the upkeep costs.

When the new Obstruction Marking and Lighting Manual came out in November 1953, little or nothing new was included in these specifications. So the marking situation remains basically the same as it was 20 years ago. This was back in the days when hardly an antenna anywhere reached into the overcast save in zero-zero weather.

Now that three video installations have been demolished, TV operators are coming to the belief that aviators weren't just being neurotic in their protests.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration seems to have run into a dead-end street insofar as the tower business is concerned. It hasn't a dime to spend on research and experimentation necessary to working out a solution.

The following round-up of opinion deserves careful consideration:

1. Adoption of a strict policy regarding marking in general, with severe penalties provided for failure to comply.

2. Marking of antenna guy wires so as to be visible at all times insofar as possible. This includes suspending metal balls, or wind-sleeves, at the center of each wire for daytime use, and flashing 100-watt lamps at the same point for low-visibility conditions.

3. An effort should be launched to establish a trend toward the use of single, communal towers in all cities. The Government must lead the way here in pointing out the advantages to all TV in a community of using the tallest tower there.

4. Maintain an open mind about "antenna farms." Where a number of towers are clustered together they are more easily seen—and hence are avoidable. There are several localities where this system is ideal.

5. Arrive at a method of perimeter marking—arrows pointing to the tower from half a mile away, or a large circle placed at the same distance—in order to give an added warning on dim days.

Helping Others to Win the Crown

Simeon Stylites in The Christian Century

It's a name to remember—Chris Chataway, though we will all forget it. Perhaps you do not even know it, unless you glance at the sport pages now and then. I think he is worth at least the two minutes it will take to read this letter.

Chris Chataway is an English runner, one of the world's best. This year so far he has not won any world's records for himself; he has just made it possible for three other men to break world's records in running. His specialty is pacing other men, running in front of them so that they can turn in a marvelous performance. Chataway has helped three men to world's records this year. He made the pace for Roger Bannister when Bannister ran the first recorded four-minute mile in history. He made the pace for John Landy of Australia when Landy also ran a mile under four minutes. He made the pace for Fred Greene when Greene broke the world's record for three miles. There seems to be a text which covers his case: "He that loseth his life shall find it."

The world could well use a good many more Chris Chataways. How many there have been in private life! We can find them in unexpected places, for they grow anywhere with all the democracy of a hollyhock. Parents who paced their children, making it possible for them to overtake their best, and then dropped out, forgotten. Teachers, snared in this petty pace from day to day, men and women who never hit the headlines when their former students turned in a great job but who made it possible for them to do it.

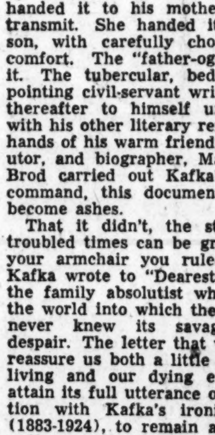
Surely the churches could use more of that spirit in the competitive life which denominations lead. A world church can come only by self-forgetful dedication to world mission.

Between Book Ends

Brilliant Disorder

DEAREST FATHER: STORIES AND OTHER WRITINGS, by Franz Kafka. Edited by Max Brod and translated by Ernst Kaiser and Eithne Wilkins. (Schocken Books-Noonday Press, 409 pgs., $5.00.)

This addition to the Schocken series of English reprints of Kafka's works contains Kafka's draft of his first novel, "Wedding Preparations in the Country," his "Reflections on Sin, Suffering, Hope, and the True Way," "The Eight Octavo Notebooks," "Fragments from Notebooks and Loose Pages," and Paralipomena," the series of aphorisms called "He," and the remarkable "Letter to His Fathers." But it is the last which gives the volume its name, and its most affecting substance. Here it is published for the first time in its entirety in English. And it is like a window through which one sees a man whose relationship with his father colored, even deformed, the conduct of his life, the slant of his mind, the tone of his writing and the moods among which he alternated.



Franz Kafka

This "reasoned account of the fear I have of you" was meant to be handed by Kafka to his father. Instead, he handed it to his mother, for her to transmit. She handed it back to her son, with carefully chosen words of comfort. The "father-ogre" never saw it. The tubercular, bedevilled, disappointing civil-servant writer-son kept it thereafter to himself until it passed with his other literary remains into the hands of his warm friend, literary executor, and biographer, Max Brod. Had Brod carried out Kafka's posthumous command, this document would have become ashes.

That it didn't, the student of our troubled times can be grateful. "From your armchair you ruled the world," Kafka wrote to "Dearest Father." But the family absolutist who had shaped the world into which the son retreated never knew its savage, lacerating despair. The letter that was meant "to reassure us both a little and make our living and our dying easier" was to attain its full utterance only in association with Kafka's ironic fate: alive (1883-1924), to remain almost entirely unknown; dead, to become world famous almost overnight.

One of the "Fragments" reads: "A race began in the woods. The whole place was full of animals. I tried to establish order." Order! Perhaps it represented bliss to this brilliant but disordered man, moving in his "twilight kingdom of shadows," surrounded by the world he considered a "carnivorous culture"; this man who complained of the "deadly tiredness and deadness which always sets in when something delights me," this man who had no stability and no happiness.

He himself deplored his "wicked pessimism," but seemed compelled into becoming the Age of Anxiety's truest symbol. ALVIN R. ROLFS.

Creative Translations

THE CLASSIC ANTHOLOGY AS DEFINED BY CONFUCIUS. Translated by Ezra Pound. (Harvard University Press, $5.)

The word "translation" is something of a misnomer when applied to the work of Ezra Pound. These 305 ancient Chinese odes selected by Confucius are not so much translated by Pound as transformed into English poetry possessing its own original beauty. Pound's translations from the ancient tongues are themselves creative works, as is now widely recognized. Just how close he gets to the Chinese is a matter for purists only. But any lover of English literature can perceive the fiendish ingenuity of rhythm, the evocative use of metaphor, the constantly surprising varieties of form. Pound became a Confucian scholar 40 years ago, and this version of the "Classic Anthology" is the finest fruit of that study. It gives these primitive Chinese poems a place in our own literature.

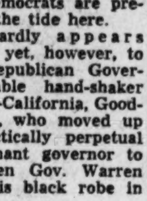
Democrats Waking Up in California

LOS ANGELES.

POLITICALLY, California seems pale this year. That is, if you knew it in its picturesque and often rowdy past. Back in the depression of the 1930s, for example, when it was under the spell of novelist Upton Sinclair and his "End Poverty in California" (EPIC) movement, and of old Doc Townsend and his old-age pension crusade, and of the ham-and-eggers and their $30 every Thursday.

Lucky we are that those furies are diminished though there are still pension movements here—and plenty active, including Doc Townsend still and George McLean, a comparative newcomer. There was, too, the era after that when the mountainous Earl Warren, as Governor, dominated California's politics and held the state in thrall with as near one-party government as is possible for so mercurial a state. Democrats flocked about that Republican leader.



Warren.

The stage here seems empty now. California's leading actors have moved to Washington for their stage. There Earl Warren presides over the Supreme Court and the two younger men, Richard M. Nixon and William F. Knowland, are respectively Vice-President and Administration leader in the Senate.

Toward Two-Party System.

California is constantly conscious of both the young men because of their rivalry to control this great state, now so important in national politics—and in choosing Presidents.

Back home here, California is in a state of transition politically. It seems to be moving away from the semi-non-partisan, mixed-party system that the late Hiram Johnson gave it 40 years ago, in an impulse of idealism, and is moving toward two-party government and responsibility.

While the cross-filing system still is retained, whereby candidates can seek nominations of both major parties, it is modified now to require party designation of candidates which was used first in the primary this year with the result that only three candidates — all Democrats — won both nominations. Usually many more do.

In a fashion, this shook the Democratic party free from its moorings with the Warren all-inclusive party as it existed for so long. The Democratic party now has re-asserted its independence and is standing on its own again. In that you can sense a feeling of pride.

Peace Within the Party.

The outstanding impression of California politics now, in fact, is the new vigor of the Democratic party. That was inspired initially by the removal from the scene of Gov. Warren to whom so many Democrats were loyally devoted, and was helped along by the requirement of party designation on the ballot.

The new hope within the party itself encouraged formerly warring elements to try to bury their factional differences, so that the party is more harmonious today than in years.

This new spirit has found an outlet. California is being washed by the tide of upsurging Democratic strength noted elsewhere, and Democrats are prepared to ride the tide here.

The tide hardly appears strong enough yet, however, to unseat the Republican Governor, the affable hand-shaker and man-about-California, Goodwin J. Knight, who moved up from his practically perpetual role of lieutenant governor to top place when Gov. Warren quit to don his black robe in Washington.

But the tide seems to threaten the Republican Senator, Thomas H. Kuchel, who was appointed to the seat vacated by Vice President Nixon. That is a loss Republicans could ill afford in their closely fought battle to keep control of the Senate.

House Gains Expected.

While Democrats recognize it would take a real tidal wave to unseat Gov. Knight, they have hopes that their candidate for the Senate, Representative Sam Yorty of Los Angeles, may defeat "Tommy" Kuchel who lacks the dramatic campaigning talents of the Democratic congressman.

The Senator has not made much of a splash in Washington; but that is understandable when you consider he has been there only two years—and take a look at the competition in the Warren-Nixon-Knowland combination.

Democrats talk of picking up two to four seats in the House, though they are being hard-pressed for one seat they now hold—that occupied by Representative Robert L. Condon who, you will recall, was denied official party support by National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell because of the Atomic Energy Commission's refusal to give him clearance on the ground of alleged past associations of a questionable nature.

Roosevelt Sure to Win.

For those who are curious, it can be reported that James Roosevelt, who likewise was denied party support by Chairman Mitchell because of family difficulties, is virtually certain of election in the district formerly represented by Sam Yorty which is overwhelmingly Democratic in complexion.

Both parties have complained of apathy among the voters this year. But one of the shrewdest politicians in this state, who happens to be a woman, and happens to be Democratic state chairman — Elizabeth Snyder — says that recently the Democrats are really beginning to go to work and show keen interest.

She says that she gets the same feeling of something really moving in the Democratic direction as in the last two weeks of the now memorable Truman campaign of 1948 in which she was active.

She may be right. Republicans dispute it.

SHAW'S GARDEN SEEKING BATHTUB 60 YEARS OLD

What Shaw's Garden would like to get hold of is a nice bathtub more than 60 years old. Something in early modern.

This advisement was unleashed upon the reading public today by Dr. Hugh Cutler, assistant director of the garden, who announced there seems to be certain difficulty attached to finding a bathtub more than 60 years old.

The tub is needed in the restoration of the home of Henry Shaw, founder of the garden at 2315 Tower Grove avenue. It must be six feet, three inches long and concur with the style of the early 1890s, which is when the first new-fangled bathtub was installed in the historic mansion.

The original tub, a copper or zinc-lined model, believed to have been encased in mahogany, was removed long ago. Where did all those tubs go, anyhow? Dr. Cutler wishes that anybody knowing the whereabouts of such a bathtub would give him a ring.

THE REV. CLINTON D. BOWMAN FUNERAL WILL BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for the Rev. Clinton D. Bowman, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, Thirteenth street and Gaty avenue, East St. Louis, will be tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at the church, with burial in Mount Hope Cemetery near Belleville.

He had been pastor of the church since 1925 and had previously held pastorates at Granite City and Salisaw, Okla. He served as a chaplain in World War 1. He also was a former vice president of the Metropolitan Church Federation and held several committee posts in the East St. Louis Ministerial Alliance.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Henrietta Bowman; his mother, Mrs. Geraldine Bowman, both of East St. Louis, and two sisters, Mrs. William T. Cannon and Miss Elizabeth Bowman, who lives at Washington College, Tenn.

MORE BACK-RUBBING URGED FOR PATIENTS IN HOSPITALS

Nurses in today's hospitals do too much bookkeeping and not enough back-rubbing, Dr. J. William Thompson, St. Louis physician, told 130 delegates to a three-day Catholic Hospital Association regional meeting at Hotel Sheraton today.

Speaking on "What's Wrong With Patient Care," he attacked the growing concept of the 35-hour hospital workers' week. "You can't sack up the patients from Friday till Monday," he said.

Taking part in the same discussion, Miss Marie Long, St. John's Hospital staff nurse, urged that clerical work be given to nurses's aids, so that more patient care could be done by the nurses themselves. Miss Edna Peterson, director of nursing at Jewish Hospitatl, also suggested that nurses be freed of much office detail. "We must get the nurse back to the bedsides," she said.

LABORATORY TO BE NAMED FOR DR. KARL T. COMPTON

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 4 (AP) — A $3,000,000 laboratory for fundamental research into electronics and atomic energy will be built at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, President James R. Killian Jr. announced today.

The building will be called the Karl Taylor Compton Laboratories for Nuclear Science and Electronics in memory of Dr. Compton, late president and chairman of the M.I.T. corporation and brother of Arthur H. Compton, former chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis.

Dr. Killian told a convocation assembled in commemoration of Dr. Compton that an additional $3,000,000 will be provided for support of the school's work in the electronics and nuclear fields.

More Trumpeter Swans.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP) —The trumpeter swan, once almost extinct, is continuing to gain in its fight for survival. The Fish and Wildlife Service yesterday reported this year's population is 642, a gain of 65 over last year's count. Most of them are in Montana.

NEW ART GALLERY AT WASHINGTON U.

Exhibit Series Opens With E. J. Thias's First Solo Show.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

A new Washington University art gallery opened Saturday with the first one-man show of Edward J. Thias, St. Louis artist and architect. The place of exhibition is the university's School of Architecture Gallery, at the west end of the first floor of Givens Hall.

Buford Pickens, architectural school dean since the fall of 1953, explained that devotion of this space, formerly a drafting room, to public exhibits is part of an expanded program of displays to be co-ordinated later in the year with public lectures by visiting authorities.

Public purpose of the plan is to help people in general see architecture in relation to other arts. From the architectural school's internal viewpoint, the idea is to induce students to drop narrow "trade school" concepts of their calling, Dean Pickens said, and make them realize the architect's broad creative sphere.

Traveling shows already booked include "Reunion of Architecture and Engineering," lent by the Museum of Modern Art, New York, and "The Skyscraper," circulated by the American Federation of Arts, Washington, D. C.

A display of models and photographs of the work of Buckminster Fuller of New York will open next month and extend through the year, coinciding with the exhibitor's term as a visiting member of the faculty.

Other noted architects scheduled for the coming academic year, some of whom will give public lectures, include Igor Polevitzky of Miami, president of the Florida chapter of the American Institute of Architects; William W. Caudill, Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College professor, College Station, Tex., and Minoru Yamasaki of Detroit.

Thias's exhibition comprises 25 water colors, many of which have been seen one at a time in group shows at City Art Museum, Kiel Auditorium and the Artists' Guild. In style they reflect a diversity of approach that is healthy in an artist at Thias's stage of development. A 1951 graduate of the School of Architecture, he is 30 years old.

Latest and largest of his pictures is "Green Moon." This is also representative of his work at its most personal and has not been shown before.

This weird group of struggling, jostling buildings constitutes an adaptation of analytical cubism to express Thias's own feelings about architecture. Under an emerald sky, starless and intense in hue, distorted angular structures are enveloped in a dreamlike, surrealist atmosphere and suffused with ghostly greens.

Principal thme of the show is architecture in many moods and from many angles—soaring heavenward from a worm's eye view, foreshortened from a bird's, jumbled in dynamic compositions in the mind's eye of the artist-architect.

Rounding out the surprising collection are examples of realism competent enough to have passed exacting juries, experimental abstractions of structural parts and diversely-proportioned rectangles, and extremely fluid, almost uncontrolled abstracts, practically doodles, much like Emil Nolde's "Swimming Turtle" at City Art Museum.

Thias's show will close Oct. 16.

Physiology Is Far-Reaching Frontier, Dr. Evarts Graham Says

Too Little Is Known About Processes That Enable Patient to Recover From Operation, St. Louisan Asserts.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 4—Surgeons can operate on any part of the human body and "the anatomical frontier is now being closed," but "a wide and far-reaching physiological frontier is just beginning to be explored," Dr. Evarts A. Graham of St. Louis said today in a paper, on chest surgery.

He spoke at the centennial celebration of the Emory University School of Medicine and received an honorary degree of doctor of science. Dr. Graham is emeritus Bixby professor of surgery at Washington University.

Surgery of the inside of the heart was the last anatomical frontier, he said, but, as for physiology, too little is known for example about the processes of repair that enable a patient to recover from an operation.

Far-Reaching Frontier.

"The physiological frontier is capable of indefinite expansion if we think of a surgeon as one who is interested in something more than cutting and sewing," he said.

"Why should he not be interested in developing methods of treatment other than by operation? Would it not be an exciting adventure for a surgeon to discover a method of dissolving gallstones . . . so that operations for that condition would become at least infrequent or even obsolete?

"Would not any surgeon be happy to discover a method which would eradicate cancer by the simple use of the hypodermic syringe?"

Surgeon's Work May Be Limited.

The surgeon's work may become more limited by new advances, he said, but there will always be a need for it because "until homo sapiens becomes more sapient I can see no prospect of his ever avoiding the foolishness of war, or of his learning that two automobiles cannot occupy the same spot at the same time, sepecially when they come from opposite directions."

If newer, more potent antibiotics with a wider range of application are discovered, "the surgeon will be called upon less and less to perform operations for infections, even including tuberculosis," he said.

The problem of tumor is difficult, "yet the time must come when many kinds of neoplasm (tumor), perhaps even cancer itself, will be treated by other means than present-day surgery," Dr. Graham asserted. "Don't ask me how. It is for the young men to find out."

CHARLES J. EGGEMAN DIES, FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for Charles J. Eggeman, Tenafly (N.J.) cost accountant for the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., will be tomorrow at 9 a.m. at St. Pius the Fifth Catholic Church, 3304 South Grand boulevard, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Eggeman, 54 years old, died of a heart ailment Friday in a Teaneck (N.J.) hospital after a month's illness. He attended St. Louis public schools, was graduated from the University of Illinois, and left here about 25 years ago but was a frequent St. Louis visitor.

A past president of the New York chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants, he was a director of the national group and was active in civic affairs in Tenafly. Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Ida S. Eggeman, 3512 McKean avenue, and a sister, Mrs. Edmund F. Sousa, Washington, D.C.

60TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Wolf, 3174 Oregon avenue, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary yesterday with an open house for their family and friends. Wolf, a native of Carlinville, Ill., is 85 years old. His wife Lillie, who was born in St. Louis, is 76. The Wolfs were married here.

Wolf was a clothing cutter at Marx and Haas-Korrekt Co., 1234 Washington avenue, before his retirement about 20 years ago. The pair has two sons, both of North Hollywood, Calif., six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

ART MUSEUM BUYS 5 MASTER DRAWINGS

$3800 Paid for Van Gogh Landscape—Flemish, Italian Schools Represented.

Purchase of five European masters' drawings for a total of $5122 was announced today by the City Art Museum. They have been placed on extended display in the museum's recent accessions gallery. Dutch, Flemish and Italian schools are represented.

Prices paid dealers in Paris, London, Los Angeles and Berkeley, Calif., ranged from $3800, for Vincent Van Gogh's "Landscape," to $270 for Giovanni Guercino's "The Louse Hunters."

Other drawings purchased were Giovanni Domenico Tiepolo's "Donkey," costing $380; Jacob Jordaens's "Studies of Heads and Hands," $350, and Giovanni Battista Piranesi's "Studies of Figures," $322.

In announcing the purchases, made over the last two years, Director Perry T. Rathbone remarked that these five painters are also famous as draftsmen. The St. Louis museum's drawing collection is small compared with those of other American museums, he added.

These drawings were acquired, he said, because of rising public interest in drawings, as reflected in attendance figures at the museum's showing of French master drawings in January 1953.

The Van Gogh, major acquisition of the group, was purchased because of popular response here to "the great series of drawings" in the touring Van Gogh centennial exhibition, Rathbone said.

This picture, more finished than the others, is in ink and water color. It depicts a lone figure moving across pale green and pale pink fields beneath an overcast sky. Probable date of the drawing is 1881, nine years before the artist took his own life.—H.D.

Her other teaching assignments included St. Peter's School in Chicago and St. Francis Borgia School in Washington, Mo. She retired three years ago. Funeral services will be at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday at Villa Gesu, with burial in the cemetery there.

IOWA DEAN TO GET CHEMICAL AWARD

Dr. Ralph M. Hixon Helped Develop Output of Starch From New Source.

Dr. Ralph M. Hixon of Iowa State College, Ames, who helped develop production of starch from a new source in World War II, will receive the 1954 Midwest Award of the St. Louis section of the American Chemical Society, Dr. Barrett L. Scallet, section chairman, announced today.

Dr. Hixon directed studies that aided in bringing about manufacture of starch from a variety of corn known as waxy maize, now a multi-million dollar business. This new source helped avert a shortage of starch, used in explosives and medicines, as well as other industrial products.

He is former head of the chemistry department at the Iowa college and has been dean of the graduate school there since 1948. He has done other research in starch and sugar chemistry and has helped in the improvement of hybrid corn. The award will recognize his achievements in agricultural chemistry and in education.

Presentation will take place Nov. 1 at a banquet at Le Chateau Restaurant on Clayton road, Frontenac. He will be the tenth recipient of the award, given annually to a Midwest scientist for "meritorious contributions" in chemistry.

CARDINAL BORGONGINI DUCA, NUNCIO TO ITALY, DIES

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 4 (AP) — Cardinal Francesco Borgongini Duca, Roman Catholic apostolic nuncio to Italy, died today of a heart attack. He was 70 years old.

His death increased to three the number of vacancies in the College of Cardinals, which Pope Pius XII in January 1953 had brought to its full complement of 70 members for the first time in more than 200 years.

Cardinal Borgongini Duca himself was one of the 24 new cardinals created at that time. Unlike most of the others, however, he did not receive his biretta from the Pope. For the first time it was conferred on him by the head of the Italian state, President Luigi Einaudi. The privilege conferred by the Pope on Italy has been extended previously to France, Portugal and Spain.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Brennan Joins Lopez At the Wailing Wall.

NOT all the grief developed last weekend was suffered by the Cleveland Indians and their pilot Alfonso Lopez . . . in fact, a telegram from Al to Terry Brennan, coach of the Notre Dame Irish today could read: "Accept my condolences—I know just how you feel."

Young Terry heads a team that was regarded as the collegiate group most likely to succeed, this year. . . . It had been rated No. 1. . . . And the previous Saturday it had knocked off the strong Texas U. unit, 21 to 0. . . . Then, along came Purdue's Boilermakers and knocked over Terry's applecart, 27-14. What happens next?

Brennan had gridiron company in his distress. . . . That upstart at Palo Alto, Chuck Taylor by name, who continually is shocking forecasters with upsets, did it again when his Stanford University Indians very definitely chilled Illinois and Coach Ray Eliot's title hopes, score 12-2.

* * *

THAT was only the beginning of the weekend anguish. . . . Army crushed Michigan . . . Minnesota slaughtered Pittsburgh, while Hugh Daugherty's Michigan State Spartans — Rose Bowl champion of 1954 — bit the dust for the second time, Wisconsin winning and taking over as conference favorite.

Another grief-stricken leader must be Jim Tatum whose Maryland Terrapins had been given a rating in the king row, just behind the Irish, in popular esteem.

And now it appears that Red Sanders' U.C.L.A. Bruins, (they trounced the Terrapins, 12 to 7, and dominated most of the game), may enter a claim for the No. 1 rating—at least for the moment.

* * *

All of which bears out our suggestion of last week that the seats of the mighty often get mighty hot.

* * *

More Grief Lies Ahead, Grid Schedule Shows.

NOTRE DAME would seem to have a chance to regain stride this week, with what now appears to be a weak Pittsburgh team to face. . . . Southern California messed up the Panthers 27-7, two weeks ago. . . But last week Pitt 46 points to 7.

* * *

That could mean, however, that both Southern Cal. and Minnesota have powerful machines this year . . . Northwestern's Coach Bob Voights could tell us more about the situation, later . . . His Wildcats held the Trojans to a one-touchdown margin last weekend, and battle the Gophers next Saturday in one of the four Big Ten conference games . . . The Gophers now are rolling along and may furnish a surprise by becoming a Rose Bowl factor.

* * *

One Big Ten game that will be closely watched this week will take place at Champaign where the Ohio Buckeyes, victors over the Indiana and the strong California Golden Bears, will test whether there's anything left to the title pretensions of the twice-beaten Illini.

* * *

Purdue Joins List of Big Ten Title Hopes.

ALSO, the big stadium at Ann Arbor will be packed to see the rather sensational Iowa Hawkeyes do their stuff against the Wolverines. . . . The Hawkeyes, some Iowans believe, will emerge from the Big Ten shuffle to contest with Wisconsin for the trip to Pasadena next New Years day. . . . Iowa's starting team is reportedly a tough one, but depth is lacking.

* * *

Just now Purdue, Iowa and Wisconsin seem to rate real consideration as the Rose Bowl representative from the Big Ten.

* * *

This weekend Rice Institute will be the attraction and the Badgers will hardly play host with the visitors. . . . For a team that must be built up from a male enrollment of fewer than 1500 the Owls have made a surprising showing through the years.

And last Saturday they gave Cornell a rather scandalous beating.

The Army Mule Once More Shows a Kick.

ONE of the grid surprises of two weeks ago was South Carolina's defeat of Army. . . . But the Cadets' rebound in defeating Michigan 26-7 one week later was almost as great a shock. . . . It now appears that the two service groups will both rate well up among the country's major football teams. . . . Navy swept over Dartmouth 42-7 to convince midshipmen everywhere that they have what it takes at Annapolis,, this year.

* * *

Incidentally we'll find out how good another team is when the Navy and Stanford meet. . . . Stanford again threatens to become the Cinderella outfit of the Coast Conference.

* * *

The title picture in both football conferences which are tied up in the Rose Bowl agreement is anything but clear at this writing, except in one particular. . . . The U.C.L.A. Bruins at present definitely are regarded as the strongest unit in the PCC. . . . But California, after a shaky start, is improving right along. . . . The Southern California Trojans are regarded as formidable. . . . And Stanford is the dark horse, as it was last year.

The Michigan-Iowa and the Northwestern - Minnesota games should clarify the Big Ten situation a little.

Giants Won't Stand Pat; Likely to Barter Hearn, Lockman

Grissom, Irvin and Maglie at Age Limit

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—The New York Giants won the world series in four straight games but they have no intention of standing pat on the lineup that turned in the biggest surprise in many a baseball season.

"There'll be some changes," said Vice President Chuck Feeny, although he contends the talent that won the National League pennant and beat the favored Cleveland Indians in the world series should improve because it is a young club.

He singled out Johnny Antonelli, 24, and Willie Mays, 23, as standout performers all season. Antonelli won 21 games during the regular season, took one world series contest and saved another. Mays led the league in batting with a .345 average.

On the basis of age, Feeney figures Sal Maglie, Marv Grissom and Monte Irvin may be headed down hill. By the time the 1955 season rolls around, Maglie will be 38, Grissom 37 and Irvin 35. Maglie and Grissom both played important roles in this year's conquests.

Pitcher Jim Hearn, who was not of much use this season, and possibly First Baseman Whitey Lockman, who had personal differences with Manager Leo Durocher, may be put on the trading block.

Victory Is Best Balm.

Rumors throughout the regular season persisted that Manager Durocher and his boss, President Horace Stoneham of the Giants, weren't exactly on chummy terms. But they were Saturday when Stoneham embraced Leo in the clubhouse after the Giants had applied the crusher.

The elated Giant owner lauded Leo for his brilliant masterminding in the series, a feeling that was shared by all baseball people.

"The boys played great, and I'm proud of them," said Team Captain Alvin Dark. "But don't forget, it was Leo, with a brilliant job of managing, who put us into the series. And he was never better than in that series."

It was Durocher who moved Whitey Lockman away from first base in perfect position to grab Bob Lemon's line drive in the ninth inning of the first game with the leading run on third base.

It was Leo, too, who kept the "hot" Rhodes on the bench for availability in time of need. He also had a clean slate in his choice of relief pitchers. First Marv Grissom, then Hoyt Wilhelm, Wilhelm again and finally Johnny Antonelli stopped Indian uprisings.

Post-Mortem on Lake Front.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4 (INS)—Manager Al Lopez, still mystified over Cleveland's collapse in the world series, huddled with General Manager Hank Greenberg today to ponder ways of strengthening the winningest team in American League history.

"I'm going to spend the day with Hank and will talk things over," said the mild-mannered senor, who plans to head for his Tampa (Fla.) home tomorrow to "just loaf."

"We're going to try to be stronger next season," Lopez said, "but, of course, sometimes that's easier said than done."

Lopez, who saw his record-breaking American League champs wither at the hands of the National League's New York Giants, said he has definite ideas on where the team needs improvement but he refused to elaborate.

"Our pitching will be pretty solid next season," Lopez explained. Up from the American Association to bolster the Tribe's hurling corps will be strike-out king Herbie Score.

Rumors still persist that the Indians—a nifty bit of baseball property—will change hands before long. Tribe officials have denied the reports but they still keep cropping up.

Despite the fact that the Indians blew the world series to the Giants they are still worth plenty on the baseball market and could bring a record price.

Memorable Moments of Series

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4 (AP)—Memorable moments of the 1954 world series:

FIRST GAME

Willie Mays's catch of Vic Wertz's 450 foot drive in the eighth with two on and the score 2-2. The Giant outfielder turned his back on the diamond and ran to the wall to catch what looked like a triple or possibly a homer that could have decided the game. "After that we never were the same," said Indian Manager Al Lopez.

Dusty Rhodes's pinch homer in the tenth with two on to win the game for the Giants, 5-2.

SECOND GAME

Mays's throw to the plate on Wally Westlake's single in the first with two on and two out, to keep Al Rosen from scoring.

Hank Thompson's stop on Bob Avila's grounder in the fourth with an off balance throw to catch Al Smith at second—the most spectacular of a number of fine defensive plays by the unsung third baseman of the Giants, who made four hits, drew seven bases on balls, scored six runs, figured in every important Giant rally.

Rhodes's second dramatic appearance as a pinch hitter, with a single in the fifth that tied the score at 1-1, followed by his booming homer in the seventh that clinched the game by a 3-1 score.

THIRD GAME

Don Mueller's punch single to left field on a perfect hit and run play in the third, with the Indian defense drawn completely out of position, setting the stage for Rhodes's third appearance as a pinch hitter—and a bases loaded single that scored two runs. Clinched the Giants' eventual 6-2 victory and tied the series record for pinch hits.

FOURTH GAME

The only real highlights from an Indian viewpoint—Hank Majeski's pinch homer in the fifth with two on that made it 7-3 for the Giants, but temporarily revived Cleveland's hopes.

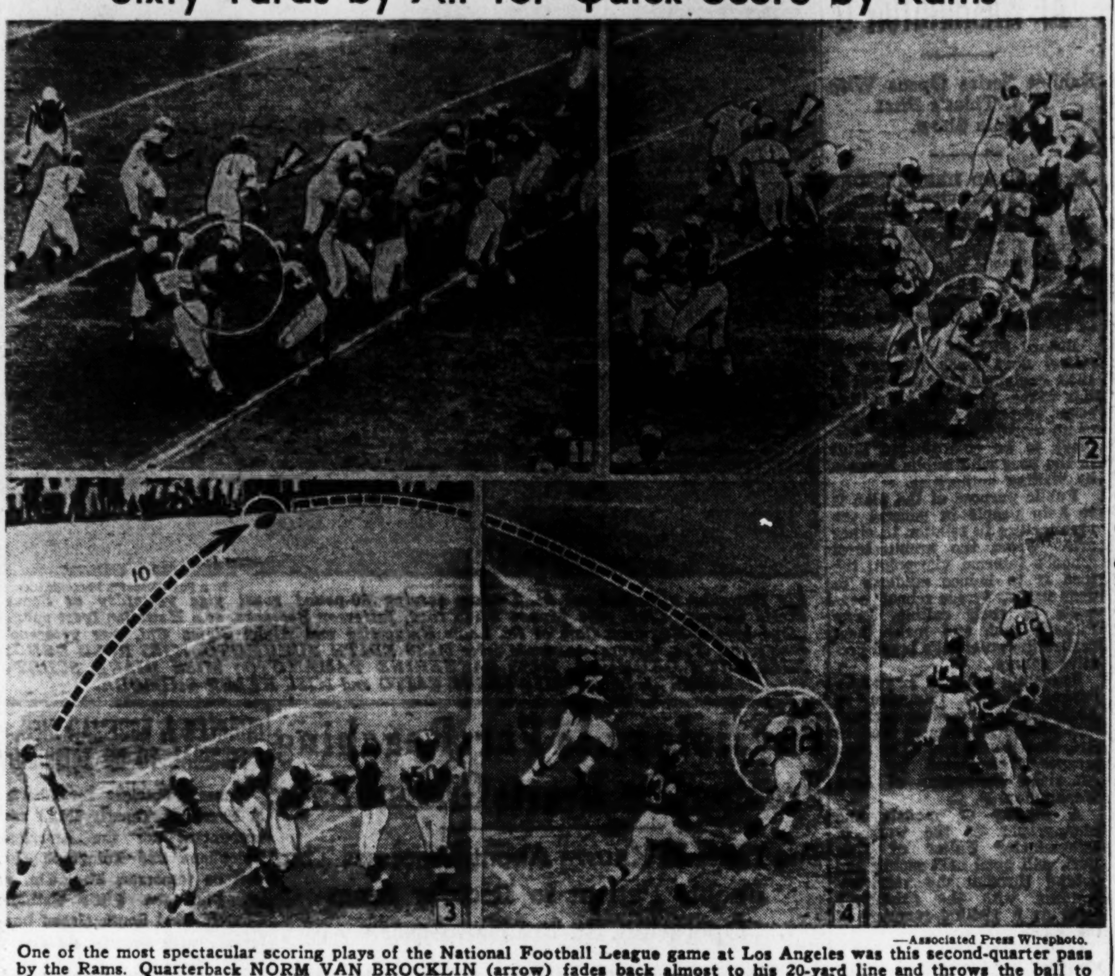
The comeback of Monte Irvin—known up to then only as the man that Rhodes was sent in to bat for—as he hit a double in the second and a bases loaded single in the fifth to score two runs.

Hoyt Wilhelm's subduing of Dave Pope—who had been a thorn in the side of the Giant knuckle-ball pitcher all spring—with a weak tap to the box. Two men were on base and the tying run was at the plate.

Johnny Antonelli's striking out of Vic Wertz and Wally Westlake in the eighth with two men on base.

Dale Mitchell's foul to Thompson that ended the game and gave the Giants a 7-4 victory and the series in an unexpected, almost unbelievable, clean sweep.

Sixty Yards by Air for Quick Score by Rams



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

One of the most spectacular scoring plays of the National Football League game at Los Angeles was this second-quarter pass by the Rams. Quarterback NORM VAN BROCKLIN (arrow) fades back almost to his 20-yard line and throws the ball to End BOB BOYD (circled) who received just beyond the 20-yard line of the San Francisco 49ers. Van Brocklin, starting the play, fakes a pitchout to SKEET QUINLAN (21) and then, well protected by a wall of blockers, gets off the long pass. Boyd outran Defenders REX BERRY (23) and JOHNNY WILLIAMS to the goal line. The game ended in a 24-24 tie.

Forty-Niners and Rams Batter Each Other to Tie Before 93,563, So Lions Are Likely to Benefit

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (UP)—The San Francisco Forty-Niners and Los Angeles Rams like to kick each other around and their latest clash may make it easier for the Detroit Lions to capture the National Football League's Western Division title for the third straight year.

The Forty-Niners and Rams are the chief threats to Detroit hopes. But the bruising, 24-24 tie the West Coast rivals played before 93,563 fans Sunday at the Los Angeles Coliseum figures to help the Lions because:

1. Ties don't count in figuring the division standings, so both the Forty-Niners and Rams have "lost" a game in the tie column of what figures to be a close race.

2. Both the Forty-Niners and Rams suffered serious injuries with Los Angeles slated to meet the well-rested Lions next Sunday at Detroit. Hamp Pool, Ram coach who gets his ideas about rough football from his playing days with the Chicago Bears, said "the game was real rough and the tackling and blocking were as hard as I have ever seen in any game."

No Baseball or Football.

The Philadelphia Eagles wiped out a 16-point deficit to beat the Chicago Cardinals, 35-16, and the Bears rallied to beat the Green Bay Packers, 10-3, in the only other games yesterday. The scheduled game between the champion Lions and the Browns at Cleveland was set back to Dec. 19 because Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick figured there probably would be a World Series game there yesterday.

In Saturday night action, the Pittsburgh Steelers swamped the Washington Redskins, 37-7, and the Baltimore Colts defeated the New York Giants, 20-14. The Eagles and Steelers are tied for the Eastern Division lead with 2-0 records. The Lions, Forty-Niners and Rams have 1.000 marks in the Western race, but Detroit is fairly healthy and untied.

Bob Carey, Ram offensive end, and Don Burke, a Forty-Niner guard, were carried off on stretchers in a game marked by flying fists and personal foul penalties. Burke and Art Michalik, another Forty-Niner guard may be out for the season with twisted knees but Y. A. Tittle, balding quarterback, may be San Francisco's most serious casualty. He played the entire game, but suffered a possible broken bone in his left hand on the second play.

Tittle completed 23 out of 35 passes, but Norm Van Brocklin of the Rams teamed with End Bob Boyd for the game's most spectacular play. Norm heaved a pass 60 yards in the air to Boyd for a 70-yard touchdown.

Towler Gets Tying TD.

The Forty-Niners took a 24-17 lead in the last period when they recovered a fumble by Fullback Dan Towler on their five and marched 95 yards. Hugh McElhenny raced the final 28 yards to score. But a jarring tackle by Leo McLaughlin caused Hugh to fumble a punt shortly after that and Charley Twogood recovered for Los Angeles on the Forty-Niner 34. Towler scored five plays later to force a tie.

"The breaks decided it. They got a break on Towler's fumble but we got more than our share. We just couldn't stop Tittle and McElhenny," Pool said.

Bobby Walston caught three touchdown passes and converted five times for 23 points to help Eagle passers Adrian Burk and Bobby Thomason outscore the Cardinals at Chicago. Card rookie Les Goble ran the opening kickoff 92 yards to score.

George Blanda gave the Bears the points they needed with a five-yard TD pass to Billy Stone after Tackle Paul Lipscomb had recovered Packer Quarterback Tobin Rote's fumble on the Green Bay seventh in the Wisconsin city.

Passing Stars on Saturday.

In the Saturday games, Jim Finks completed 12 of 19 passes to lead the Steelers to an easy victory and Baltimore's Gary Kerkorian threw two scoring passes to Buddy Young and one to rookie halfback Boyce Womble.

The Rams-Forty-Niners game at Los Angeles drew 93,563—more than the combined attendance of the other four weekend contests.

Saturday night's Colts-Giants game at Baltimore drew 27,088 and the Steelers-Redskins game at Pittsburgh attracted 22,492. In the other Sunday contests, the Packers and Bears drew 24,414 at Green Bay while the Eagles and Cardinals drew a slim 17,084 at Chicago.

Wertz Concealed Painful Hand Injury to Avoid Being Benched

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4 (UP)—Vic Wertz, lone standout in the Cleveland shambles, revealed today he played the entire world series with a painful hand injury which he concealed so he wouldn't be benched.

Wertz, who led the regulars of both clubs with a .500 average for the series, was reluctant to talk about the injury even now "because I'm not looking for sympathy and I don't want to be considered a hero."

The Cleveland first baseman suffered what might be a severe bone injury in his left hand the final week of the season. Wertz doesn't know the extent of the injury because he avoided seeing a doctor about it.

"It got worse as the series went along," Wertz said. "If I didn't meet the ball just right, I'd have a terrible pain shoot through my entire hand. And every ball I caught was murder even though it was my glove hand.

"Before the series started, I wasn't sure whether I could play or not. If it wasn't the World Series, I certainly would have asked to be benched."

In an effort to ease the pain, Wertz obtained a small sponge and used it every time he went up to hit in the series.

"I hoped no one would notice the sponge," he said, "but two people did—Manager Al Lopez and a writer.

"The writer asked me about it before the first game and I told him the truth. I asked him if he'd please not write anything about it because I knew that Al might bench me if he found out. The fellow promised he wouldn't and he kept his word."

Lopez's curiosity wasn't curbed so easily, however.

"When Al saw me going up to the plate with the sponge," Wertz said, "he guessed something was wrong with my hand. He asked me how serious it was and I told him it didn't hurt much at all."

Wally Moon Is Selected N.L. Rookie of Year

Wally Moon, who hit .303 for the Cardinals and Pitcher Bob Grim, 20-game winner for the New York Yankees, were named major league rookies of the year by The Sporting News.

Moon received 126 votes in the National League balloting to 8 for his closest rival, outfielder Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves, in the poll of sports writers, umpires and players.

Grim picked up 134 votes in the American League. Second with 14 was Jim Finigan, Philadelphia Athletics third baseman.

Both rookies took themselves and their club officials off the spot by their outstanding play, The Sporting News said.

St. Louis fans were disgruntled when Enos Slaughter was sold on the eve of opening day to the Yanks and Moon replaced him.

The 24-year-old Texas A.&M. graduate homered his first time at bat opening day and ended the last game of the season with a winning homer. In between, he led the club in stolen bases and missed the coveted 200-hit mark by only seven.

Grim, also 24, came back from the Marines hoping for a berth with Kansas City, No. 1 Yankee farm club. Meanwhile, New York fans were criticizing the Yankee front office for selling Pitcher Vic Raschi to the Cardinals.

Grim made them forget it by becoming the first Yank rookie in 44 years to win 20 games.

Delock Pitches Louisville to 9-to-1 Victory

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 4 (UP)—The Louisville Colonels jumped on travel-weary Syracuse for five unearned runs in the first inning and coasted to a 9 to 1 victory yesterday in the opening game of the Little World Series.

The International League team didn't clinch the playoff title in its own loop until Saturday night, and arrived here yesterday morning after an all-night plane ride from Montreal.

This showed up when starter Kent Peterson walked three men in the first inning and center fielder Bob Bowman dropped Lew Damman's shallow fly to center field, allowing two runs. Then Colonel shortstop Don Buddin rapped a 385-foot triple to right center, and scored on Catcher Pete Daley's single.

Righthander Ike Delock subdued the Syracuse batters, allowing only five hits and striking out 10. He gave up a run in the sixth when pinch hitter Ben Tompkins and Left fielder Don Richmond singled, and First Baseman Marv Blaylock flied deep to center.

The American Association playoff champs piled up four more in the sixth off reliefer Joe Tully, three of them coming on a home run over the right field wall by Center Fielder Marty Keough. Catcher Ray Holton doubled Buddin home with the other.

A crowd of 10,591 watched Louisville's first appearance in the series since 1946.

Two more games will be played here before the series moves to Syracuse.

Former major league southpaw Bill Werle will attempt to pitch the Colonels to a two-game lead tonight. He will be opposed by right-hander Jack Meyer, who won three games for the Chiefs during the International League playoffs. The box score:

Both Maryland and Irish Take Back Seat as Purdue Faces Duke

Illinois (0-2) Now Plays Ohio

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (UP)—Sports fans just turning to college football today, now that the world series is over, will find things mighty changed at the old homestead because the top teams of 1953, including Maryland and Notre Dame, aren't running things any more.

The same weekend that saw the Giants kill off the Indians in four straight also saw Maryland, last year's national champion, and Notre Dame, last year's runner-up, knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten.

And there were plenty of other surprises — for example, those perennial powerhouses, Michigan State (the Rose Bowl champion), Illinois (co-Big Ten champion), and Pennsylvania, were all beaten for the second time.

Notre Dame's 27-14 walloping by Purdue on Saturday was the big "shocker," though, because the Fighting Irish had been rated the nation's No. 1 team after blasting Texas a week before. The game catapulted Purdue sophomore Quarterback Len Dawson into national fame as he tossed four touchdown passes to end Notre Dame's unbeaten streak at 13 games.

With a total of eight TD passes in two games (he also had four last week against Missouri), young Dawson easily qualifies as the most sensational individual performer so far this season.

Maryland bowed to U.C.L.A., 12-7, on Friday night as the Uclans scored the winning touchdown in the fourth quarter after a Maryland punt had carried from the end zone only to Maryland's 15-yard line.

Illinois, beaten by Penn State in an upset last week, took a 12-2 whipping from Stanford in Saturday's nationally televised game as Stanford's rugged defense held '53 ground-gaining champ J. C. Caroline to 38 yards rushing.

Michigan State, stunned the week before by Iowa, was just about washed out of the Big Ten title race as it went down again, 6-0, before Wisconsin. Alan Ameche scored the winning touchdown on a disputed play—with Leroy Bolden injured on the ground, State had only 10 men on the field and was trying to call time out.

Pennsylvania, crushed by Duke a week before, seemed on the way out as a football power as it took a 27-7 trouncing from William & Mary, Charlie Summer of W. & M. highlighting the game with an 89-yard touchdown dash.

Among the most impressive winners of the weekend were Duke, Ohio State, Southern California, Army, Rice, and Navy.

Duke followed up its rout of Pennsylvania by scoring an important 7-6 triumph over Tennessee on Jim Nelson's point-after-touchdown; Ohio State rolled to a 21-13 victory over California as Howard (Hopalong) Cassady led the way with two touchdowns; Southern California proved alert in grabbing 10 fumbles to beat Northwestern, 12-7, in another big intersectional; Army, upset by South Carolina in a stunning season opener last week, made the "comeback of the week" to wallop Michigan, 26-7, after taking command with two touchdowns in the first 10 minutes, and Rice crushed Cornell, 41-20, as Dick Moegle scored four touchdowns, and Navy stamped itself as one of the East's very best teams by blasting Dartmouth, 42-7, with six touchdowns in the last 17 minutes.

Wisconsin hurls Alan Ameche at Rice in the nationally televised game this coming Saturday.

Purdue will follow up its triumph over Notre Dame with an important game against Duke and Stanford will play host to Navy in other headline intersectional games, while Notre Dame tries a comeback against Pittsburgh and Penn State faces Virginia in others.

Conference play also picks up with Ohio State playing Illinois and Iowa facing Michigan in top Big Ten games, California facing Oregon and UCLA visiting Washington in the Pacific Coast, Wake Forest hosting Maryland in the Atlantic Coast, Princeton clashing with Pennsylvania in a tradition-steeped Ivy Leaguer, Nebraska playing Kansas State in the Big Seven, and Oklahoma opening its southwest conference title bid against Texas.

Other outstanding victories were scored Saturday by:

Penn State, by a close 13-0 over Syracuse, in a game virtually devoid of passing; Yale, 26-24, over Brown as Brown missed all four extra-point tries for a total of seven misses in seven tries this season; Minnesota, 46-7 over Pittsburgh as irate Pitt rooters razzed Coach Red Dawson with "So Long, Red" signs; Massachusetts, a 13-7 upset of Harvard on a last-period TD; Princeton, 54-20 over Columbia as Royce Flippin ran to three TD's and passed to another; Indiana, 34-6 over College of the Pacific as Florin Helsinki passed to two TD's; Utah, 7-6 over Oregon on Lou Mele's touchdown plunge and extra point; Nebraska, 39-14 over Iowa State as Dennis Korinek scored twice; Texas, 40-14 over Washington as Pat Rolar scored two touchdowns; Virginia Tech, an 18-7 upset of Clemson; Texas A.&M., 6-0 over Georgia; Iowa, 48-6 over Montana "under wraps"; West Virginia, a 26-6 upset over South Carolina, Army's conqueror; Cincinnati, 40-7 over Tulsa; Georgia Tech, 10-7 over Southern Methodist on George Volkert's 47-yard TD run in the last quarter; and Washington, which beat Oregon, 17-7, but suffered a grave loss when Sandy Lederman, the nation's top passer so far this season, broke a leg.

Knights to Meet Problems One At Time---Payroll, Then Hill

By John J. Archibald

A former teammate who may have some strong personal feelings about the St. Louis Knights, Halfback Jimmy Hill, will be in the lineup for the Dallas Hornets when they take on the St. Louisans in a non-league professional football game at Oakland Stadium Saturday night.

Hill was the Knights' leading scorer last season, left the club to try out with the Cleveland Browns, returned to the St. Louisans after failing to make the National League club, and finally was dropped by the Knights because of frequent violations of training rules.

Bob Reed, the Knights' president, said he had word from Dallas that Hill has been signed. Dallas is his home town.

Before worrying about Saturday night, the Knights must pass a financial hurdle Wednesday when their first pay roll comes due. The amount is $7000. Reed said that the team, despite disappointing crowds at its two home games thus far, will be able to pay the players as promised.

Last Saturday the team suffered a blow when the Grand Rapids, Mich., team refused to take the field for the second half of their game here after trailing 34-0 at the intermission. Their manager, Joe Skyricki, demanded that their guarantee of $2500 be paid in cash, and would not accept a check because "the Knights had lost money last year."

Reed said, however, that when he was first called to the Grand Rapids dressing room, most of the teams players were already changing into street clothes. He said he believed that the fact that they were behind by such a large score was largely responsible for their actions.

The Dallas team, composed of former Southwest Conference players, is one of several that is interested in joining the Knights in a league next season, Reed reported.

$10,810 to Each Giant; Indians To Get $6457

CLEVELAND, Oct. 4 (AP)—The New York Giants, winner of the world series in four straight games, and the losing Cleveland Indians both will receive record payoffs according to a reliable baseball source.

The official split of the players' pool totaling $598,763.72 is expected to be announced within a few days by Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick but the source said the Giants have split their part into 34½ shares and the Indians into 38½.

On that basis, a full share in the winners' pool would amount to $10,810 and to $6457 for the losers. Up to now the biggest winning share was $8230.63 which went to the New York Yankees last year and the largest losing share was $6178.42 collected last year by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

It also was learned that the all-time high players' pool will be increased by 85 per cent of a $105,000 fee from a pre-series television show. That would boost the grand total to $888,013.72 with 70 per cent or $621,609.60 divided between the Giants and the Indians on a 60-40 basis.

The remaining 30 per cent is split among the clubs finishing second, third and fourth in each league.

The series receipts of $1,200,000 from television and radio go into the major league central fund, which supports the players' pension fund.

Sjogren Is Victor in 30-Kilometer Walk

ATLANTIC CITY, Oct. 4 (AP)—Leo Sjorgren, 40, a tool and die maker representing the Finnish-American A.C. of New York City, yesterday won the national championship 30-kilometer walk. His time for the 10-lap, 18¾-mile jaunt was 2:58:02.

James Hewson of St. Francis Xavier A.C., Buffalo, N.Y., was second in three hours, and 20 seconds. Stanis Coryell of the Finnish-American A.C. third in 3:07:05.

Only 15 of the 18 starters finished the AAA-approved event with defending champion John Deni dropping out in the eighth lap.

Tom Brown, 85-year-old retired Milwaukee accountant, finished fourteenth in four hours, five minutes. He was followed by 68-year-old Harry Lohman of Woodhaven, N.Y. Lohman's time was four hours, 21 minutes.

'Little Tiger' Billy Rice Bids For Halfback Spot as Faurot Seeks to Replace Fox, Gooch

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 4—Coach Don Faurot sought two replacements at positions already undermanned as the Missouri Tigers began preparations today for their home opener against Southern Methodist University Saturday.

He has written off Bobby Gooch, junior guard, for the season and Jack Fox, senior right halfback, indefinitely after knee injuries both suffered in the 35-7 victory over Kansas State Saturday.

"We'll have to look at "pictures of the game to see which sophomores really did the best job before we will decide what line-up shifts to make," he said.

Brase Braces Tigers.

But he recalled that Bill Rice, East St. Louis sophomore, did a bang-up job as he understudied Fox on his first game appeaarnce. Rice, known as "Little Tiger," and Jack Brase, one of three senior quarterbacks, both turned in creditable performances after Fox was hurt, Faurot said. As long as Vic Eaton and Tony Scardino are able to carry the quarterback duties, it is probable that Brase will be shifted to halfback.

Another possibility is Bob Musgrave, a junior veteran, but he had a side injury and was unable to make the Kansas State trip.

Faurot doubts that Bob Bauman, veteran fullback, will be available this week and Bauman's understudy, Harold Thomeczek, is out for the season with an ankle injury sustained in the Purdue game.

Faurot was pleased with Purdue's victory over Notre Dame. "Purdue is better than we thought," he said. And as an afterthought. "I'm sorry to see that Georgia Tech beat Southern Methodist."

John (Hi) Simmons, the Tiger coach-of-the-year in baseball and chief scout in football, told Faurot that S.M.U. has lots of potential power. He saw the Mustangs drop a 10-7 decision to Georgia Tech.

First Game Jitters.

"They presented the public with a high spirited ball team," he said. "They ran all over the field, but had first-game jitters and fumbled too much.

"And it was so hot they tried two teams, and the second string quarterback had three passes intercepted. That added to their woes."

The Tigers want to turn in a good game and halt a string of five straight defeats handed them by the Mustangs. In fact, in 11 games Missouri has but two decisions to its credit, and one of them was by Chauncey Simpson's 1945 war-year team that qualified for the Cotton Bowl.

Two Shutout Victories in County Soccer

Although they were defeated by a convincing 5-1 score in their first game, members of the Washington U. soccer club looked forward to some success in the newly formed St. Louis County Soccer League. Jack Giesler, organizer of the team which has no official standing in the university sports program, said today he is sure he can add four or five better players to his squad. He named several players of merit who are attending Washington but did not line up in the soccer squad's first game. The more experienced McDonald team scored a fully deserved victory at Heman Park, University City, Ted Cole and Eddie Grant each scoring two goals.

On an adjacent grounds, the Jones team defeated Everton, 5-0, and at the Fee Fee Gardens field, on Fee Fee road, St. Louis County A.C. won from Richmond Heights, 4-0.

4-Deer Bag For Archers

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 4 (AP)—Missouri bow and arrow hunters bagged four deer over the weekend — only one fewer than the total killed in the entire season last year.

The biggest, a 150-pound buck, was shot near old Linn creek yesterday afternoon by Edgar Allen of Lake Ozark, Mo. Allen, who has been shooting a bow only three weeks, was on his first archery deer hunt.

The State Conservation Commission reported these other successful archers:

Tony Mueller of Ste. Genevieve, who got an 80-pound doe yesterday while hunting in the Sugar Bottoms area north of Ste. Genevieve.

Bill Campbell of Lake Ozark, who killed the first deer reported, a doe, Saturday morning in Camden County.

William Daugherty of Clark, Mo., who got a doe Saturday west of the hurricane deck bridge on Route 5 in Camden County.

The season opened last Friday and runs the entire month of October, two weeks longer than last year.

Giants' Captain Gives 10 Per Cent of His Series Cut to Church

YONKERS, N.Y., Oct. 4 (AP)—The Trinity Baptist Church at Lake Charles, La., will be approximately $1000 richer because the New York Giants won the world series.

Alvin Dark, field captain of the Giants, told members of the Calvary Baptist Church Sunday school yesterday that he'll give 10 per cent of his world series share of about $10,000 to his home church.

He said he had been a tither—giving 10 per cent of his earnings to the church—ever since he earned $2.50 weekly as a news boy.

Du Bourg Wins Its First Game In New League

DuBourg High, which had been trying to get into a league for several years, showed it was ready yesterday as the Crusaders defeated DeAndreis, 13 to 0, in the opening game of the new Catholic Athletic Conference.

Both touchdowns came in the second half. Bob Ritchie passed to Don Henry near the 20-yard line and Henry scored in the third quarter. Tom Hennessey scored the extra point on a run.

Late in the fourth period, Bill Cliffe raced 30 yards for another touchdown for Coach Floyd Hacker's club.

In a non-league game at Ste. Genevieve, Valle High scored twice in the final quarter to defeat St. Vincent of Perryville, 18 to 7.

Valle scored in the first quarter when Roland Trautman plunged one yard into the end zone. St. Vinvent went ahead in the third period, however, when Bob Hayden scored from the eight and Ken Cissell ran the extra point.

The home club rallied with touchdowns by Paul Roth and Bill Drury for the victory. Valle defeated Coyle High of Kirkwood earlier this season for Coyle's only loss.

White Sox Purchase Serena From Cubs

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (UP)—The Chicago White Sox said they had bought veteran infielder Bill Serena from their crosstown rivals, the Cubs.

The Sox paid the Chicago National League club an estimated $30,000 for Serena, who played second fiddle this year to Ransom Jackson, a rising star at third.

Frank Lane, Sox general manager, said at Pittsburgh that he bought Serena for "third base insurance."

George Kell had a bad knee this year and Cass Michaels is still bothered by a skull fracture he suffered when he was beaned late in the season.

United States Leads, 2-1, in Davis Cup Play

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 4 (UP)—The United States needed a split in the concluding pair of singles matches today to defeat Mexico in the final round of American zone eliminations in Davis Cup tennis play.

The Americans, heavily-favored to win this series and advance to the interzone finals against Sweden, have been battling uphill since Gustavo Palafox of Mexico scored a stunning upset of United States champion Vic Seixas of Philadelphia in the opening singles match on Saturday.

Former United States champion Tony Trabert of Cincinnati evened the series by winning the second singles match and yesterday Trabert and Seixas at last put the United States team ahead by winning the doubles match from Palafox and Mario Llamas, 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

In today's matches, Trabert was expected to meet Palafox and Seixas, who has been far off form, was to meet Llamas.

A crowd of 4500 at the Chapultepec sports center cheered lustily when the Mexican doubles team rallied to take the second set of yesterday's doubles match to tie the match at one set each.

The winner of this series qualifies to meet Sweden in the interzone finals, which will be held in Australia in early December. The winner of the interzone finals then will meet defending champion Australia for the cup in late December.

Muny Eleven Loses in Iowa

By a Special Correspondent of Post-Dispatch.

FORT MADISON, Ia., Oct. 4—The Fort Madison Bulldogs scored on a 10-yard pass with 30 seconds left to defeat the St. Louis Vets football team, 7-6, here yesterday.

The aerial by the prison team came on fourth down and the extra point on a placekick provided the difference. Only two minutes remained when Fort Madison gained 30 yards on a sleeper play to reach the Vets' 20-yard-line.

Carmen Lombardo's 30-yard pass to Ed Vollmer produced the St. Louisans' TD in the second quarter. George Aiello's pass for the extra point failed. The Vets began their drive when Jim Jones blocked a punt on the Iowans' 45. Another St. Louis attack was stopped by a fumble on the Fort Madison 15.

Jim Wilson, former McBride High halfback, suffered a sprained neck. He had made a 50-yard run earlier.

The Vets' defensive line starred. Standouts were ends Ed Wheatley, Jones and Vollmer and guards Pat Frazier and Larry Johnson. Fort Madison was held to five yards net rushing.

Wayne (1-1-1) Still Tough, Scout Warns High-Riding W. U. Bears

Wayne University of Detroit, which plastered a 33-13 defeat on Washington University a year ago, shapes up as another real test for the Bears this week. They travel to Detroit for the Wayne homecoming game there Saturday.

Les Avery, who has scouted Wayne twice for the Bears, said, "I wish we would have had a little tougher second game in order to get ready for Wayne."

The Bears continued unbeaten Saturday with another multiple-touchdown 52-7 triumph over Illinois Wesleyan. Thus Washington, which had opened with a 58-14 decision over Missouri Mines, has scored 110 points in two games.

In the meantime Wayne, which won only three, lost four and tied one in 1953, has had the same indifferent won-and-lost result this season. It is 1-1-1 with a 7-7 tie against Hillsdale College, a 13-0 victory over Louisville and a 7-0 setback Friday at the hands of Michigan State Normal.

But—says Avery—Wayne is the same hard-playing, aggressive kind of ball club that cracked open Washington in a game at St. Louis last year and it still has the flashy little Pennsylvania halfback, Vic Zucco, who starred against the Bears.

Only nine lettermen returned to the Wayne team this year, but the nature of the team, as a good rugged ball club, has stayed the same, Avery said.

The Bears, however, appear to be considerably improved over the early season date on which they played Wayne last year. That improvement showed as the season progressed last year and hasn't diminished at the start of this campaign.

Reserves showed flashes of good play in the victory over Illinois Wesleyan and the Bears rolled up 292 yards by rushing and a total of 23 first downs.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Oct. 4 (AP)—Strohs of Detroit won the national five-man team elimination match-game bowling tournament last night with a 12-game score of 11,881 pins. It was the third straight year Stroh has won the contest sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

Stroh and runner-up Maibach of Akron, Ohio, will meet in a 24-game home-and-home playoff match for the national team championship Nov. 27-28 at Akron and Dec. 4-5 in Detroit. Maibach finished with 11,813.

The Budweisers of St. Louis finished fourth in the competition with a 11,748 tottal.

Missouri Valley Gets Three Final Quarter Touchdowns to Win

DECATUR, Ill., Oct. 4 (AP)—Missouri Valley exploded for three touchdowns in the final period Saturday night to overwhelm Milliken, 33-7, in a nonconference football game.

Missouri Valley took a 13-0 lead at halftime with halfbacks Cliff Hoppe and Dave Oschsenslager capping sustained drives with short touchdown plunges.

Millikin bounced back into the game in the third period on a 31-yard pass play from Larry Kane to Pete Innis putting the ball on the two-yard line. Fullback Frank Chizevsky plunged over and then ran the extra point to make the score 13-7.

Halfback Billy Smith pulled Missouri Valley out of reach in the fourth period with a 12-yard touchdown. Missouri Valley added two more touchdowns including a 16-yard scoring pass on the last play of the game.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 4 (AP)—Bill Johnson of Webster Groves High shot one of the lowest scores on record in the Missouri State High School golf tournament, a one-under-par 143, for medalist honors in the meet Saturday.

Johnson's teammate, Jay Aldinger, shot a 162 to give Webster Groves an easy victory in the state event. The pair's total of 305 was 20 strokes better than that turned in by second place North Kansas City.

Kansas City Southeast was third and Kansas City Rockhurst fourth. Eleven two-man teams competed in the meet at the Swope Park course.

Southwest Kiwanis advanced to the final round of the Khoury baseball bantam play-offs by defeating the Osage Indians, 5-0. The Kiwanis club previously had beaten the Jefferson Barracks Boys Club, 6-3.

In the Atom division final, Kenny Holtzman, 8-year-old lefthander, made it 34 straight victories as he pitched the Lapps to a 3-2 victory over Francis.

Holtzman, who has 12 no-hitters this season, yielded two hits and struck out 19. His rival, Tim Marting, allowed three hits and fanned 15.

Neumann Wins 114-Mile Bicycle Trial by Inches

Erhard Neumann was the winner by inches in the 114-mile bicycle race held yesterday to qualify Missourians for the Pan-American event.

Less than six inches behind in the race in Chain of Rocks park and roads adjacent to the park were Joe Becker, like Neumann a member of the St. Louis Cycling Club, and Bill Lange Jr., unattached.

Neumann's time was 5:29.45, considered fast because of the heat and strong winds. Other times: Becker, 5:29.45 1-5; Lange, 5:29.45 2-5; John Magyar, Century Road Club of America, 5:31; George Van Meter, unattached, 5:34; Noel Tomlin, St. Louis Cycling Club, 6:10.

Only six riders completed the rough course but four others who rode 65 or more miles will be qualified for the final Pan-American trial over the same course, start and finish at Jennings road and Riverview boulevard, Oct. 17.

Chester Nelsen Jr., St. L.C.C., and Brister Grigsby, Midwest Club, went 80 miles; Milford Courtwright and Jim Dyer, St. L.C.C., 65 miles.

With one lap, 11.4 miles to go, Van Meter's chances were killed when his bicycle became locked in low gear. Neumann opened a three-bike-length lead less than one-fourth mile from the finish.

Creve Coeur Is County Winner

Don Mueller was the first major leaguer to get 200 hits this season and he clubbed .389 in the world series, but brother Lee Mueller showed him a thing or two yesterday—with Don in the stands at Creve Coeur.

Shortstop Mueller, known more for his glove than his bat, whacked a two-run homer in the fourth and a four-bagger with nobody on in the sixth. But even that wasn't enough for his Ballwin team, 5-4, loser to Creve Coeur in the third and deciding game of County Baseball League American division playoffs.

Jules Faron pitched the distance for Creve Coeur, which opens a best-of-three series next Sunday with the Twin City Reds, National division victors.

Piggott Selected to Ride Queen's Horse

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Lester Piggott, 18, who only four days ago got his jockey's license back, yesterday was named to one of Britain's top racing jobs.

Piggott succeeds champion Sir Gordon Richards as jockey for Trainer Noel Murless' Stable. Richards recently retired.

Piggott had been suspended for 103 days after English Jockey Club stewards announced they had taken note of his "dangerous and erractic" riding. His earnings now may be as high as 10,000 pounds ($28,000) a season.

The young jockey's first mount for the Murless' Stable will be Queen Elizabeth's Perambulator Wednesday.

Piggott rode Never Say Die to victory in the Epsom Derby June 2. The horse is owned by Robert Sterling Clark, Upperville, Va.

Harold Smith, Price's father, was tops in the wet fly with 97, and Fred Monnig had a 99 in the dry fly.

Vonnie Colby Wins T-M Title

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Oct. 4 (UP)—Young Vonnie Colby of Hollywood, Fla., won her first major golf tournament yesterday by defeating veteran Polly Riley at Ft. Worth, Tex., 1-up, in the gruelling 36-hole final of the Trans-Mississippi women's amateur.

Miss Colby, a shy 22-year-old distance hitter, outlasted her more experienced opponent in a see-saw battle which ran right down to the finish.

Chunky Polly, five times winner of the Southern amateur and twice champion of the Trans-Mississippi, was a slight favorite as the final round began but Vonnie displayed the same steady game which had won her medalist honors.

The determined pair were all even at the end of the first 18 holes and again at 27 but the match was virtually decided on the thirty-fifth when Miss Riley flubbed an 18-inch putt.

Miss Colby missed a two-footer on the short twenty-seventh hole but it failed to rattle her and she went on to win. The Florida girl and Miss Riley were never more than two holes apart during their tense duel.

Southeast Missouri Wins Third Straight

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Oct. 4 (AP) — Southeast Missouri pushed over two touchdowns in the final period Saturday night to defeat the Memphis Naval Base, 12-0, for their third straight victory. It was the first home game of the season for the Cape squad.

A blocked punt set up Southeast Missouri's first touchdown shortly after the start of the final period when they recovered the ball on the Navy team's 15-yard line. After picking up a first down on the three, it took four more tries before quarterback Larry Yeargan sneaked over from inside the one-yard line for the score.

Then near the end of the game, Ken Hargens intercepted a Memphis pass on his own 10 and romped to the 40 before he was brought down. Five plays later, which included a 30-yard run by Al Ritchie, Ritchie passed to Don Baker in the end zone for the final score.

The Naval team threatened only once when they moved to Cape's 12-yard line in the final quarter but lost the ball on downs.

Great Lakes Eleven Wins From Xavier

CINCINNATI, Oct. 4 (AP)—Former Big Ten football stars playing under the colors of the Great Lakes Naval Training Center crushed Xavier 25-14 last night.

Curt Jones of Purdue, substitute quarterback, made a spectacular pickoff of a Xavier lateral, dashing 85 yards untouched for the touchdown.

Bob Burson of Northwestern completed two touchdown passes, one to Purdue's great Bernie Flowers for 53 yards and the other to Claude Taliaferro of Illinois. Jones passed to Gene Schroeder, former University of Virginia star, for the fourth Sailor touchdown.

It was the third straight defeat for Xavier.

FORD PLANTS TO CLOSE

St. Louis Area Dealers Receiving Last Shipment of '54 Models

LOCAL FORD DEALERS EXPECT COMPLETE SELL-OUT BEFORE '55 MODELS ARRIVE

It is reported today that local dealers expect to sell out their complete stock of 1954 Fords well before the 1955 models are introduced. It is pointed out that at the present rate of Ford sales, buyers who want to take advantage of year-end savings will have to act fast to get their choice of body styles and colors. Buying a new 1954 Ford now has many advantages. A few advantages are bigger year-end savings, features that even some '55 cars may not offer, styling that will stay popular for years, and immediate delivery. Commenting on the news of last '54 model shipments, one dealer was quoted as saying: "We've had such a good supply all year, it's going to seem funny to face the fact that when present stocks of '54s are gone, we'll just have to say 'sorry.' I'm now in the midst of calling my year-end buying customers urging them to come in right away."

MORE THAN 1/3 OF 1954 FORDS HAVE FORD-O-MATIC DRIVE

It looks like Automatic Transmissions are here to stay. Well over one-third of the 1954 Fords built were equipped with Ford-O-Matic Drive. The many improvements made in automatic drives in the past few years have made them extremely desirable in the public's eye. The many advantages Ford engineers have incorporated in Ford-O-Matic is, (1) Low cost operation, (2) Good traction on ice and snow, (3) Braking ability on steep downgrades, and (4) Combined smoothness with fast acceleration. Because of their convenience, and the fact that they have become perfected to present standards, it is believed Automatic Drives will become the most desired accessory on new automobiles.

10 MAKES OF U.S. CARS NOW POWERED WITH V-8 ENGINES

The overhead valve V-8 has now become America's most popular type automobile engine. In 1954, 10 makes of cars were offered with V-8 power plants, and it definitely looks like the engine of the future. Ford first introduced the V-8 engine to low cost motoring 22 years ago. As a result, Ford has gained more experience in the V-8 engine field than any other automobile manufacturer.

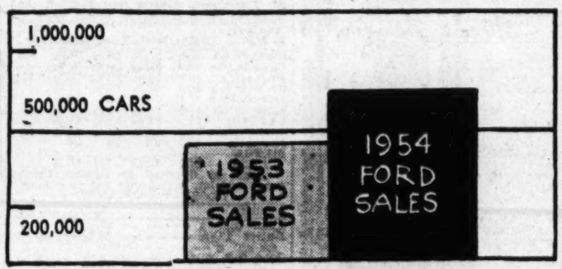

CHART SHOWING 1953 AND 1954 FORD SALES FIGURES FOR FIRST SIX MONTHS

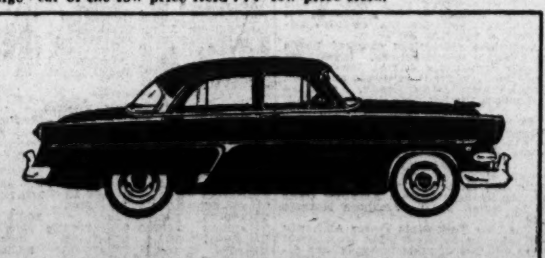
'54 FORD SALES UP 48% OVER SAME PERIOD LAST YEAR

'54 Model Most Popular in Ford's 51-Year History

Even the classic "Model A" Ford of the late 1920's would be jealous of the popularity enjoyed by the 1954 Ford. Officials report that for the first six months of this year, sales figures were 48% higher than 1953 . . . which was a record-breaking year in itself. Ford Dealers point out many reasons why the 1954 Ford is breaking all previous sales records, some of them being . . . the "prestige" car of the low price field . . . choice of V-8 or 6-cylinder engines . . ball-joint front suspension . . . and Ford's years ahead styling that is admired even by many non-Ford owners. But the trend has shown that Ford's popularity is traced to the fact that it's the only low-price car that offers so many years-ahead, fine car features. It's obvious that Ford engineers, designers, manufacturers and dealers are going all out to keep Ford the World's number one automobile in the low price field.



1954 FORD CUSTOMLINE V-8 FORDOR

U.S. AUTO BUYER NOW FAR MORE RECEPTIVE TO COLOR IN HIS CAR

These days, the beautiful array of colors that can be seen in an automobile parking lot is really something to behold. Not too long ago, the standard color for an automobile was black. Not so today . . . green (in different shades) has become America's No. 1 automobile color. And when ordering an automobile, the buyer has such a teasing choice of colors as . . . Sandalwood Tan, Killarney Green, Torch Red, Cameo Coral and Sandstone White. This choice applies to interior colors as well. Ford has been a pioneer in the field of color in automobiles. No longer is the car buyer restricted to gloomy colors . . . he can literally choose a car color to suit his mood or personality.

Ford Closes Plants on Most Successful Year in History Dealers to Clear Out '54 Stocks Within 30 Days

Ford Plants all over the country are in the process of closing down to re-tool for the 1955 models. St. Louis area dealers are receiving their last shipments of 1954 models. The announcement as to when next year's models will be introduced has not yet been made, but it is believed to be sometime in November. Ford officials report that 1954 has been the most successful year in Ford's 51-year history. For the first six months of 1954 Ford's sales climbed 48% higher than the previous year of 1953. Ford officials express confidence that Ford sales will continue to show heavy increases in 1955.

The news of the Ford Plants closing down still finds the Ford Dealers of this area with a good selection of body styles and colors on hand. It is doubtful if this condition will continue for very long. News of the last shipment of 1954 models to local dealers was received this week. With instructions from the factory to clear out all '54 models within 30 days, local Ford dealers are sharpening their pencils to make the kind of deals that will move out present stocks in a hurry.

BUYERS PROMISED MANY ADVANTAGES DURING CLEAN-UP

Trade-In Values Highest Right Now

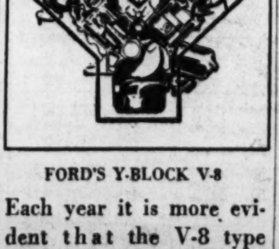
People who are now in the market for a new car will find many advantages in buying a '54 Ford during the year-end clean up. Besides buying a car that is years ahead in style and engineering features, they will be able to buy at a much bigger savings. Right now each and every Ford Dealer's prime objective is to sell out his present stock of '54 Fords as soon as possible. He is far more interested in cleaning out his present supply of cars than in making a profit. Therefore, right now buyers will find the trade-in value of their car considerably higher than it was just a month or two ago. The other big advantage in buying a '54 Ford now is the fact that buyers get many of the features that other low price cars only promise in the future.

DEALERS USED CAR STOCK NOW LOWEST-IN-MONTHS

Used car sales are usually highest during the summer months. After a fast-selling season, Ford Dealers report their used car stock is now the lowest it has been for months. With their used car inventory at a lower figure, Ford Dealers find themselves in an enviable position of being able to take in more trade-ins on new cars than some dealers would care to. This, of course, will reflect itself in the Ford Dealer's willingness to give the buyer a much higher trade-in on his present car.

FORD HAS NEW ENGINES

Y-Block V-8 and I-Block Six are only new engines in low price field



FORD'S Y-BLOCK V-8

Each year it is more evident that the V-8 type engine is becoming the automobile power plant of the future. Ford has been making V-8 engines for the past 22 years. However, the 1954 Ford V-8 engine is completely new . . . featuring a low-friction, Y-block design, high-lift overhead valves, an efficient high-turbulence combustion chamber and produces 130 horsepower. The Ford 6-cylinder engine now being used was first introduced in 1952. It also features overhead valves, low-friction design, and high turbulence combustion. These new Ford power plants are likely to set the standards by which the rest of the low-price auto industry will base their future engine designs.

AIRCRAFTS, STEELS IN VANGUARD OF UPTURN

One View Associated Their Rise With Agreement to Rearm Germany.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Strong steels and aircrafts and a long list of individual issues today pushed the stock market ahead.

Some gains soared to around 5 points at times, and many stocks at the close were up from 1 to around 4 points. Losses were scattered and small.

Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed up .5 of a point at 1367. The industrial stock index rose 1.5 points, rails declined .1 of a point and utilities were unchanged.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed 2.85 points higher at 362.73; the 20 rails down .06 to 116.94, and the 15 utilities 60.91, off .25.)

The market broadened 43 issues from Friday at 1214. There were 567 higher at close, 386 lower and 261 unchanged. There were 70 new 1954 highs and 4 new lows.

Volume expanded on the rise and came to an aggergate 2,000,000 shares. That compares with Friday's 1,850,000 shares traded in a firm market.

(The United Press said "the industrial average made up more than all of last week's loss and coming to within less than a point of the high since Sept. 19, 1929. The industrial component received the push to send it up more than 2 points from gains of 2 to nearly 4 points in Goodyear, Du Pont, and Standard Oil of California and advances of a point or more in leading steels."

Goodyear shot ahead around 5 points at times on the heels of the announcement that all Chrysler Corp. automobiles would use Goodyear's new tubeless tire as standard equipment.

Early in the session, aircrafts were in demand at rising prices. Before long, the steels came to life and posted good gains. Some brokers link strength in those two divisions to the international agreement to rearm Germany, a key plank in American foreign policy.

Firm prices also were found in motors, coppers, oils, chemicals, electrical equipment, and a long list of individual issues. The railroads were neglected. They were the stars of the Friday market.

Progress was shown at times by Bath Iron Works (on an increased dividend), Armour & Co. (a block of 10,000 shares traded at 11¼ up ⅜), Cities Service, United States Steel, Republic Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Northrop, Grumman Aircraft, Virginia - Carolina Chemical, Kennecott Copper, Homestake Mining, and Radio Corp.

Rohr Aircraft of California, was newly listed for trading on the New York Stock Exchange, opened on 1100 shares at 25 and within a short time traded at 27.

Among larger blocks on the tape were 12,000 shares of St. Regis Paper up 1⅛ at 34⅞, Tide Water Associated Oil, 5000 up at 25⅜, Bayuk Cigar 4800 up ¼ at 12, and Grumman Aircraft 4500 up 1⅞ at 36¼.

Business World

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Steel mills will operate at 70.4 per cent of capacity and produce 1,678,000 tons of products this week, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported. Both the operating rate and tonnage were unchanged from the preceding week.

A month ago mills worked at 63.0 per cent and turned out 1,502,000 tons while a year ago the figures were 95.2 and 2,146,000, respectively.

A leading custom smelter today advanced the price of lead ¼ of a cent a pound to 15 cents, New York. The last price increase was on Sept. 15 when another ¼ of a cent rise put the price at 14¾.

* * *

The cotton textile market was steady Monday but not very active. Substantially higher ideas on the cotton crop as revealed in some private surveys issued today, and declining cotton future prices, created some hesitancy among buyers.

* * *

Rice-Stix, Inc., declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a common share payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 15. In the preceding quarter 37½ cents a share also was voted and 50 cents a share was paid in the first two quarters of the current fiscal year which ends Nov. 30.

Association of American Railroads (AAR) estimated the net income of Class 1 railroads during August at $64,000,000, compared with a net of $81,000,000 in like month last year. The AAR report estimated the Class 1 earnings for the first eight months of 1954 at $337,000,000 against $571,000,000 in the corresponding 1953 period. For the first eight months of 1954, the report showed a decline of operating revenues of 13.7 per cent while operating expenses dropped 8.8 per cent.

AMERICAN BOARD HIGHER

NEW YORK, Oct. 4—The American Stock Exchange was largely higher with trading quite active. Going up were Arkansas Fuel Oil, Dragon Cement, Ford Motor of France, Glen Alden Coal, Hazeltine, Mesabi Iron, National Belas-Hess, and New Idria Mining.

McWilliams Dredging was lower following a disappointing earnings report. Brown Co. sold off in active trading. The company announced plans to sell off part of its properties to Canadian interests.

BANK CLEARINGS.

St. Louis bank clearings for Oct. 4 were $96,200,000 compared with $108,700,000 a year ago.

GERMAN REARMING AS AN AID TO TRADE

By CARL HARTMAN

LONDON, Oct. 4 (AP)—German rearmament, which France has feared as a threat to peace, may bring the French and other West Europeans an advantage in world trade when the guns start rolling out of German factories.

Some German raw materials and manpower now going into goods for export then would have to go into arms.

West Germany has been contributing to its defense by paying about $143,000,000 a month in Allied occupation costs.

What Germany's military budget will now be has not yet been determined, but it will clearly have to spend more on arms as an ally of the West than it spent on occupation costs as an "ex-enemy." That means Germany may be able to produce less civilian goods to be sold abroad, where other European countries are eagerly seeking markets.

Much of Germany's phenomenal economic recovery since World War II has been considered due to its lack of armed forces. While other countries had to support large unproductive armies, Germany was able, after paying occupation costs, to devote all its energy to civilian production. This has been prominent in the minds of many Europeans in the argument over German rearmament.

On the other hand, rearmament in Germany should contribute to prosperity at home. It will reduce the number of unemployed, bring new factories into production and put more wages into the working man's pocket.

SOYBEANS STRONG, GRAINS SHOW GAINS

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (AP) — Grains punched out respectable advances in active dealings on the Board of Trade today. Soybeans scored the biggest upturn on light receipts of cash beans and additional harvest delaying rains in Central and Northern Illinois. All oats except May set new seasonal highs in sympathy with strength at Winnipeg.

Corn moved ahead with oats. Holland bought small quantities of corn. Wheat joined the upward parade, helped by news of more very bad weather in the Canadian prairie provinces over the weekend. This was also a factor in the advance of oats and rye.

U.S. BONDS ARE STEADY

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Moderately active trading produced a narrowly mixed bond market today.

Most United States Government bonds were unchanged. The 30-year 3¼s remained at 110¼ bid. German dollar bonds were strong in a quiet foreign section. Prussia 6s rose a point at 74. Defaulted Czechoslovakia 6s also advanced a point at 39.

Corporate obligations changed hands on a highly selective basis. Investment quality industrials drifted lower while some medium grade railroads advanced. Utilities were fairly steady. Changes throughout the list were generally small.

New Financing.

In new financing activity today, underwriters publicly offered $19,500,000 of 4¼ per cent first mortgage revenue bonds of the Southeast Alabama Gas District. The 35-year obligations were priced at par value. Proceeds will build 485 miles of distribution systems serving 24 Southeastern Alabama cities to be rented by the Southern Natural Gas Co.

The New York State Power Authority will soon be in the market with about $315,000,000 of revenue bonds, according to Robert Moses, chairman. Proceeds would finance the American half of a project to harness the St. Lawrence river at the International Rapids section for the generation of electric power.

TAIPEH PREDICTS QUEMOY INVASION WITHIN MONTH

Amphibious Attack Likely, Says Chiang Official — Reds Reported Massing.

TAIPEH, Formosa, Oct. 4 (UP)—A Chinese Nationalist military spokesman predicted today the Chinese Communists will try an amphibious invasion of Quemoy and adjacent islets within a month.

The spokesman, Yun Tien-chia, chief of the political department, told visiting correspondents on Quemoy the Reds will very likely use paratroopers.

He said the Nationalist Air Force has spotted propeller-driven planes in Foochow, 150 miles from Quemoy, and pointed out Quemoy is also within range of jet fighters from Canton and Hanchow.

Another Nationalist military spokesman, Gen. Chang Yi-ting, said, however, there had been no significant increase in the number of Communist ships near Quemoy in the last few days. He said that reports indicated the Chinese Reds were bringing up more artillery in the area.

Reds Mass on Mainland.

Gen. Chang also reported that about 120,000 Chinese Red troops, or 12 divisions, were now stationed in the mainland area just opposite Quemoy island.

There was little activity at Quemoy today as the "little war" there went into its second month, he said. Sporadic artillery duels were reported between Nationalists on the island and Communist gunners on the mainland. However, each side fired fewer than 100 shells, he added.

The Nationalists yesterday announced the first step in the large scale dispersal of Government offices, industry and civilian populations on Formosa.

Premier O. K. Yui asked the civilian population to move out of Taipeh and other crowded cities. He also revealed the Government was beginning to evacuate offices and public industries.

Aborigines Organized.

It was revealed that the Nationalists have banded former head-hunting aborgines into anti-parachute units to guard against Communist air-borne attacks in central Formosa.

The headhunters have been peaceful since World War II. Before the war they carried on a 40-year conflict against the Japanese who then held Formosa.

By the Associated Press.

Chiang Kai-shek's elder son, Lt. Gen. Chiang Ching-kuo predicted yesterday that the Reds soon would attempt an invasion of Formosa with 20,000 to 24,000 men.

Young Chiang, who has been spoken of as a possible successor to his father, said the Reds have said they would "liberate" Formosa and they will have to do something to save face. He predicted that any invasion force would be wiped out.

A.D.A. Assails Eisenhower Policies on Formosa.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—Americans for Democratic Action yesterday assailed Eisenhower Administration policies in the Far East and declared they have "forced the United States into near diplomatic isolation" and threaten "to involve us in war over Quemoy and the straits of Formosa."

The A.D.A.'s national board, meeting here, adopted a foreign policy statement calling on the Republican Administration to refer to the United Nations the fighting now in progress in the Formosa straits, the body of water separating Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government on Formosa and the Communist government on the Chinese mainland.

The objective, said the A.D.A. board, should be an immediate ceasefire and the future of Formosa "should be determined by the U.N. in accordance with the requirements of international peace and security and with the principle of self-determination."

TWO KILLED IN BALLROOM FIRE IN DETROIT, 500 ESCAPE

DETROIT, Oct. 4 (UP)—Two persons were found dead in the debris of the Edgewater Park ballroom early today shortly after a $25,000 fire destroyed the frame pavilion.

About 500 persons fled from the amusement park pavilion last night when the fire, believed started by lightning, began eating its way through the roof.

One victim was Bruno Jaworski, 38 years old, of Detroit, a member of Russ Weaver's band. The other was identified as Manning L. Sporn, a salesman. Jaworski had filed outside with the others but ran back to retrieve his trombone.

When smoke began seeping through the roof Weaver grabbed a microphone, stood on a chair and said:

"Be quiet and orderly. There's enough time for everyone to get out."

NAMED TO C. OF C. POST

William A. McDonnell, president of the First National Bank of St. Louis, has been appointed chairman of the finance committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, it was announced today.

McDonnell, also a vice president of the national organization, said the first meeting of the committee would be held in Washington Nov. 17. Purpose of the committee is to analyze legislation which affects banking and other forms of private and public finance.

Presidential Music.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — (UP)—A composition by the president of the University of Illinois was played at the University's commencement exercises last June. The work of President Lloyd Morey was titled "Academic Processional." Morey holds a degree from Illinois U. in both music and accountancy.

400 MISSOURI U. STUDENTS BATTLE 4 HOURS IN STREET

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 4 (AP)—About 400 University of Missouri students fought in the street separating two fraternity houses early yesterday and it took regular and auxiliary officers four hours to quell the outbreak.

Two members of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity were arrested end released on $50 bonds. Police said they were Andrew H. La Force of Columbia and Tom David Eilers, Orange, Nebr.

Two members of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity were slightly injured by flying missiles. The lawn of their house was covered with broken bottles and other debris and windows were broken.

The two fraternity houses face each other across Wilson avenue.

In the past non-Beta members have trespassed on the fraternity's front lawn.

The Betas object to the practice and violators have been known to have their heads shaved. There have been some head shavings this year.

Chapter officials said a trespasser was caught last night, but his head went unshaved at police request.

COUNSEL IN DEFENSE DEPT. TO HEAD PLANT SECURITY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Defense Department has assigned to Wilber Brucker, its general counsel, responsibility for security programs in industrial plants working on military contracts.

The job originally was given to the manpower and personnel office.

The Government still lacks the plant security enforcement authority which the Defense Department wants. Recommendations by Secretary of Defense Wilson failed to get through the final legislative logjam.

A spokesman said yesterday the assignment of plant security to Brucker was logical because Brucker already is chief coordinator for the program covering loyalty of armed forces personnel and Defense Department employes.

DEMOCRATS LEADING, NEWSPAPER FINDS

New York Times Says They Are Ahead in 25 of 38 U.S. Senate Races.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP) — The New York Times says today Democrats apparently hold the lead "as of the moment" in 25 of 38 senatorial election contests across the nation.

Reporting the results of a state-by-state survey where United States Senators are to be elected, the Times says Democrats are counted "sure winners" for 11 seats in the South, and are believed to be ahead in 14 other races.

Republicans are believed "almost certain to win" in New Hampshire, Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota, and appear to be "out in front" in six other contests, the Times says.

It says "too many of the individual battles" are too close to make any forecast of the final outcome, but that present indications are "the next Senate will be closely divided—whether Republicans or Democrats are in the majority."

The Senate now has 46 Democrats, 49 Republicans and an Independent, Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon, who has said he will vote with the Democrats in organizing the Senate. The Times says: "The Democrats are believed to be leading for four seats now occupied by Republicans — in Kentucky, New Jersey, Nevada and Idaho — while G.O.P. candidates are said to have the edge in two states now represented by Democrats, Illinois and Ohio.

"If these trends were to continue without change through election day, this would mean a net gain for the Democrats of two seats and enough to control the next Senate."

The story said "anxious Republican candidates" were trying to get President Eisenhower

PAKISTAN PREMIER ARRIVES IN U.S. FOR CONFERENCE

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Mohammed Ail, prime minister of Pakistan, arrived yesterday for conferences in Washington after a fog-caused side trip to Philadelphia.

Mohammed Ali, whose plane finally landed at Idlewild airport when the weather cleared, is beginning an 18-day visit at the invitation of President Eisenhower.

"I do not believe in neutralism," he told reporters. "One has to align oneself on one side or the other. That is why we are aligned with the west."

He said the most important subjects he would discuss in Washington would be military aid, a "broader defense of the free world," and the Southeast Asia defense organization.

Ali will remain in New York until Wednesday. His plans include trips through Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota, and to St. Louis.

POPE SAYS CHURCH OPENS DOORS TO MODERN MUSIC

VIENNA, Oct. 3 (AP)—Pope Pius stated today the Roman Catholic church is opening its doors to modern music.

The Pontiff said Catholic churches are allowed "to open their doors also to music which employs modern forms of expression and modern technique." However, such music "must be inspirited by truly Catholic sentiments and performed by talented artists."

Pope Pius made the statement in a letter read to the Congress on Church Music, which opened in Vienna today. Twenty nations are represented in the six-day Vienna meeting.

National Guardsmen from Camp Haven, about 30 miles south, were summoned. Setting up 50-caliber machineguns on the Shoto bridge, about 400 feet below the dam, the guardsmen fired 180 rounds before the sluice gates burst open.

FOES OF INTEGRATION MARCH IN BALTIMORE

2000 White Students Shout in Vain for Meeting With Mayor.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 4 (UP)—About 2000 white teen-agers, shouting slogans against racial integration of public schools, paraded through Baltimore streets today and held noisy demonstrations outside of several high schools.

They marched on the City Hall, where they shouted in vain for a meeting with Mayor Thomas R. d'Alesandro.

Police, led by Police Commissioner Beverly Ober, pushed the screaming high school students back into the street after a vanguard of about 50 had gained entrance to the building.

A police sergeant, speaking over a loudspeaker atop a patrol car, warned the youths that mob action was illegal and that police would take steps to keep order unless they dispersed at once. The crowd left the City Hall area after about 10 minutes without further incident.

School authorities said most of the 2000 absentees were from a few high schools, and said attendance was at or near normal at other city schools.

About 490 students out of 1705 showed up for classes at Southern high school, scene of a near-riot Friday when a group of white adults chased some of the 36 Negroes recently admitted to the school. A special squad of 55 police maintained order on the grounds of Southern high today as protesting white students milled around, refusing to go inside to class. In all 600 off-duty policemen were called to cope with the demonstrations.

Police arrested one white man on charges of agitation and one Negro man on a charge of carrying a knife.

Students in Capital Demonstrate Against Integration.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (UP)—White students at two high schools here demonstrated today against racial integration of white and Negro students.

It was the first protest in the capitaly. President Eisenhower had expressed hope that the Washington schools would serve as a model for the nation in the peaceful co-education of whites and Negroes.

The demonstrations occurred at Anacostia High School in the southeast area and McKinley High School in the northeast area. Both sections have many Negro residents.

There was no violence. There were no arrests. Mainly the white students obeyed police.

Some 300 white students took part in the demonstration at Anacostia, a smaller number at McKinley.

Principal Eugene E. Griffith of Anacostia was greeted with hoots of derision and boos when he appealed to the students to go in to their classes.

Ironically, the demonstrations occurred on the opening day of a new Supreme Court term which may produce a final decree on how to end racial segregation in public schools. There was nothing to indicate any connection between the demonstrations and the court session. The court's historic decision last spring outlawed racial segregation in the public schools. The court has scheduled hearings starting Dec. 6 on the manner in which the states will carry out its order that Negroes and whites be permitted to attend the same schools.

BARUCH PRESENTED SCROLL IN APPRECIATION OF TALKS

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (UP)—A scroll in appreciation of a series of lectures delivered last May was presented to Bernard M. Baruch today at the fall convocation of the City College Baruch School of Business and Public Administration.

Baruch's addresses, to the business school which bears his name, have been included in his book, "A Philosophy of Our Time," proceeds from which have been devoted to the school.

Principal speaker at the convocation was Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

COMMUNITY CHEST

A wonderful thing has just happened. Two people who need and love each other have been kept from drifting apart. You helped save this marriage. You, and the counselor from a Family Service Agency. For this is another service supported by your Community Chest contribution.

Whatever their trouble was, it's part of the past, now. Actually, there is no single or simple cause for marriage unhappiness. Beneath the outward problems, there is usually a complex clash of two personalities. The Family Counselor with a knowledge of what makes a marriage happy—or unhappy—can often help marriage partners to see what is interfering with their happiness. Here is the sympathetic "third party" to talk to in frankness and confidence.

Last year over 1700 families were helped with problems of this kind by Family and Children's Service of St. Louis, and Family Service Society of St. Louis County, both Community Chest agencies. This is an increase of almost 25% over 1947. Of these cases, more than half are known to have reached full reconciliation.

Since family troubles seldom come singly, these agencies are equipped to deal with such relation problems as: parent-child relationships, family tensions and conflicts, and individual social adjustment. And, when they strengthen our families, they strengthen our Community. This brings up an important fact about Chest-supported agencies: Your contribution is used to make Greater St. Louis a better, happier place for all of us to live and work!

thanks for your part

Husband's Lament

On Being Married To a String Saver

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP).

I MARRIED a string saver. Some people say there is nothing worse than a spendthrift wife, but a saving wife can give a man some interesting problems, too.

HAL BOYLE

My wife has developed an inability to throw anything away. She saves everything. She even has preserved our marriage license.

But she specializes in saving string, paper bags, newspapers, medicine bottles and old silk and nylon stockings.

These things pile up in such quantities that every seven years we have to move to a larger apartment, simply to have space to store her collections.

It does me no good to reason with her. If I ask her about the stockings that now overflow three drawers, Frances says, "Oh, I'm going to mend them all at once one of these days."

★ ★ ★

AFTER BEING MARRIED to a newspaper man 17 years she naturally has a big collection of medicine bottles—particularly aspirin bottles.

"Can't throw them away," she said. "They're useful to take along on trips." (We've got enough to last us through a round-trip to Mars.)

"But, in heaven's name, why do you need all those paper bags?" (We not only have paper bags stored in the catch-all bin beneath the refrigerator. We have a number cooling in the refrigerator itself.)

"Oh, you never can tell when you'll need a paper bag in an emergency."

★ ★ ★

WE HAVE ENOUGH balls of string now in our home to anchor the battleship Missouri, but I no longer dare point this out to my wife. She's a little touchy on this subject, ever since I read her an article that said people who saved string were often stingy.

"Saving string is inherited in some families," she says. "Most everybody in our family starts saving string after the age of 30. My father did, and his father did before him. It's not a sign of stinginess at all. It just shows common sense. Everybody ought to keep plenty of string handy."

★ ★ ★

BUT IT IS HER HABIT of saving newspapers that causes the most trouble in her home. She saves them everywhere. She folds them and puts them in my desk. She hides them under the beds. She piles them in stacks and puts them behind screens.

One morning, sleepy-eyed, I stumbled into the bathroom, stepped into the shower stall—and fell flat on a big stack of newspapers. Frances, instead of worrying about my bruises, came running and cried:

"Don't turn on the water. You'll get the papers wet."

The reason she hoards newspapers is that she likes to read old news. She'll reach deep into a stack of old papers, pull out a copy, sit down in the chair, and start reading. Then she says something like:

"My, Shirley Temple certainly is growing up, isn't she?"

If I try to clean out her stacks of newspapers, she fights valiantly, yielding them a page at a time, saying, "Oh, I haven't had time to read this article," and, "No, you can't have this page. It has a recipe on it I want."

★ ★ ★

LATELY I'VE ADOPTED secret tactics. Each morning while she's feeding the baby, I stuff one paper bag, an empty medicine bottle, an old nylon stocking, and a small ball of string in my pocketbook. Then I snitch a couple of old newspapers and hide them under my coat. On the way out the building I throw them all into the incinerator.

So far she hasn't missed a thing.

I hate to do this, but I simply have to clean out some of that junk. You see I have a lot of things myself, particularly old bus transfers. And there isn't a place in the house where I can find room for my collection.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

THE most fastidious and polite Briton he ever met, avers a Detroit auto magnate, is the stout fellow who was captured in darkest Africa by a band of cannibals. He watched their preparations for a special feast without batting an eyelash, and didn't even lose his composure when they lowered him into the pot and began piling up shavings and big sticks beneath it. What finally broke him down, however, was the medicine man's obvious intention to slice an onion for additional flavor in the stew.

"I'll have to ask you to desist, my good man," said the Briton. "Those blasted things always make me cry!"

RESCUE FROM BOAT

Coast Guardsmen pull Frank De Frank, 13 years old, of Trenton, N.J., over stern of rescue craft in Barnegat inlet after he was trapped in overturned boat for almost an hour yesterday. Rescuers picked up the boy's parents and another man from water after a squall upset the pleasure craft. When the Coast Guardsmen found the boat, they heard young Frank pounding on the hull. They righted the boat enough to chop a hole through the side of the cabin to free the youth.

Amateur Balloonist Garrett Cashman, who achieved some fame recently in a 21-mile flight with a home-made balloon gadget and wound up under arrest on a charge of flying without a license, watches ruefully today as a high wind whips his cluster of balloons to pieces at Albany, N. Y. Cashman had intended to make a flight for Civil Aeronautics Administration officials over a fixed course to show he could guide the device and qualify for a license. He called the demonstration off after losing 34 of 42 balloons in the cluster.

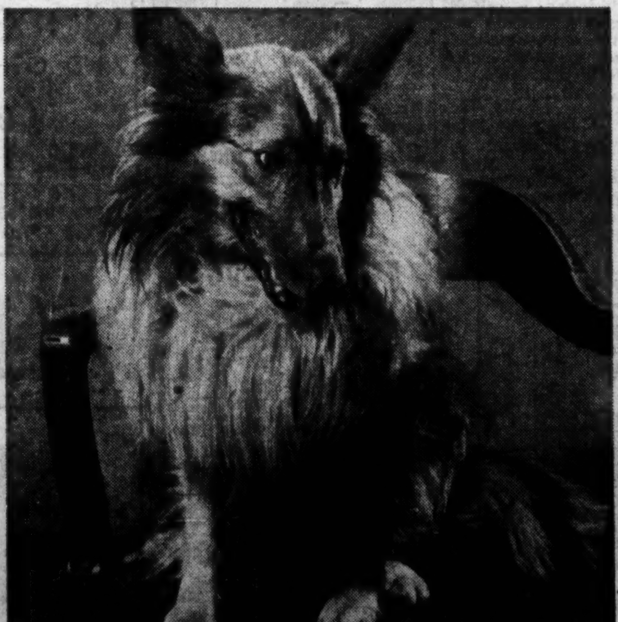
Dog of the Week



This purebred Shetland sheep dog has the blood of champion stock. It is a male and three years old. It came from California with its former owners who found they could not take care of it in their new home here. The breed originated in the Shetland Islands for guarding and herding sheep. The dog is available for adoption on application, in person, at the Humane Society shelter, 1210 Macklind avenue.

Housework Hints

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

I THINK many women are beginning to believe my repeated assertion that most housewives work a lot harder than they need to. I have made frequent references to the "unorganized" homemaker who wears herself out unnecessarily while actually accomplishing no more than the woman who takes it easier.

Mrs. R. is one of those who is finding that her housework is getting her down.

She writes: "There just seems to be no end to the trivial day-in, day-out housework routine. I haven't had any time to myself. The result is that I'm half-dead almost as soon as I get the table cleared from the midday meal. The day isn't half over, but I feel as if I had been dragged through a knot-hole. I suppose that you would say that my work isn't very hard labor compared with a lot of women in industry, but somehow I'm making hard labor out of it, and I wish I knew how to do better."

★ ★ ★

YOU'RE QUITE RIGHT, Mrs. R. The average homemaker doesn't do a great deal of really hard physical labor, but she is tired unnecessarily by what she does because she resents it. She is working against herself as well as for herself, so she's really doing double work. Since you recognize that your problem is actually not one of physical exhaustion, you'll probably also recognize that it is really one of emotional exhaustion. Let's see what you need and a million other homemakers can do to make life more easy on yourselves.

Try to get rid of these inner tensions that are wearing you out. Instead of thinking that the housework is monotonous and frustrating, think of how much it means to you in the long run. Think of it not in terms of drudgery at the moment, but of the goal toward which you are working, in bringing up children of whom you can be proud, helping your husband to be a success in the world—as he could not be without you—and being able in the future to look back on your marriage as one of successful fulfillment of your personality. All these are what you are working for, and if you think of the work in these terms, you'll find it is actually easier.

THEN, OF COURSE, you must simplify it as much as possible. It is astonishing to see how few women make an intelligent effort to do this. Keep things cleared up and put where they belong as much as possible. If you let the house be cluttered you are quite likely to feel cluttered yourself. I'd make an exception in the care of the children. Don't try to keep them in apple pie order. But I do think we can all train our children to help in this respect. Every child has a right to get dirty, but he also has a corresponding duty to get clean. Is it too much to expect that children learn to clean the wash bowl every time they use it? If the child comes in occasionally for a drink of milk, as he should, is it too much to ask that he wash the glass and put it away when he finishes with it? I think most of us could demand a little more from our children in this direction to their advantage as well as ours.

By all means, have your work organized with a plan. Make a timetable for your principal activities. Don't be a slave to system, but don't be a slave to lack of system either.

Child Must Be Taught To Be Useful

By Angelo Patri

THIS is a busy world. There is so much to be done and all of it must be well done for the good of the worker and the welfare of the nation. Everybody cannot do the work he most wishes to do. Whatever the reason many of us must do what comes to hand, what we can do. Most of us find this to be our lot. The best thing to do about it is to decide to like the job, do the best we can with it and hope for the best. Usually, with that attitude, the best comes to us.

Work, usefulness, is the salvation of humanity. To have to get up in the morning, get to work on time, do something we have to do, is the best tonic we can have for mind and body. It is the useless idler who becomes neurotic, not the worker.

* * *

THIS IS IMPORTANT in the education of children. Teach them to be useful in the place in which they find themselves and you have given them hostage to fortune. Useful people are wanted everywhere, welcomed everywhere.

The children in the country, on farms or in open country where there are houses and gardens and an animal or two, are in great luck. Work lies all about them. There is every incentive for keeping usefully busy, learning all the time. The weather, the sky, the wind and the grass and the growing things, the house and the garden and the car and the garage, all stand waiting investigation, understanding, use. Fortunate children are those who enjoy such privileges.

* * *

WHAT ABOUT the city children? There is plenty for them to do too. There is some housework always. Learning to cook, and that can be done as well, if not better, in the city as in the country, is a wonderful accomplishment I mean real cooking, starting from scratch, not with a box of mix. Beginners must learn the fundamental rules before using the compounds. This because these helps may not always be handy and cooking is always in demand.

There are school activities in the city that are unknown in most country places. Trips to museums, school plays, shows, books, people to interview. On every hand where there is life there is something waiting to be done and children should be taught to see it and do it.

No experience is ever wasted. Every bit of work well done enriches the mind, adds to the skill and the intelligence of the worker. Teach children to work because once they take hold they will like it.

Fix It Yourself

High Cost Hot Water.

THIS is for benefit of those who find that there is never enough hot water in their homes when they need it or for those who have plenty of hot water but who find that it's costing them a small fortune in fuel each month to get it.

One of the best ways never to have enough hot water and to have high hot water fuel bills is to waste the stuff either by letting faucets run or by having a few leaky faucets about the house. A faucet with only a small leak can get rid of a good many gallons of hot water each day.

Another reason for a bad hot water situation is long runs of uninsulated hot water pipes. In many homes you will find that the hot water heater is at one end of the house while the various outlets are at the other end. This means the water must travel through a good many feet of pipes and as it does it looses a good deal of its warmth.

Best cure here is either to insulate the pipes or move the heater so that it's closer to the fixtures. And while we are on the subject of insulation, if your present hot water tank is not insulated, you can cover this as well as the pipes.

In some cases, the temperature of the water before it reaches the heater is so low that a good deal of both time and fuel are required to raise it up to 140 degrees or so. What you can do here is to install a tempering tank in the basement where the frigid water can stand and warm up slightly before it is drawn into the hot water heater. Even a temperature rise of a few degrees will help considerably.

Tips for Teens

Date Conversation

By Elinor Williams

EVERYBODY thinks talking comes naturally to girls, but some of them actually worry about what to say to their dates, especially during the first date or two, while they're getting acquainted. A high school girl writes:

"I am a freshman and I have a quiet personality. The question I'd like to ask you is how to keep up a conversation when trying to make a good impression on your date . . . besides talking about school."

Answer—There's one topic that practically never fails —HIM! Steer the chatter (with remarks and questions) to his favorite sports, teams, hobby, magazine, books, ambition, etc. . . . and don't forget that the more you're sincerely interested in and impressed by HIS interests, the more he'll like to talk with you and be with you. Instead of trying to impress him, let him impress you.

One clever girl maintains it helps to make a good impression and keeps the conversation alive if you're generous with these phrases:

"Tell me about it!"

"Why, that's interesting!"

"Aren't you wonderful!"

A boy puts it like this: In his opinion there are two kinds of girls: (1) The one who moans and says: "Well, I suppose you're going to give me a play-by-play description of the game." (2) The one who smiles, sparkles with interest and says, "TELL me about it!"

Secrets of Charm

Relax With a Hobby

AN ABSORBING HOBBY WILL HELP YOU TO RELAX.

EVERY so often you hear the phrase about "letting off steam." It makes one think of the numbers of famous people who, instead of blowing up when they're tense, turn their attention to a relaxing hobby.

The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt was a stamp collector. President Eisenhower's enthusiasm for golf is well known. Certainly you've seen reproductions of Winston Churchill's paintings—his way to relax. You could make a long list of famous names and hobbies, but you needn't go that far just to realize how important such outlets are.

A hobby can be helpful in many ways, quite aside from its therapeutic value — release of tension. Anything you find absorbing will deter your mind from other things; give you something to talk about; and enlarge your interests, and thus make you a more interesting person.

* * *

MAYBE you can't afford to collect rare books. Maybe such a hobby doesn't interest you any more than catching butterflies to mount in an album. But if you don't have a hobby, look around until you find one; perhaps you have a latent talent to discover.

Frequently you hear stories of women whose delight in cooking leads to a pie or cookie-making business. Their interests are not primarily professional, but personal means to keep hands and minds occupied.

Collect buttons, if you like, or start a picture album. Make your own greeting cards or decorate your own note paper. Let sports be your hobby, or choose something less active, like learning all you can about modern art or music.

* * *

ONE THING is important: since your hobby is to be a "relaxer," it should be quite different from what you do all day. If you work in an office where your tasks are mental, your after-hours activity should be something that you do with your hands. If you are a busy housewife with daytime chores that keep you flying, let your hobby be one that stimulates your thinking.

You may know that a woman is interesting because she is "interested." A hobby can vastly enhance your charm by widening your interests. Don't overlook anything that can add to your zest for living.

Some Notes On Home Freezing

By Edith M. Barber

HOME freezing has become an important kitchen practice in the last few years. Not every one who attempts to freeze food is completely familiar with the principles that must be followed if results are to be satisfactory.

In the first place, a freezer designed specifically for the purpose is necessary. A regular ice cube compartment is convenient for storing a few packages of already frozen food; it is of no use for home-freezing. If your refrigerator has a large freezing compartment where the temperature is zero or below, a small amount of food placed directly against the metal lining may be frozen.

Certain practices must be followed even with a special freezer. Foods must not be overcooked, because when they are reheated they soften more. Pastry frozen unbaked will be more tender and flaky than pastry baked before it is frozen. All foods should be cooled quickly after cooking in the interests of good flavor, color and texture.

Foods should be packed tightly in containers of moisture-proof material, and the edges should be well sealed. If foods are liquid or semi-liquid, space must be allowed for expansion. Home and Garden, Bulletin No. 40, prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture can be purchased for 10 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, United States Printing Office, Washington, D.C. and is well worth the price. The booklet includes large-quantity recipes for combinations of foods appropriate for freezing.

Chicken a la King.

From "Freezing Combination Main Dishes," Home and Garden Bulletin No. 40, United States Department of Agriculture.

One-half cup chicken fat, butter, or margarine, six tablespoons chopped green pepper, three cups canned mushrooms, three-fourth cup sifted all-purpose flour, two teaspoons salt, three cups chicken broth, three cups milk, six tablespoons finely cut pimiento, three pints diced cooked chicken.

Melt the fat and cook green pepper and mushrooms in it about five minutes. Blend in the flour and salt, then add broth and milk. Cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add pimiento and chicken. Blend well. Yield: 16 portions, three-fourth cup each. To serve immediately: Heat the mixture thoroughly and serve on biscuits, hot buttered toast, or in timbales.

To freeze: Cool the food quickly. Pack in freezer containers, leaving head space. (Pint containers are preferable, because large blocks of chicken a la king are difficult to thaw.) Seal and freeze immediately.

To prepare for serving: Without thawing, heat frozen chicken a la king in the top of a double boiler, about 30 minutes for one pint.

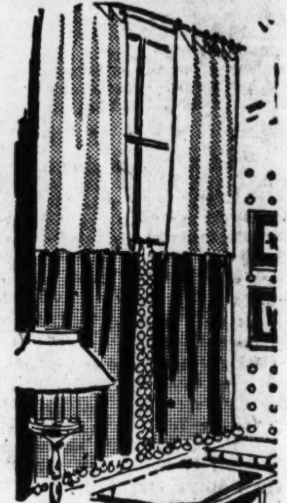
Change-About Curtains

By Elizabeth Hillyer



PLAN simple two-tier curtains for the windows, and they're easy to change by halves. One tier can stay as it is, while the other is new and introduces a new color to the room.

Most rooms change color gradually. New color is added with a new rug or piece of furniture; or one color, perhaps on the wall, disappears in favor of another.

But the new color means much more to the scheme if it is repeated, and that's where the easy curtain change counts. It can repeat the new color without a complete change of curtains, and the change-about makes the window treatment look new, too.

Here the curtains were originally plain white in a room schemed in pastels. Half a change was enough to fit the curtains into a new black and white scheme—the new lower tier is black with white ball fringe.

Change-about plans can be made from the start with curtains like these. A new lower tier might eventually become the top tier and take another color or pattern below.

MRS. R. L. H. "Please suggest a color other than blue for the walls of my bedroom, which has a white coverlet on the bed with a dust ruffle in a design of light and dark blue flowers, and light blue scatter rugs. The furniture is colonial maple."

Have you thought of stark white walls? Few schemes have the fresh good looks of two or three shades of blue played against stark white, but probably blue would be needed again at the windows of this room—or the headboard wall might be a medium-deep blue. Small touches of bitter green are smart with this scheme. Other ideas for the wall color might be faint pink, a light golden yellow, pale melon color, or a clear light lime green.

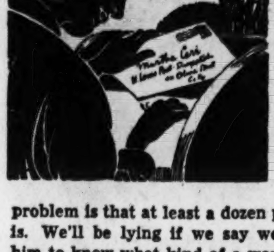
Martha Carr's OPINION

REG U S PAT OFF

Dear Martha:

RECENTLY, you had a letter in your column signed "Adopted," in which the writer expressed a wish to see her own mother. I certainly hope our adopted child never has such an obsession. Our baby is only 15 months old. We have never known such happiness as we've had since the day we brought him home. We couldn't love our own flesh and blood more. From what I've seen, welfare workers are interested in seeing a child placed where there will be an abundance of love and understanding. We plan on telling our son he's adopted, just how I'm not sure. Our problem is that at least a dozen people know who his mother is. We'll be lying if we say we don't. Yet we don't want him to know what kind of a woman she is because she happens to be one of the lowest forms of humanity. We expect to be living quite a distance from all who know her by the time he's old enough to tell. What is your suggestion?



A VERY GRATEFUL FOSTER MOTHER.

Authorities emphasize the importance of letting an adopted child grow up in the knowledge of how he came to be in this home, and that even though he is a foster son he has all the love and security that a natural son would enjoy. In other words, the telling should not be made a ceremonious thing on a certain day when you feel the child is old enough to understand. Instead, mention it to him from time to time so that as he grows older he won't remember when he didn't know it. But always make sure when this fact is brought to his attention that he is conscious of his foster parents' very deep affection for him. By the same token, I would urge you not to lie about his own mother, but don't draw a picture of her in his mind as a "low form of humanity." A natural loyalty to his own flesh and blood could possibly cause him to resent deeply your criticism of her. Too, no one wants to think he can't be proud of his heritage. If he asks about her, tell him what you can, but be careful not to condemn her too harshly. Then make sure his own home life is so full and so happy that he'll have no regrets that his natural mother couldn't keep him with her.

Little Travelers

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D.

Of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

"MY husband and I would like to take an automobile trip to visit his relatives. We have two boys, 2 and 5 years old," a mother writes.

"Both my husband and I are reluctant to plan this trip until we hear what your ideas on the subject would be. We are wondering whether the children will tire us out on such a long trip, to such an extent that we would be sorry we ever started out. We do so much want to go there, but the children are a problem. And, of course, we do not want to leave them back home because we would miss them too much.

"If we were both of a placid nature, we would probably take the trip without hesitation, but we are just the opposite; everything is serious business to us."

★ ★ ★

IT SEEMS TO US that you might reasonably undertake this trip with your two boys. It may be fortunate that they are boys, since boys are often better travelers than are girls. It is also fortunate that the younger one is at least two years of age. If he were younger, you might anticipate more difficulty.

The fact that you are aware of the possibility of the children having difficulty on such a long trip suggests that you are the kind of parents who can and will make the necessary plans and precautions to prevent difficulty.

★ ★ ★

HERE ARE A FEW SUGGESTIONS which you may find helpful.

First of all, be sure that you have a safe, as well as comfortable, place in the car for the children. Be sure to check safety locks on the doors.

With most children (except those few who become over-excited by any sort of preplanning) talk the trip over in advance. Give them some idea of what it will be like. If possible, let them help a little with packing and other preparations.

Be sure to let them have with them on the trip some of their familiar toys or favorite possessions—as a woolly dog or snuggle blanket.

Be prepared with plenty of "surprises" which you can bring out and present when and if they become too restless. Plan little games. See if you can interest them in the countryside.

Plan for plenty of stops. Don't try to cover too much ground in any one day.

Don't worry if the children's appetites fall off. Most need frequent drinks, but may do better with relatively little eating.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A WIDOW writes: "I am in the mid-forties. My husband died five years ago very suddenly and at the time I thought I would never care for another man. However, "time heals all wounds" and just this past summer I met a very fine man while visiting friends in another city. We saw a good deal of each other and when I left he said he would like to come and see me some time. I received a note from him this morning saying that he would like to come next weekend. Would it be proper to invite him to stay here in my house? I have a seven-room house for just my son and me and I can put him up very easily here, but the question is, would this cause gossip? This is a small town and the one decent hotel is quite a distance from where I live."

I think if he stays at the hotel the inconvenience will be more than made up for by avoidance of gossip.

He Talked His Way to TV Fame, Fortune

Newscaster John Daly's Triple Career Brings Him $200,000 a Year—Matinee Idol Type

By James L. Kilgallen

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (INS).

JOHN DALY, ex-White House reporter and one-time war correspondent, is clicking on television today to the tune of $200,000 a year and everybody who knows him says it "couldn't happen to a nicer fellow."

This slim, personable, 6-foot-1 newspaperman with the vibrant voice, gentlemanly charm and photogenic face has literally talked himself into fame and fortune through radio and television. A brainy, erudite fellow, he has the "gift of gab" down to perfection and can talk off the cuff any time, anywhere on any subject—from penguins to the state of the Union

He is as glib as a circus barker but does his stuff on TV with a smoothness and finesse that suggests the "perfect gentleman." Women viewing him on the television screen are certain he is the type who takes off his hat in the elevator and gives a lady his subway seat.

"'What's My Line," the highly popular CBS-TV panel show (KWK-TV, 9:30 p.m. Sunday), is John's "show window."

On this program he presides with amiability and charm as its moderator. It is a clever, adult show in which the four panel members — Dorothy Kilgallen, Steve Allen, Arlene Francis and Bennett Cerf—attempt to guess the occupations of several guests brought before them for the first time.

The indefatigable Daly, who is 40 years old, holds down two other big TV jobs. He is a news analyst, doing the five-night-a-week "John Daly in the News." He is also a vice president of the American Broadcasting Co., in charge of television news, special events and public affairs. In addition to all this, Daly does many programs that come under the loose heading of "special assignments." His friends are amazed and impressed by his monumental work-schedule.

You almost have to convince this modest fellow that he is famous. When I interviewed John at the exclusive Metropolitan Club in New York, he reluctantly agreed to give his reaction to "fame."

"I would be less than honest if I didn't admit it feels good to be recognized in public places wherever you go. I like to feel that all this is a reward for hard work. Fame probably gives you more recognition than you deserve. But makes you feel real good."

JOHN DALY . . . THE TYPE WHO TAKES OFF HIS HAT IN THE ELEVATOR.

★ ★ ★

A LARGE factor in Daly's success is his rich voice with its British overtones. It is considered by many to be the finest voice in the business. More important, however, is the fact that the boyish-looking Daly has brains and uncommon ability. He has the knack of using the right word at the right time.

When acting as moderator of "What's My Line?," his manner is brisk, cheery and unruffled. He is the personification of tact. He can and does throw five-syllable words around like a college professor. He doesn't assume, as so many TV professionals do, that the I.Q. of the average viewer is relatively low.

Things could get out of line on "What's My Line?" were it not for Daly.

"Whenever the line of questioning by the panelists moves into dangerous waters, or into 'the blue,' as I call it, I tug on the lobe of my right ear as a warning signal," John revealed.

Although Daly enjoys his chore as moderator of this award-winning panel, he says his "real love" is news. That's why he also likes being a news analyst.

"I'm not an actor, I'm a newspaper man," he declares.

★ ★ ★

HE makes no reference, however, to the fact that in 1950 he played the role of Walter Burns, a hard-bitten managing editor, in a 19-week TV serialization of "The Front Page," the Ben Hecht-Charles MacArthur play about life among newspaper men.

That year he had an offer from playwright Russel Crouse to play the lead role opposite Katharine Cornell in a Broadway show. Although flattered, Daly turned it down.

Whether John likes it or not, many women TV fans regard the good-looking Daly as sort of a modern counterpart of the "matinee idol" of another era. John hates make-up and refuses to smear his face with pancake or grease paint. It pains him to put on even the light film of powder necessary to take the shine off his nose.

Daly's rise to fame is an epic story of the blending of three careers—journalism, radio and television—into one.

He began life as John Charles Daly Jr. on Feb. 20, 1914, in Johannesburg, South Africa, where his father, an American mining engineer, had his headquarters. John's mother, an Englishwoman, brought him and his brother, Grant, to the United States after her husband died. John went to Tilton (N.H.) School and Boston College, and in 1933 he found himself in the wool business in Boston. But not for long.

On a blind date he had met a charming girl named Margaret Neal, then a researcher at the Library of Congress in Washington. As their friendship ripened, Boston and Washington seemed to John to be far apart. He moved to Washington and got a job as relief announcer on the NBC Washington staff. A few weeks later he was a permanent announcer for CBS.

This was the year 1937, a big turning point in John's career. He married Margaret Neal, and he had a job he liked. The radio networks were then beginning to move into the reporting of news events. John was assigned to do all kinds of special radio news assignments. He developed a facility at ad-libbing. He could talk extemporaneously at length on any subject, from describing the birth of a penguin at the zoo to reporting the intricacies of a national political convention.

★ ★ ★

ONCE when President Roosevelt's motorcade was late in arriving at the fair grounds in Oklahoma City, John Daly ad-libbed for 56 minutes until F.D.R. showed up.

The war came and Daly's assignments took him overseas. From London he reported the blitzing of Britain by the Luftwaffe. Subsequent assignments included reporting from Algiers, the Middle East, the Nuernberg trials, and the Berlin airlift.

John scored clear news beats on such events as the surrender of the Italian fleet at Malta, the fall of Messina and the bombing of Cassino.

In his current reporting of news events over TV, Daly tries to be objective and give both sides of anything controversial. He never delivers a commercial.

His fan mail arrives in large quantities. Most of it warmly praises his work but when some of his public become critical and "take his skin off" it doesn't bother John.

He said he really tries to make it hard for the "What's My Line?" panel, yet a few fans accuse him of throwing out hints to the panelists. He takes this in stride. His comment is that "the public is fascinating."

★ ★ ★

DALY lives in a roomy home on the grounds of the swank Westchester Country Club at Rye, N.Y. He is tremendously proud of his two sons, John Neal, 15, and John Charles IV, 12, and 7-year-old daughter, Helene.

The Daly family, unfortunately, doesn't see as much of John Sr. as they would like because of his terrific work schedule.

John catches the 8:18 a.m. train from Rye and reaches his office in New York City at 9:15 a.m. At 11 a.m. he goes to the news room and works on films, essays and talks until 12:30 p.m.

He is back at his office by 3 p.m. and works on the essays (editorial opinion) for his 7:15 p.m. TV news program, Monday through Friday. From 4 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. he wrestles with administrative problems in his capacity as ABC V.P. At 7:15 p.m. he's on the air for 15 minutes, his newscast going to 56 stations.

He catches the 7:55 p.m. train for Rye, arriving home about 9 p.m., and then he and Mrs. Daly have dinner together.

His one day off, Saturday, is frequently interrupted by a special assignment, such as reporting a big spot news event. Or he may use the day to do some films for some charity organization or fulfill a luncheon speaking engagement.

John smokes cigarettes and takes an occasional drink. He's a good steak eater and a connoisseur of Chinese food. His poker weakness is trying to fill inside straights and when playing gin rummy he holds his hand too long.

He's a good swimmer and not bad at tennis. He likes golf but can't find time to play the game.

Busy as Daly is with his triple-barreled career as news analyst, moderator and TV executive, the ABC network has assigned him to handle its coverage of the November Congressional elections. A total of 750 leg men and technicians will work under his supervision.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"HE had a mighty windfall out of doubt," wrote Ben Jonson, so long ago using this word in the rhetorical sense of unexpected good fortune, just as we do today. But the idea of fruit knocked off branches swaying in the wind, the image of the orchard, clings first of all to this word windfall.

This may be due to childhood memories of apple trees with bronzing fruit daily adding glow, yet out of reach, and more—taboo to the touch of bruising sticks or stones—while windfallen fruit was yours for the trouble of making the rounds and wishfully thinking.

Windfall was not always an allusion to the gratuitous fall of apples or pears. Time was when it alluded to trees felled or uprooted in a storm, and therefore available as lumber which would otherwise have been as hedged in by law as the luscious fruit by parental taboo.

Answer to Question 1

WRITER Inez Haynes Irwin said (paraphrased), "Men don't know how to spend money — saleswomen can sell them anything. They don't know how to keep a city, until some woman shows them how. Women are realists because they hate war, are born organizers, and insist on cleanliness. Girls, let's go to work." If the "girls" will stop war and clean up the world, it's all right with me.

Answer to Question 2

Neither — it's to "yourself." You can never pay it in full. David Starr Jordan said, "Look at yourself far in the future. He is waiting for you. Will you meet him with sound body and mind or with a mind neglected, a body dissipated, and with lost ideals? You must decide this very day, and your decision will 'be' your destiny."

Answer to Question 3

False. One psychologist compared the marks and number of studies carried by 92 women and 79 men who worked four hours a day. They carried as many subjects and made as good marks as an equal number of nonworkers. If we could measure their persistence and courage, I imagine the workers would score higher.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

THERE is no sense in taking a purely academic view of penalty doubles, because the unarguable fact is that the "feel" of the situation may be far more important than the sure tricks held by the player who thinks about doubling.

The further fact is that so-called "sound" penalty doubles do not usually return a large profit. When the doubler is extremely strong and his partner is correspondingly weak, the usual course of play is a series of throw-ins against the doubler, forcing him to surrender tricks. The story is quite different, however, when the double was made largely "by ear"—as in this case:

North-South, vulnerable.

♠AK74
♥KQ973

WEST		EAST
♠Q102	NORTH	♠J865
♥J10652		♥84

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1♥	Pass	1No-T
Pass	2♥	Pass	3♣
Pass	3No-T	Pass	Pass
Dble.	Redble. (final call)

It is very obvious that West had nothing resembling a safe double of three no-trump—but he "knew his opponents." For one thing, he knew that South always bid a weak long-suited hand in just that fashion—with a first response of one no-trump and then an announcement of the suit at a higher level. Thus, West was practically sure that South would never get into his own hand to cash any club tricks, because he was virtually marked with no more than one outside entry, if that.

For another thing, West knew that North's "reverses" (hearts first, then spades) did not usually mean a powerhouse, and North was not a good enough player to interpret his partner's bidding correctly.

All of which added up to the very speculative double on West's part. North's redouble gave West a bad moment, but not as bad as the opponents experienced when they ended up with a three-trick, 1600-point deficit!

Woman's Club To Open Season At Tea Today

THE St. Louis Woman's Club will formally open its season today at the customary tea for members. Given under the auspices of the hospitality committee, it is intended as an occasion to greet the officers, former presidents and committee members, and to admire newly acquired art objects and decorations. Today new mirrors, purchased by the house committee this summer and hung on the east and west walls of the entrance hall, will be on view.

The receiving line at this afternoon's party will be headed by Mrs. Ralph C. Becker, new president; Mrs. Joseph W. White, vice president; Mrs. Arden J. Mummert, hospitality chairman; Miss Alice Bell, vice chairman; Mrs. W. Palmer Clarkson, committee secretary, and the following former club presidents: Mrs. Rollin L. Curtis, Mrs. Robert A. Latzer, Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, Mrs. Ralph D. Griffin, Mrs. George Bass, Mrs. Charles White Scudder and Mrs. Donald T. Wright.

Tea is to be served by members of the presiding committee from a long turquoise satin-covered table, fan-shaped at either end. The centerpiece consists of a large white alabaster cherub holding Red Delight roses, flanked by more of the blossoms. Alabaster candelabra with cherubs holding smaller bouquets stand at each side and at the ends of the table soft light is provided by many candles in holders made of gold wire.

A string quartet will play and junior members will serve punch.

The club calendar for October includes a fashion show, a Thursday card party and a special program.

My Day

Reflections On Nation's Open Spaces

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK.

OUR time in Helena, Mont., was fully occupied but I think I enjoyed the speech before the high school and the questions from the young people as much as anything that occurred there. We had some doubts as to weather, and the air lines reported that we might have trouble in landing in Butte and in flying out of Butte to Pocatello, Idaho. However, as the day progressed it began to clear and we ended by having a very good flight.

Even though we were rather late we were most grateful for not being grounded, since it would have necessitated a very long drive. Both in Montana and in Idaho we were in mountain country and I love mountains. Pocatello is in a valley with mountains all around it. I found it a very charming small city.

A man in Montana told me that when he went to New York he could hardly bear the crowds. He said the slowness of traffic made it essential to use subways and when you got into the subways you felt that you would be crushed by the crowds. We who live in New York forget the impression that our crowded city makes. Someone else spoke about driving through the Negro areas of Chicago, always with the feeling that people were crowded together like sardines in a can, and he felt the same way in New York's Harlem. But in those states which I visited there is plenty of room to breathe, and even with the increase in population that is still true. It is also true, thank goodness, of vast areas of the United States.

* * *

THE COMMITTEE in Pocatello was kind enough to make no formal arrangements for Wednesday evening but certain members of the committee asked us to dine with them. The party also included D. A. Skeen.

Mr. Skeen is our regional director and lives in Salt Lake City, but has done valuable work in organizing in the mountain states. The activity which is now taking place there is largely due to him and to the interest of our Salt Lake City members.

On Thursday morning the day's activities were opened by a breakfast of about 75 people, all of whom had signified their interest in the American Association for the United Nations. I spoke briefly explaining the reason for our work.

* * *

AFTER the morning meeting, there was a women's lunch as well as a men's lunch. Because Clark Eichelberger had been unable to make the trip with us, Mr. Skeen had to carry the ball and speak at the men's lunch.

In the afternoon, there was a workshop to which representatives of all the organizations in this region representing labor, agriculture, business, church and women's groups had been invited. And in the evening a public meeting was held in the auditorium of the high school.

We had planned to fly to Laramie, Wyo., where we were due to start another busy day at noon on Friday, but Mr. Skeen arranged for a motor trip which would give us a little more time for sleep. I will tell you about that trip tomorrow.

It's an Idea!

International Designer's Pattern

PIERRE CLARENCE of France, a comparative newcomer to the international fashion scene, has nonetheless, already proved his right to inclusion by creating clothes that embody the indefinable of chic. His dress pattern today bears witness to this fact with its lovely simplicity unmarred by its detail which endows it with that famous couture look. The collar is separate but is designed for easy slip-stitching into the neckline, the button being attached to the bodice. Thus the collar can be white and always freshly white. The abbreviated offside peplum, adding just the right amount of emphasis to the hipline, is effectively continued around to the back with a criss-crossed fastening. M. Clarence originally presented the dress in a very sheer wool crepe with white pique accent, but he suggests it also in faille, shantung, silk or linen.

This pattern is cut to Designer Measurements, not Standard Pattern measurements.

Bust	Waist	Hips		Size
35	25	36	inches	12
36½	26½	37½	inches	12
38	28	39	inches	16
40	30	41	inches	18
42	32	43	inches	20

Pattern S-211. Size 12 requires three yards of 54-inch material for dress and ⅝-yard of 39-inch material for contrast.

To order a pattern, address International Designers Patterns, in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, P.O. Box 993, Dept. SX-17, G.P.O., New York 1, N.Y. State size. Send $1. Airmail handling 25c extra.

In change there is opportunity
PAY ENVELOPE

Today 27½ million families have incomes of $3,000 or over—compared to only 2½ million at the time of the 1940 census

Compared to 1940 Census...

12 times as many families have incomes of $3,000 or more

As American industry has stepped up its efficiency and produced more, millions of Americans have been able to earn more. This additional income has given us new opportunities. For example—

- To own our own homes. This year, American families are buying another million newly-built homes.
- To give our children more education. Compared to the year 1940, America now has 88% more high school graduates. And there are 80% more college graduates!
- To own more conveniences and comforts. More than 35 million families now own cars—28 million have television sets—34 million own electric washing machines.
- To put money aside. Americans saved five times as much money last year as in 1940. 25 million more people own life insurance.

Families are buying life insurance to guarantee a financial backlog if the father were to die.

And they are also discovering other uses—how life insurance can help in almost every part of the family's plans. For instance, to cover the mortgage . . . to pay for the children's education . . . to build a retirement program.

Today, more than half of all life insurance benefits are paid to policyholders themselves. Because of its many "living" benefits, more and more American families are finding that life insurance can bring them greater opportunity, as well as greater security.

Owned by 90 million men, women and children, life insurance is today America's most popular form of thrift.

Tears for the Bride

By ROBERT MARTIN

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE.

I RAN back into the front room, lifted Judy from the divan and laid her face down on the floor, trying to remember what I knew about artificial respiration. I knelt over her with my hands on the small of her back and began to swing slowly backward and forward, regulating the pressure of my hands. Her body was limp beneath me, but I kept it up until the sweat ran down my face, and I kept thinking that it was no use, that she was dead. But I kept on, I don't know how long, and at last I heard the screech of brakes and the sound of flying stone. Light swept past the front windows, a car door slammed, and feet pounded on the porch. Dr. Anthony Mazzini burst into the room, carrying his bag, his eyes wild in his dark face. He had thrown his tweed overcoat over red-striped pajamas, and his shoe laces were untied.

He saw what I was trying to do, and he said, "Good, good," and pushed me away.

I stood up. He knelt beside the still form of the girl, and his hands went over her swiftly. He muttered something, and began the respiration motions I'd been making. "Blankets," he snapped at me. "And coffee — hot and black."

I got both items quickly.

I went to the phone and asked the operator for the Homer Hollis residence.

Sandy answered and I knew that she hadn't gone to bed, but had been sitting downstairs in the darkness. Quickly I told her what had happened, and asked her to take my car and come to Judy Kirkland's.

She asked no questions, but said simply, "All right, Jim."

"I think she's coming around," the doctor panted as I joined him again.

She still looked dead to me, but I wasn't a doctor.

"Close," he breathed. "Too close." He lifted her into his arms and pulled one of the blankets over her. It was then that I saw her eyelids quiver. He saw it, too, and suddenly he laughed, a wild, crazy sound. He held her close, folding the blanket around her, and he said softly, "You crazy little fool, you sweet little idiot." He kissed her cheeks and her eyes.

* * *

I TURNED away, thinking that I would get some coffee for myself, but his voice stopped me. "Bennett."

I turned and looked at him.

"Thanks," he said.

"You don't have to thank me. Sandy Hollis is coming over. I called her."

"Good. She can stay with Judy tonight."

"Somebody better stay with her," I said. "She might try it again."

He frowned. "How did you happen to find her?"

I looked at him steadily. "I wanted to see her about a personal matter. She didn't answer my knock, and I came inside. I found a note in her typewriter, and I smelled gas. She was upstairs in a bedroom, the door and windows locked. I smashed the door and found her on the bed with the gas turned on."

"Note?" he said, with a puzzled frown. "What did it say?"

"Nothing about you."

"I wasn't thinking of that," he said quietly. He looked down at Judy Kirkland. She had a little color now and appeared to be sleeping peacefully. "She'll be pretty groggy for a while," the doctor said, as if talking to himself. He looked up at me. "Let me see the note."

"I moved around the room closing windows.

"Let me see it."

I shook my head. "I'm sorry. I'm turning it over to the sheriff." I paused, and then added, "It's a confession of murder. She killed Rex Bishop, and she tried to kill Ralph Hollis."

"You're crazy," he said. "Why would she—"

"People kill for a lot of reasons. Jealousy is one of them."

"But I know she never really loved Ralph Hollis," he said. "She—"

"Maybe not," I said, "but he spurned her, if you'll pardon the expression, and she couldn't stand that. If she couldn't have him, she didn't want anyone else to have him, either. Dog in the manger stuff. The psychologists have a name for it."

He looked bewildered. "But why did she try suicide?"

"Remorse," I said. "Self blame. Reaction to what she'd done, maybe fear of discovery. Who knows?"

* * *

ONCE more I heard a car in the drive, and saw the lights flash across the windows. "That'll be Sandy," I said.

He said desperately, "Let me talk to Judy before—before you call the sheriff. Will you promise to wait until I can talk to her?"

"All right," I said.

Sandy came in and looked quickly at the figure of Judy Kirkland.

"She'll be all right," I told her.

"Thanks to your friend, Bennett," the doctor said with a trace of irony.

Sandy untied a red woolen scarf from her head and took off a loose gabardine topcoat. Except for stockings, she was completely dressed in a red skirt, black sweater and saddle oxfords. She looked like a high school freshman.

The doctor said, "Sandy, would you bring some more coffee, please." He bent over the divan.

Sandy gave me a puzzled look, and I shrugged. She entered the kitchen, and I went up the stairs. At the landing I glanced back. Dr. Mazzini had turned and was watching me. He looked away quickly, and I went on up to the hall and down to the room where I'd found Judy.

I closed the window I'd unlocked and opened. There were two windows, and the other was locked with the same type of catch on the inside. The quilted cover on the bed showed the long, slim depression of Judy's body. She had lain quietly, waiting for death. Her fingerprints would be on the gas valve, if I hadn't smeared them, and on the inside door knob, and the key. I moved to the door. The bolt had splintered the casing, but the key was still in the lock. I got down on my knees, dropped a handkerchief over the key, and turned it. The bolt slid back, and I removed the key. It was an ordinary house key with an open ring at one end, a slender old-fashioned key, unlike the short, flat modern ones.

I stood up, moved over beneath the ceiling light, held the key in the handkerchief and inspected it carefully. Just a steel key, rather dull and a little rusty. On the inside of the ring a tiny something glinted in the light. I squinted, and held the key closer, thinking that I needed glasses. The object was a yellow speck, a tiny flake of something. It disappeared when I touched it, and I cursed softly. The laboratory boys would scream and tear their hair at my clumsiness. But there weren't any lab boys within 100 miles, and it probably didn't mean anything, anyhow; just a minute fleck of yellow something on the inside ring of the end of an old-fashioned key in the lock of a room where a driven and remorseful girl had turned on the gas and waited in quiet despair for the long sleep.

I put the key back in the lock for the sheriff to examine, if he wanted to examine it, turned off the light and stepped out into the hall. I took two steps toward the stairs before I heard the whisper of sound behind me. I turned, but far too slowly. A dazzling light exploded behind my eyes, and then there was nothing, not even blackness.

Cooler weather with cloudy skies and occasional showers were predicted for the St. Louis area tomorrow. Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said temperatures tomorrow should range from a morning low of near 60 to an afternoon high of about 70.

Yesterday's record high of 91.5 degrees here was followed by an unseasonably warm night. Minimum temperature this morning was 75 at 4 o'clock. This reading was the same as the Weather Bureau's predicted normal maximum for today.

Lows over the state early today ranged from 63 at Farmington to 75 here. In contrast, the mercury was in the low 20s in western Montana, where the nation's low of 22 at Cutbank was recorded. Highest in the nation yesterday was 100 at Salina, Kan.

Heavy rainfall over the 24-hour period ending early today included 6.09 inches at Brownsville, Tex.; 3.72 at Detroit; 1.12 at Pittsburgh and 1.08 at Eastport, Me. Heavy showers also were reported over the weekend in scattered areas in central and southeastern Missouri.

PARIS.

IT IS rare for me to say anything critical in regard to a foreign place, but I have wanted to express certain thoughts about Paris for a long time. There are good things to be said about this city, but it seems all too clear that the people here fail in regard to politeness.

If the French were like the Swiss, the story would be different. In Switzerland, people greet visitors with friendly smiles, but here the tourist has little honor, if any. The Parisians are in a hurry, and seldom give good, clear directions to a stranger.

* * *

THIS IS MY fifth visit to Paris, and the statements I have made are based on experience. In addition, I have talked with travelers from several countries, and have learned that they have much the same feeling.

Frenchmen outside the capital city usually make a better impression on foreign visitors. In French villages (where tourists are few) I have found the manners of the people better.

After writing those notes, I feel more free to speak about the better side of Paris. I am thinking of the beautiful public buildings and the artistic genius which produced them.

* * *

AMONG THE CHURCHES of Paris are Notre Dame and Sacre Coeur. Notre Dame, a product of the Middle Ages, has widespread fame. Sacre Coeur was built more recently, in the later half of the past century.

SCENE AT A PARIS FOUNTAIN, WITH EGYPTIAN OBELISK IN BACKGROUND.

Here and there in the city are fountains, and several of these have statues of merit. Near one fountain is an obelisk; this tall pillar of stone came from Egypt.

Perhaps greatest of all objects in Paris is the Louvre, a palace used by kings during centuries gone by. Today the buildings are employed as a mighty museum, chiefly an art gallery. The Louvre contains statues made by ancient Greeks and Romans, along with pictures painted by masters of several nations. Mona Lisa, by Leonardo da Vinci, is the best known of the paintings.
